Draft end next year?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration hopes to end the military draft in mid-1973 but the Selective Service System expects to continue registering and classifying young men after that time.

Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr told a Senate Armed Services subcommittee Friday continued registration would be necessary for the national defense.

He said the nation would need a standby system that would insure "a pool of registrants available for call in an emergency."

"We believe that the defense of the nation would be assured best during a standby period if we continued to register, hold lotteries, classify, and send a small number of men for pre-induction examinations," Tarr said.

Solons measure support for mammoth water plan

By MIKE ROBERTSON
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A congressional subcommittee heard testimony here Saturday overwhelmingly in favor of a giant irrigation project proposed for Twin Falls County.

All but one witness supported the $62-million Salmon Falls Division Irrigation Project that would bring water to 64,000 acres now unwatered or poorly watered.

The project, at a construction cost of about $1,000 per acre, would represent an investment of about $15,000 for every person in Twin Falls County.

Testimony was presented to four members of the Irrigation and Reclamation Subcommittee of the House Interior Committee at the College of Southern Idaho Saturday.

The four visiting members of the subcommittee, Chairman Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif.; Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho; Rep. James McClure, R-Idaho; and Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., had toured the project area by airplane and bus on Friday.

In the opinion of Hansen and McClure, one of the most important hurdles crossed was getting the subcommittee chairman to visit the project site.

Rep. Hansen said the fact that the powerful Rep. Johnson had decided to visit the project area is a "tremendous step."

McClure agreed, saying the fact that Johnson felt the project had enough merit to come to visit the site "holds great promise" that Johnson would support the project.

Throughout the hearing, Johnson's remarks suggested that he favored the project.

"I agree rural America needs help," he said. "I hope if Congress passes the bill, the President will sign it and the pre-construction funds will be made available soon," Johnson said.

Later in the hearing, Johnson said "It is quite evident there may be a lack of water in the area."

"This development is one way to justify the help rural America needs," he said.

"Something must be done if the farmer is to continue to survive on the land," he said.

When one person testified that the cost of the project at about $1,000 an acre appeared high, Johnson remarked that the per-acre cost was typical of Bureau of Reclamation project costs.

"Direct benefits do not reflect the greatly increased indirect benefits of the project," he said.

After the hearings, Johnson said further subcommittee hearings will be held on the project "this spring."

"We will have it up for consideration very soon," he said.

Oral and written testimony supporting the project was submitted by 31 persons. One opposed the project.

Edwin F. Sullivan, Regional director for the Bureau of Reclamation, outlined the development.

He said an average of 181,600 acre-feet of water would be diverted annually from the Snake River to the Salmon Falls Division lands.

The plan would involve construction of a Milner pumping plant, a short distance upstream from Milner Dam to lift 1:165 second feet of water 115 feet into a proposed 47-mile-long Milner-Salmon Falls Canal.

Four re-lift pump stations and smaller canals would serve lands which lie above the Milner-Salmon Falls Canal.

Existing wells and pumps throughout the area and existing works of the Salmon River Canal Company would be integrated into the division.

Such facilities would include existing Salmon Falls Dam and Reservoir, canals, laterals and drainage systems.

The Salmon Tract Unit of the division would continue to use water from Salmon Falls Reservoir and surplus flows of Rock Creek.

"In years of low runoff, the total flow of Snake River is already appropriated, and the division lands would continue to suffer extreme shortages unless an additional water supply is made available," he said.

"To alleviate the shortage, he said, "we propose to develop a well field in the Snake River Plain, which is underlain by a very large and productive aquifer."

"Ample amounts of good quality ground water could be pumped from that aquifer in those years when surface water resources are not sufficient to serve the Salmon Falls Division," he said.

Sullivan discussed the two alternative areas where the feasibility study showed these wells could be located.

He said the auxiliary well field could be located either in the Wendell-Jerome-Dietrich area, or north of Lake Walcott near Roberts for direct discharge into the Snake river.

Sullivan said both alternatives could be built for about the same cost and would have about the same benefit-cost ratio.

"The estimated construction costs, at January 1969 prices, was $47.2 million."

In addition, a portion of the cost of existing upstream storage — figured at $292,000 — and the cost of generating the power and energy needed for pumping, $4,154,000, bring total costs to $51.5 million.

China talks bring hopes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A State Department official has expressed confidence that American-Chinese negotiations in Paris for trade, travel and cultural exchange agreements will bring concrete results.

"There is no question it will be carried out," said Assistant Secretary of State John Richardson Jr. of the program of exchanges agreed to in principle during President Nixon's visit to China. But Richardson cautioned the program of contacts "is not likely to develop rapidly."

The White House announced Friday that Paris had been selected for negotiations on details of the exchanges. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the talks would start in a matter of days and would be conducted by the two nations' ambassadors in Paris, Arthur K. Watson of the United States and Huang-Chen of China, who is a member of the ruling Communist Central Committee of China.

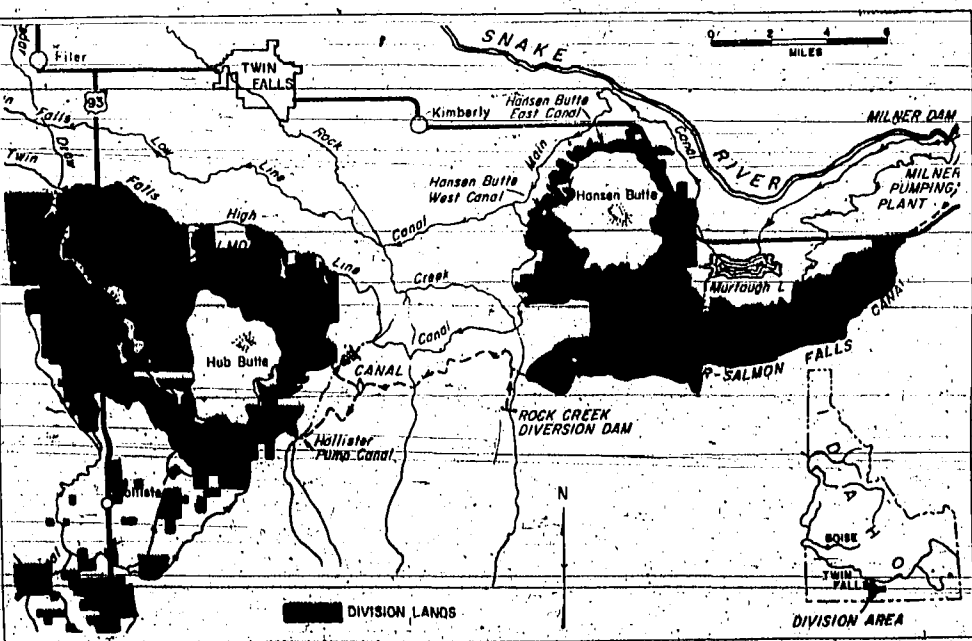

Candidate McCloskey bows out

By United Press International

The crowded field of presidential candidates, with the second state primary on the horizon, has been narrowed by one. And another candidate is reported considering an end to his race.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, who polled 20 per cent of the Republican votes in the New Hampshire primary, said Friday at Menlo Park, Calif., that he would drop his challenge to President Nixon's re-nomination.

McCloskey said he was $45,000 in debt and that the prospects of fresh funds to sustain his campaign were unlikely.

S. Viet forces fight in Cambodia

By STEWART KELLERMAN
SAIGON (UPI) — A 20,000-man South Vietnamese force backed by tanks, jets and field guns fought its way across the dusty plains of eastern Cambodia Saturday in an effort to cut off three elusive North Vietnamese divisions reported massing for a push into South Vietnam.

In air action, U.S. warplanes struck into North Vietnam for the 11th straight day, the longest string of attacks since strategic bombing of the north was halted 3 1/2 years ago.

Military sources said the two-pronged South Vietnamese drive, the deepest thrust into Cambodia in four months, was aimed at stopping as many as 30,000 Communist troops from getting within striking distance of Saigon.

An initial force of 15,000 South Vietnamese soldiers rumbled across the border Thursday, along Highway 7, into Cambodia's rubber country, 75 miles northwest of Saigon.

About 5,000 more men pushed across the frontier Friday along Highway 1 into Cambodia's Parrot's Bank region, 35 miles to the south.

Military sources said the northern column, advancing along bumpy, red-dirt Highway 7, battled Communists at sundown Friday 30 miles from the border in the first sizable clash of the drive. The sources withheld details for security reasons.

Field reports said the southern column clashed with Communists Saturday while setting up a helicopter landing zone at the border, killing 21 guerrillas. One government soldier was slain and three were wounded.

Other troops in the southern force then pushed on into the Parrot's Bank and by sundown Saturday were 12 miles inside Cambodian territory.

Political scene quiet in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian political scene remained superficially quiet Saturday, after Prime Minister Lon Nol took over as chief of state and dissolved the constitutional assembly which had been on the point of promulgating a new constitution.

Government sources reported that top level discussions were continuing and that "all was not completely settled."

However, in Phnom Penh's streets it was almost as if nothing had happened at all.

Only at the Faculty of Law, where 200 students demanding that Prime Minister delegate Gen. Sisowath Sirik Matak be ousted, was there open unrest.

The students, who have held a sit-in in their building since Friday, strung new posters saying "Sirik Matak is the root of the trouble."

The students were, however, a small minority. Six others from the Association of Cambodian Students met Lon Nol Saturday to ask for Matak's resignation. Lon Nol told them Matak was necessary to the government, student sources said.

Lon Nol announced he had taken over as Chief of State Friday night, three hours after Cheng Heng announced he was stepping down because Lon Nol was the only man who could "steer the country through these difficult times."

Burley blaze reported

BURLEY — A fire in the storage shed at the Burley Golf Course destroyed about $2,000 worth of equipment Friday.

Lost in the fire were mowers, sprinklers and other small equipment. A tractor, lawn mowers, sod cutter and two dressing machines were saved from the burning building.

Persons removing equipment from the burning building were forced to remain out of the building after two gasoline barrels exploded.

Cause of the fire is not known.

Gary mayor opens meet

GARY, Ind. (UPI)—Mayor Richard G. Hatcher, of Gary, told the opening session of the national black political convention Saturday, "We ain't in nobody's hip pocket no more" and 1972 is the last chance for the two major political parties to "liberate" black people.

Hatcher, host and co-chairman of the three-day convention, delivered a keynote address. He made it clear he is "willing to give the two major political parties one more chance in the year 1972."

"But," Hatcher said, "If they fail us—a not unlikely prospect—we must then probe the possibility of a third party movement in this country." He said, "We've broken out of the two-party mold before. Except this time the rupture may well be permanent."

In another keynote address, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation PUSH, sounded a "clear call for a black political party."

"It's nation time," Jackson said. "It's nation time for an exploited nation of people whose political impotence and enslaved mentality has handcuffed us in the dungeon of the Republican Party and shackled us on the plantation of the Democratic party."

"It's nation time to liberate ourselves and control the politics of our community. It's nation time for a black political party."

Jackson offered a 13-point proposal for an "agenda" the convention was called to adopt. Its first point was a black political party and it called for several means of teaching political skills to black candidates and officials.

Shoshone survey wants drug study in schools

BY MELBA THORNE
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Most Shoshone residents surveyed marked knowledge of the "three R's" and the harmful effects of drug abuse as absolutely essential subjects in school.

The 38-question survey polled 338 school patrons about their views of the school system and its needs.

The "two" items marked "absolutely essential" by the largest number of people were "the basic skills of reading, writing and arithmetic; and a knowledge of the harmful effects of the abuse of alcohol, tobacco and drugs."

Subjects deemed absolutely essential by at least 70 percent of those surveyed were the teaching of moral values, American democracy, feeling good about one's personality and abilities, personal hygiene and safe driving.

More than 96 per cent believed that students should have, if possible, a knowledge of occupational choices and help in vocational decisions; and be taught individual thinking, knowledge of higher mathematics and science, an ability to use written and spoken language in styles appropriate to the occasion, an ability to evaluate other systems of government, and practices in areas of personal mathematics such as time payments and contracts.

More than half of those surveyed thought that the basic skills of the "three R's," knowledge of history of mankind, principles and values of American democracy, basic science and higher mathematics were well taught in the Shoshone system.

Other subjects "well taught" according to the majority of persons who answered the survey were typing, safe driving, ability to use a variety of sources for information and a desire for further education after high school.

Subjects considered least well taught, were learning a foreign language, knowledge of hazards of the abuse of alcohol, tobacco and drugs, help in choosing a vocation and gaining job skills, and methods of controlling human reproduction.

Almost 90 per cent of those interviewed thought that the students should learn some sport that can be used for relaxation for a lifetime, be able to communicate an idea using a variety of techniques, films, charts, graphs, models, etc. Seventy-five per cent considered necessary an appreciation of the fine arts, knowledge of classic and contemporary authors and their works, and developing a skill in ceramics, embroidery or related subjects.

Marbles believed cause of window damage in TF

TWIN FALLS — Nearly $5,000 damage has been done to business windows in Twin Falls this month.

Twin Falls Police have reports of 19 breakages at offices and businesses, mostly on Main Avenue, since March 2.

In most cases cause of damage is not known, but at several sites cat-eye marbles have been found inside the buildings. Holes in windows at the other vandalized sites are similar in size to those where marbles were used.

Police also report several other incidents to private residences and vehicle mirrors and headlights, with damage running into hundreds of dollars.

Investigation into the breakage is continuing, officers said, and the person or persons responsible for the damage probably will be held financially responsible if they are apprehended.

The incidents started March 2 when a window at Wilson Bates furniture store, 702 Main Ave. N., was broken. Damage was estimated at $200. The following night another window, also valued at $200, was broken at Wilson Bates.

Windows also were broken that night at Dutch's Furniture, 250 Main Ave. W., with $250 damage; The Paris Co., 134 Main Ave. N., damage estimated at $400; and the Bon Marche at Main Avenue South and Second Street East, damage, $150.

On March 4 two windows valued at $300 were broken at King's variety store, 132 Main Ave. S. Another window at Dutch's valued at $200 and another at the Bon Marche, valued at $150, also were broken on March 4. An estimated $1,000 damage also was done to windows at Sears that night.

On March 5 a window valued at $120 was broken at the Travelodge Motel on Second Avenue South and on March 6 a front window at Claude Brown Music and Furniture, 137 Main Ave. E., was broken with damage estimated at $250.

On March 7 a car window at Youree Motor Co. was broken. Damage was estimated at $150. Cain's Furniture and Appliance also received two broken windows that night, with damage estimated at $300.

A window at First Security Bank, 222 Main Ave. S., was broken on March 8, causing $300 damage. An estimated $100 damage was done the same night at Motor Mercantile Co., 434 Main Ave. S. One window was broken there.

Four incidents were reported March 9 with an estimated $410 damage. A window valued at $330 was broken at the U. S. Post Office. A window at Farm and City Distributing, 1115 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., was broken with damage reported at $200 and one at Moon's Rock Shop valued at $100 was broken. Dr. Ludwig Landwehr, whose office is at 717 Main Ave. W., also reported a window valued at $80 was broken.

Police believe all the business vandalism is related and that all probably occurred by

Italian hijacks airliner

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—A 55-year-old Italian woman hijacked a Milan-bound Alitalia Caravelle jet airliner to Munich Saturday to protest her sister's confinement in a mental home.

The woman, identified by police as Attilia Lazzari, surrendered one hour and 50 minutes after the aircraft landed at Riem airport with 32 passengers and a crew of five aboard.

The co-pilot, Augusto Bertoni, told newsmen passengers and crew were allowed to leave the plane "without trouble" shortly after touchdown, but Mrs. Lazzari, holding a small pistol in her hand, refused to disembark because she doubted she was in Munich.

Once Capt. Giacompo Mancuso had convinced her it was Munich airport, she handed over her gun to the captain and was led down the gangway by police officers.

4 dead, 20 hurt in election in India

CALCUTTA (UPI)—Elections in 16 of India's 21 states ended Saturday with four persons dead and 20 injured in the politically turbulent West Bengal state. Early returns showed the party of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi holding a good lead in most states.

Two of the dead in West Bengal were identified by police as workers of the ruling Congress party, of Mrs. Gandhi, found shot in a suburb. One man was killed when police fired on a mob which attacked a railway installation in East Calcutta with homemade bombs

Candidates okay chartering firms

WASHINGTON (UPI)—All but two of the leading contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination have told Ralph Nader they would support proposals to require federal charters for firms going interstate commerce as part of a plan to limit corporate power.

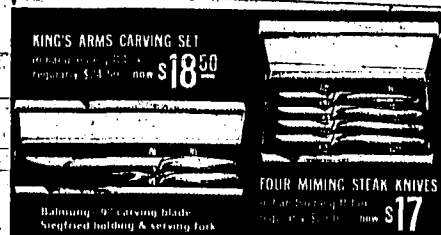

Nader said Saturday that seven of the candidates stated their positions in response to a questionnaire he had sent them. An eighth, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, was not polled.

"Of those asked, Nader said only Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota opposed the federal charter idea on grounds that "the federal government has all the authority that it needs" to control corporations.

At present, major national corporations get their charters to do business from individual state governments.

The Democrats supporting the federal approach were Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and George S. McGovern of South Dakota; Mayors John V. Lindsay of New York and Sam

Published in Section 60-106 Idaho Code, Thursday, is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturday, at 133 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301, by Magic Valley Newspapers, Inc. Entered as second class mail matter April 8, 1918, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, under the act of March 8, 1879.

Street Repairs

We recommend — in fact we strongly urge — that the extra five-mill levy put in the Twin Falls city budget be retained and used for the purpose for which it is intended. That is for street repair and surface replacement.

A public hearing on the matter will be one feature of the council session on Monday, March 20. At that time the members will either leave the additional levy in the budget or remove it.

Criticism concerning the condition of streets in Twin Falls has been long and loud. Each year during the past several years the repair and replacement program has been greatly curtailed because, as some put it, "we can't afford it." Well, this policy has now resulted in a deplorable mess. A majority of the members of the present council, and most of the city officials, feel the additional mill levy is needed to get a good portion of the necessary job done this year.

We feel the same way as they do. We urge interested citizens to attend the council session the evening of March 20 and to let the city fathers know the time has arrived for action and the taxpayers want it that way.

The alternative — should the additional levy be removed — will be another half-good program and once more the streets of our city will be full of holes and breaking up.

Those who have been strongly vocal in criticism of the condition of our streets now will have the opportunity to let their voice be heard in backing a repair-replacement program. They can urge a program — a planned program — that will get results.

Pot Proposals

For several years statisticians have been telling Americans that their younger generation was going to pot — that which is botanically cannabis, that is — in increasing numbers every year. To suggestions that the federal and state governments might begin to think about marijuana differently than the current attitudes, the answer had been: Wait.

We need more research. We strongly suspect potential dangers. And more of the same.

But there are now indications that the wait-and-see attitude on the marijuana problem has just about run out its string.

The National Institute of Mental Health, in a report to Congress, said there were possibilities for the use of marijuana in the treatment of glaucoma, depression, alcoholism, sinusitis, skin problems, inflammations of the ear and epilepsy. If that sounds like an old patent medicine advertisement, that's what the NIMH researchers said.

The institute's report warned, however, that the research jury is still very much out on the effects of cannabis on female chromosomes and possible damage to brain and kidney, and the mixed use of alcohol and marijuana.

It is unfortunate that such words as "legalize" and its bastard child "decriminalize" have to be dragged into this public discussion. To legalize, in the minds of many, implies endorsement. No responsible board, commission or individual has yet encouraged the indiscriminate use of pot.

What is in the public interest is to get control of the use of a potentially risky, if not dangerous, substance. Estimates of the number of past and present users run up to 24 million, and one poll says that up to 51 per cent of college students say they have at least tried marijuana — up from 5 percent in 1967.

The question soon to be put before federal and state legislators is whether they want to get their hands around this relatively new social problem, and how they want to do it to replace methods that do not seem to be working.

MR. SPECTATOR

Shots Here And There

Other day we wondered, now that China and the U.S.A. were getting involved, whether chop sticks were coming in favor or if, for that matter, they were obtainable in Twin Falls.

Well, a call was received from Helen Taylor, who had been doing a little searching, and she said that a check at Koto's Cafe in downtown Twin Falls showed they were available there. Now, we really don't know if they can be purchased there, but they can be used there.

So if you are in need of some, or want to try them, why not drop into the cafe and have a talk with the fellow in charge. Might be worth a try.

Mr. Spectator would hasten to point out that, everything else being equal, it is better to be rich and healthy than to be poor and sick.

PERK-A-BOO AT SEX

Now we know. Sex reared its ugly head in the world about one billion years ago.

Dr. J. William Schopf, a 30-year-old geology professor and paleobiologist (Mr. Spectator will have to look that one up) with the University of California, Los Angeles, bases the claim on his investigations of fossilized plants found in rocks in Central Australia.

The feelings of women liberationists notwithstanding, he ranks the beginning of sexual processes on earth second in importance only to the beginning of life itself two billion years or so earlier.

The first reproductive process in nature's evolutionary ladder was mitosis.

This is where a parent cell divides itself into two daughter cells identical to the parent. In the later process, meiosis, involving the combination of male and female cells, the sexually produced offspring has a genetic makeup different from that of either parent but combining traits of both.

Meiosis provided the basis for a huge number of new genetic recombinations. Natural selection enabled the rapid spread of advantageous mutations, leading to the evolution of our present diversity of plant and animal life.

Some plant and lower animal forms still reproduce by means of mitosis. But genetically at least, it is a rather monotonous method, says Schopf.

And who would disagree? Mr. Spectator suggests that if you really want to know what is going on you get out the old dictionary or having none, turn and read something else.

An AA Plus

I don't know what to do about our shameful prison system where men commit worse than they go in. Atty. Gen. Mitchell calls it "the most neglected aspect of our society."

Former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark says we should abolish all prisons and start over.

With what? Amid all the questions about our frightful prison system we are beginning to hear some answers.

The two worst aspects of our present prison system are these: Young criminals go in soft and come out hard; if they come out alive.

And recidivism. After they get out, they soon return — 82 per cent return almost immediately.

Our nation's 150,000 prisons each year inhale 10 million Americans and spew out the same number of emotional cripples.

And of the few who manage to stay out of prison, a disproportionate number of those remain a public burden, prone to bankruptcy, welfare, abnormal family relationships; they are economic liabilities and social lepers.

Massachusetts is abolishing institutions for juvenile offenders, replacing them with community-based work and educational programs. Let the evil criminal "pay for his crime" with money. And require that he perform useful work until he earns that money.

If that's not the whole answer, it's a beginning in adapting punishment to fit the crime.

Washington State, Minnesota and California are experimenting with similar reforms.

Now what about the ex-con? An experiment in Georgia has demonstrated an impressive reduction of recidivism.

They are applying the principles and practices which AA uses to help ex-alcoholics stay "ex."

It's called RINC; that's a contraction of Reclaim Incorporated. Formed by inmates at the Georgia State Prison, it prepares men on the way out to stay out.

As with AA, the inmate must acknowledge his weakness, his chronic dependence on crime, and vow to help himself and others go straight.

Once outside the prison, the paroled inmate is assisted by other paroled inmates — and by outside supporters of the program — in securing a place to live, temporarily or permanently.

He is temporarily assisted financially where necessary. He is helped in advancing his education, in getting a job. There are regular RINC meetings for mutual discussion. Also individuals are "on call" as with AA for personal counsel and encouragement.

And the RINC members, who receive help — once rehabilitated are expected to help others.

"God," in this effort, wears his favorite cloak of "love." And if it appears idealistic, moralistic, it's worth remembering that 82 per cent of our ex-cons struggle with the old habits and associations outside until they fall back in.

In AA, fewer than 3 per cent fall back. It's worth trying.

CHRIS CARLSON

Favorable

WASHINGTON — Idaho's congressional delegation, after careful study, has responded favorably to President Nixon's recent Shanghai communique issued jointly with Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai.

Only Rep. James McClure, R-Ist, thinks the document could be the beginning of a possible "sell-out" by the United States of its Nationalist Chinese allies on Taiwan.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a member of the Foreign Relations committee and often a critic of the Nixon Administration's foreign policy, was particularly warm with his praise. "For twenty years, our fixation that China was a demon over which the United States must stand guard for Asia has been the root cause of our inaction in the straits of Formosa."

Sen. Len Jordan, R-Idaho, also praised the president's trip and the communique. "At least communications were re-established. If people are talking, they are less likely to be shooting. I think the trip was highly successful," the veteran senator said.

Asked about the sell-out charge, Jordan said, "I don't go along with that. We have received assurances from the Administration that our treaty commitments are still valid. As for the phased withdrawal, I didn't even know we had troops in Taiwan. Obviously they are not infantry, but rather Navy and Air Force personnel."

Rep. Orval Hansen, R-2nd, said the Shanghai communique was consistent with the President's previously announced policy. "It does not reflect any change in policy. The complaint that it is a sell-out of Taiwan is absurd," the Idaho Falls congressman said.

"The Nixon Doctrine announced by the President in Guam in 1969, places upon other nations greater responsibility for their own defense. It signaled a shift from President Kennedy's earlier pledge that to assure the survival of liberty, the United States would 'pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe'."

Hansen charged that previous administrations escalated overseas troop levels and over-committed the United States and added that President Nixon's policy has been to draw troops from Southeast Asia. "The rapid withdrawal of troops from Southeast Asia is clear evidence of the president's almost free judgment shift in U.S. policy," Hansen over whether to commit U.S. maintained.

Florida field. Thus, while Muskie attempts to safeguard his shaky centrist position, now being whittled away on the busing issue by front-running Gov. George Wallace and Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson and on the left by New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, Humphrey is cashing in on his old but still-remembered championship of special interest groups.

The former Vice President is exploiting these identifiable sources of Humphrey strength with the most sophisticated get-out-the-vote operation of any Democratic hopeful in the field — a swollen field of 11 candidates which makes forecasting the March 14 results a nightmarish futility.

With automated telephone banks manned by Humphrey workers expected to contact at least 250,000 voters in precincts of known Humphrey strength (a communication network organized by former Humphrey press aide Norman Sherman), this get-out-the-vote drive could well make the difference in the neck-and-neck race between Muskie and Humphrey.

No such easy access to pools of strength is available to Muskie. To the contrary, the relatively even distribution of his centrist support, regarded as his most formidable asset as the national frontrunner for nomination, is a grave weakness in the overcrowded

Florida field. For example, while Wallace and Jackson are dutifully into Muskie's center-right on the busing issue, Lindsay is cutting in on his center-left. By making common cause with Gov. Reubin Askew's saturation television campaign against Wallace, Lindsay is gaining the support of Democratic voters who agree with Askew's uncompromising stand — a small but distinct minority which otherwise might have gone to Muskie.

That leaves a depleted center, and Humphrey is making a far more concentrated bid for this depleted center than Muskie. Thus, at a lengthy closed-door breakfast session with black leaders in Tallahassee, Humphrey argued convincingly that his own ambivalent position on the busing issue had to be judged against his long record as a battler for civil rights.

Moreover, Humphrey also holds an edge over Muskie with organized labor. In his speech to the Florida legislature last week, he came down hard on Muskie's refusal to support the space shuttle, a major issue for unions in space-oriented central Florida.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Cerebral Spasms

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother recently suffered what her doctor refers to as a cerebral spasm. Her speech, right arm and right leg were affected. Speech returned promptly and the arm within a few days, but her leg, although improved, still drags.

Can you describe briefly the difference between a cerebral spasm and a stroke? — H. S.

It may be that we are playing with words, but it is sometimes difficult to discover specifically what has happened in a case like this.

Cerebral spasm — a spasmodic constriction of blood vessels somewhere in the brain — is thought to occur occasionally in patients with high blood pressure. In other words, there is an interference with circulation to some part of the brain.

In broadest definition, this could be regarded as a form of a stroke — although not involving an embolism blocking an artery, or a hemorrhage allowing blood to escape from the blood vessel.

The diagnosis of "cerebral spasm" used to be quite common; more recently it has been offered less often because proof of any actual spasm was lacking.

Rather, such attacks are termed transient ischemic (tissue) attacks. In plain English, that means a temporary absence of sufficient blood supply. It doesn't specify the exact cause, by labeling it spasm or anything else.

Another term, "little stroke," is often used, too. There is an interruption in the blood supply, but either it resumes quickly through normal channels, or other blood vessels in the area replace enough blood supply soon enough so little function is lost.

For everyday purposes, it doesn't matter too much what you call it — a little stroke, or a transient ischemic attack, or something else. Whatever the term, if blood pressure is high, it is important to try to bring it down to a more normal level.

Your mother's quick recovery of speech and use of her arm is, obviously, a good sign but the dragging of the leg also means that some brain damage persists. This may ultimately disappear — but she has had a warning and should take what steps she can to avoid further damage. Control of her blood pressure is the foremost one.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 70 and have been going to my doctor for a constant burning down there. He gave me a prescription that didn't stop it and suggested that I use A. and D. ointment which gives only temporary relief.

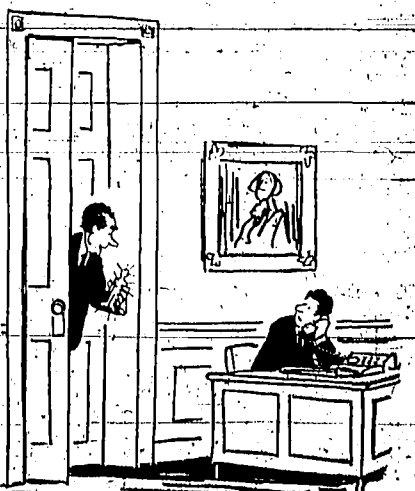

This has been going on for a year. I have had Pap tests and they are all right. Can you help me? — R. C.

After menopause (sometimes quite a long time after) the tissues of the genital region can become thin, dry and irritated, a condition called "atrophic vaginitis." That could be your problem.

Use of the female hormone estrogen, either orally or applied as a cream, may help.

But I would suggest a test for diabetes if you haven't had one quite recently, since diabetes can cause genital itching and irritation.

Ann Cover—She Comments After 70 Days In Office

BY O.A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

Councilman Ann Cover—Councilwoman if that's the way you prefer it—has been at her job 70 days. The first woman member of the Twin Falls city council likes it, too.

When she ran for the office late last year her main campaign "plank" was one calling for a change in the city's street program. She thought it would be better to replace streets and do the major repairs through bids rather than with city crews. So what's happening?

Mrs. Cover told this Times-News writer that a priority list for street work is being planned, and will be followed. Then a call will go out for bids for the final surfacing after engineers complete a cost estimate.

"The city will do the initial grading but it will be the final grading and the coat which will be done on contract," she said. "We would like to have a hot paving mix rather than the cold we have been using. Hot mix is more expensive but it lasts longer and will be less expensive in the long run."

Q—Do you plan on that method for complete replacement of streets?

A—When we have to tear them all up—and we have so many streets right now that need this—we plan to do the complete replacement under contract.

Q—And on bid?

A—Yes, that will be the way.

The first 70 days of her new office finds the recently widowed mother of five enthusiastic about the whole setup. She made up her mind to run for a council post shortly after the untimely death of her husband, Jerre, a widely known local businessman.

Q—What gave you the urge to run for the position you now hold?

A—I thought I had the time to do the job and I've been interested in government for quite awhile. I thought this was a good way to get involved. I can still be with my family. It isn't like serving in the State Legislature, for instance. There you must be away from home. Then I was just very interested in our city. I believe it is a wonderful city and I was anxious to help keep it that way.

Q—What, in your opinion, is the most important decision facing members of the council right now?

A—As I have said, the most important is to get our streets repaired. Then, of course, we must get our secondary sewage plant completed. Everyone now is on the ecology wagon and we know we are going to have to enlarge our interests in that field. This will present problems. The state legislature is having trouble finding money to help us.

Q—Speaking of money, do you think it is necessary to raise city taxes to take care of some of the necessary projects?

A—Yes, I do. Prices are going up everywhere and we do have a lot to do in Twin Falls. We just have to raise the mill levy.

Q—When do you expect to do that?

A—We will ask this at a public meeting on March 20 in the city council chambers.
This will be the time for the citizens to come in, say yes or no, and give their opinion.

Q—Do you expect any organized protest at the public hearing or do you believe the people will go along with the improvements they have been asking for?

A—I believe most of them will go along. I think they realize that we are in a bind for money and that we have a lot of projects which must be done.

Q—In light of the ecology movement, would you recommend light or heavy industry for our community?

A—We would like more industry, yes, but I believe it should be the type of industry like the Kellwood plant or the paper box factory. Both are proving very successful and beneficial to our town.

Q—Do you ever get suggestions from people as to what you should do?

A—Yes, I do. People are thinking of themselves and this is the way we all are.
Many of the suggestions are put forward because the people believe it will help them.
But my answer is always that we have to do what is best for the most people.

Q—I notice that at a normal council meeting there are not many people attending. What, in your opinion, is the reason for this?

A—The people who do come are those who have an interest in something on our agenda. Otherwise, it just seems that if there is nothing directly affecting them they do not bother to come. This is bad, because if more would come then they would all understand our problems.

Q—Do you find any difficulty in being the only member of your sex on the council?

A—None whatever. I sometimes believe it is more embarrassing to visitors because some will address us as
"gentlemen" and then will hesitate and add
"and lady." Actually I am treated just like anyone else and that is fine.

Q—Do you have any language difficulty? By this I mean when tempers flare?

A—No, the gentlemen on the council are very nice about this. They slip now and then, but I understand.

Q—Concerning cooperation between the city council and county commissioners. Is there anything along this line in the wind right now?

A—Yes. We are negotiating with the county commissioners to see if they cannot take over what is called the city dump, located on land we now lease from Ellis Puller south of the airport. Under the plan discussed, the county would operate the dump and the City of Twin Falls would pay a just fee to use it. This would also permit Buhl, Filer and other communities to use it on a fee basis. This would make for a large and adequate disposal area in one location instead of many smaller ones scattered around. Kimberly, for instance, has been notified they can no longer use their dump after June 1. A single dump would be an answer to them. We know the city and county can work together. This has been shown in joint operation of Joslin field, the city-county airport. This arrangement has been most satisfactory and less expensive to all.

So that's the way it is with Mrs. Cover—Twin Falls' first woman Councilman (or Councilwoman if, as we said, you prefer it that way)—as she heads toward tomorrow and her 71st day in office.

Times-News Public Forum

Concerned Citizen

Frank S. Mansfield, 1544 Willow Lane,
Twin Falls, could be called a concerned citizen.

Following an editorial or two in the Times-News discussing absenteeism among Senators and Representatives in Washington, D.C., he decided to do a little investigating—and also to dispatch a little praise toward U.S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith, another concerned individual. In fact it is Senator Smith who is backing a proposed anti-absenteeism constitutional amendment.

He wrote Senator Smith, sent along some interesting information which included a list of people in Idaho who had written on the subject of her proposed amendment. Six of the state's communities were represented by those people who had written to her.

"The United States Senate is in trouble,"

Senator Smith said in the communication.
"It is because growing numbers of its members no longer regard it as a high institution for dedicated and honorable service but rather only as a means to an end. It has become a mere springboard to those who would use it—even abuse their selfish interests, whether such interests be com-mercializing their position and title with the acquisition of high price lecture fees or running for President."

She pointed out the daily pay for a senator is $118.46 but that some absent Senators get paid from $1,000 to $5,000 for a single speech or lecture.

"Obviously," she wrote, "They wouldn't hesitate to be absent one day to make a more remunerative speech or lecture."

Senator Smith suggested that if interested persons wanted to know the records of their Senators and Representatives they should write and ask them.

So that's what Mr. Mansfield has done.
When he receives replies from Senators Church and Jordan and Representatives McClure and Hansen, we have asked that we be permitted to publish the "score" in the Times-News.

Mr. Mansfield said "fine." So in due time the truth will out.

Meantime we would point out that Mr.
Mansfield, only recently retired from an executive position in Chicago, is now an Idahoan by choice. And his home is Twin Falls.

Very Disappointed Conscience Game Management

Editor, Times-News:
I was very disappointed that the Times News would pick up from the UPI-Newservice the picture they used on February 27, publicizing Mrs. Slavin and her club HELP. And then, to add insult to the Cattleman, on Sunday, March 5, they used the cartoon showing the high cost of meat.

You serve a rural area that includes a great number of cattlemen and their families who derive their income from cattle. And they contribute a great deal to the taxes, the business prosperity and the general welfare of this Great Magic Valley, so surely your staff should be knowledgeable enough to know that the prices these items are complaining about are just now reaching the price they were 20 years ago.
Neither Mrs. Slavin nor any newservice has bothered to tell the difference in wages that her husband is making now compared to what he made 20 years ago.

When the American people are spending less than 16 per cent of their income on food (and this includes their
"BUILT-IN MAID SERVICE"— pre-cooking, pre-processing, and packaging) as compared to the 34 per cent to 40 per cent that is spent in other countries, I think it is time for them to stop gripping about an increase in raw food items. I also think they should stop expecting the Cattleman and the Farmer to keep on subsidizing them.

I hope you won't use any more pictures on the high cost of meat or farm products without using pictures to show the Producer Side too.

Mrs. Ralph Baughman
Buhl

Editor, Times-News:
My stepchildren's mother was killed in an automobile accident on February 13, March 3 would have been her birthday.

The children pooled their money and bought two big bouquets to take to the cemetery on her birthday. They spent $30 on the flowers and as some of them are teenagers, money isn't too plentiful for them.

About 3 p.m. they asked their father and me to go back to the cemetery with them to see the flowers. When we got back to the cemetery we found one bouquet gone. After a search we found it had been removed and placed on another grave.

Someone had torn the "Mother" off the ribbon and put the bouquet on the grave of a man. We went to the cemetery office and found who was buried there.

I'm sure that the man buried there wouldn't have felt honored to have stolen flowers.
It takes a mighty small person to steal from the dead. I'm glad I do not have to live with their conscience.

Mrs. Arnold Mullinix

Editor, Times-News:
Members of the Twin Falls chapter of the Idaho Outdoor Association are deeply concerned about legislation now pending which would place all game and wildlife management under the supervision of the federal government. Like a very large percentage of Idaho citizens and sportsmen, we are opposed to such a management plan.

Our present system, under the supervision of the state Fish and Game Department, is far more satisfactory than federal regulations would be.

We are also in agreement with the concept of a national recreation area on a multiple use basis. The minerals, timber and streams were placed there by the hand of Almighty God for our use as needed. All these uses should be properly controlled. This would meet all the demands of the present and future generations.

A national park would permanently eliminate all such uses and would satisfy no one but a few park happy politicians
— a very few. The roads, administration buildings and other required facilities would mar the natural beauty of the areas much more than controlled management of mining, lumbering and grazing.
A park would offer only a short season and great expense.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is now doing a good job of wildlife management in the area and should be allowed to continue without interference of the federal government. We think it is time some of our lawmakers should be more concerned about what we, the people of Idaho, want instead of what they want us to have.

Uncalled for

Editor, Times-News:
I think all this publicity
Gooding received over the dog situation is uncalled for. The city people voted for this leash law and the dog catcher was hired to do a job—and he did it well.

I have private boarding kennels and as the city had no place to keep the dogs, they hired me to use my building since it is warm, dry and clean.
I have been broken into twice and have received absolutely no help from the authorities, so it has caused me to refuse to keep the dogs.

As for the unburied animals, I have seen cows, dogs, calves, sheep, hogs and once a huge pile of chickens. No one seems concerned over that. Even our local veterinarians have to take their animals out there.

Everyone should know that the weather we have been having makes a lot of things impossible.

The people who voted for this thing should get behind Mr.
Stuttmeger and support him.
He was the one who got the city to take the dogs to a "vet" to be put to sleep.

I am sure no dogs were left alive or mistreated. They were all killed.

For Campus Safety

WASHINGTON—A cited at Hill City's Intown George Washington University—has raised a question seldom mentioned in the crusade for some liberated educators to make institutions of higher learning "relevant" to the real world. It is how much responsibility a college or university bears for the safety of its students on campus.

The code is suing G.W. for negligence because she was raped in a university auditorium last month, and is asking a whopping $5-million in damages. Also named in the suit is a campus security guard who police said failed to report the attack although he saw it begin.

carelessly, maliciously and intentionally, after quiet conversation with her assailant, turned his back deliberately, walked out, closed the door and left her alone with her assailant."

There then followed, says the suit, the rape and a series of attempts to "kill, maim and injure." In all, the various assaults are alleged to have

Prayer For Today

Dear God, it's no wonder your disciples asked to be taught to pray. Sometimes I feel my prayers must seem very shallow to you.
You did say, "Ask and you shall receive," and "You have not, because you ask not." Evidently you really want us to feel the dependence upon you that our praying shows. Maybe it isn't so much what we say or what we ask for. It must be that the important part is to keep on praying, and having the faith that you will hear and answer.

Sin And Sex

Editor, Times-News:
For the past several weeks I have been reading in the paper about our so called "legislators" and their never ending quest for the extinction of "SEX." Tonight I can contain myself no longer in that I read that "SEX" is one of the taxable "SINS."

The person who calls "SEX" a "SIN," should think twice about it before he opens his mouth, especially if he has a family.

If he does have children, he has living proof of what "SIN" can really do. Statistically speaking, this particular
"SIN" involves about 100 percent of our population at one time or other in our lifetime.

Health given boost in proposed budget

BOISE (UPI) — The joint finance-appropriations committee set a fiscal year 1973 general fund budget of $37.1 million Saturday, adding a little more to public health, the penitentiary, and the Department of Commerce and Development.

Working while their colleagues took the weekend off, the members increased the department of Health's budget from $5.7 million to $5.9 million to forestall what appeared to be forced closure of State Hospital North.

Sen. Nels Solberg, D-Grangeville, noting Health Department officials feared the Orofino institution would be closed under the original figure, reminded the committee it was a "political fact" that Gov. Cecil D. Andrus was from Orofino.

Solberg backed a higher

figure — $6.2 million — on grounds the department was underfunded in the current fiscal year because of an insufficient appropriation and said inadequate funding this time could be one of the problems that we can well be on a collision course with the governor.

The $5,979,500 motion, a compromise between Solberg's suggestion and the tentative appropriation, was made by Sen. Art Manley, D-Coeur d'Alene, who said regional mental health centers in the five northern Idaho counties are "heavily dependant" on the Orofino hospital.

The committee will distribute the money on a program basis after some members complained the increase might be used on administrative salaries rather than on programs.

The $5.9 million figure for the Health Department and the 216.5 million planned for the Department of Public Assistance assume the youth rehabilitation authority and the State Youth Training Center at St. Anthony will be included in the DPA.

If legislation transferring both areas is not approved by the house money for youth rehabilitation will be added to the health budget and St. Anthony will be given its own appropriation of $1,034,580.

The committee added $72,800 to the budget for the penitentiary, giving it a total of $1,872,800. Andrus appealed to the committee last week for more support at the prison, warning there would be "severe repercussions" if the institution were underfunded.

Andrus to release 'holdback' funds

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Saturday he plans to release a one per cent holdback in appropriations to state agencies Monday based on advice from legislative leadership.

Andrus ordered the holdback earlier in the year in a move to conserve some $600,000 for the general fund.

But, he said Saturday following a meeting with key legislators, the statutes do not allow the holdback if there appears to be sufficient money available.

The holdback will be released despite joint finance-appropriations committee approval of over $900,000 worth of supplemental appropriations.

to be paid for out of current revenue.

Part of the basis for allowing the extra money for state agencies was an anticipated reversion to the general fund at the end of the current fiscal year.

"There's no way that can be reached," Andrus said. "There isn't anyway we'll have a substantial surplus at the end of the fiscal year."

Acting Budget Director D. E. (Skip) Chilberg said the holdback release "is based on the desire of the legislature rather than the budget office."

"I think the squeeze will be on June 30 anyway," he said. "They're more optimistic than I am anyway."

Extension granted to SV airlines

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission reported Saturday Sun Valley Airlines Inc. has been granted an extension of its temporary intrastate common air carrier authority.

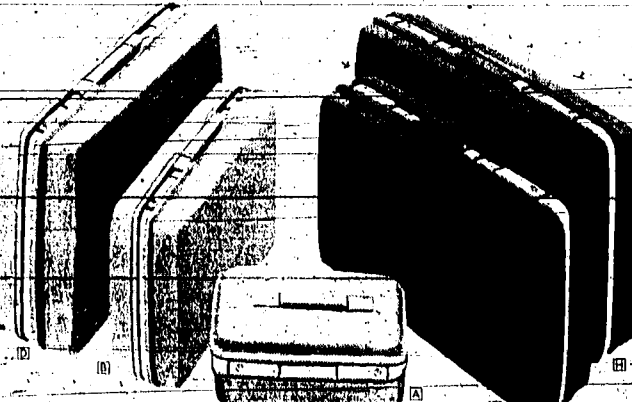

The IPUC said due to the emergency conditions caused by the airline strike involving Hughes Air West, Sun Valley was granted temporary authority to engage in common air carrier operations between Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

The airline since filed with the commission an application for a certificate to provide permanent common air carrier service between the three cities. A hearing is set for March 23.

Board gets report

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Resource Board said Friday it received a detailed report of archaeological sites on the Snake River that might be affected if the Swan Falls-Guffey dams are built.

Officials said some of the sites would be inundated by the reservoirs and others are on adjacent lands near the proposed reservoir sites.

The board contracted last year with Idaho State University to conduct a survey of the area. That survey team located 104 archaeological sites and a number of historical and geological interest points.

Most sites sketched and recorded lie alongside Sinkers, Castle and Rabbit streambeds, the report said, or upon adjacent benches in the river gorge on both sides of the Snake. Notable sites were in Ada, Canyon and Owyhee counties.

The survey team found village sites along a tributary stream — showing dwelling remains in groups of two, nine and single arrangements. The report viewed the relationships of these "as valuable in working out the cultural systems involved in aboriginal life in the canyon," the board said.

The report recommends intensive excavation and study be carried out at several sites found. It views the region as "archaeologically the richest yet surveyed in Southern Idaho."

The report estimates complete excavation and study would require as long as 10 to 65-day summer seasons in some cases and at least two seasons in others. However, it added that several groups could complete the work in three seasons.

The board also contracted with Utah State University for an environmental study in the same area last year. Recommendations concerning possible mitigation for any environmental losses should be completed in a few months.

BOISE (UPI) — Taking a hard line on the first legislative day, the Senate State Affairs Committee decided Friday not to introduce a bill to give the state board of examiners authority to set per diem travel expense.

Dryden Hiller, deputy secretary of state, noted meal allowances are now set at $8 per day in the state and $7.50 per day out of state.

He said state officials traveling to other states — such as the governor — often found it difficult to remain within the restriction.

DON'T MISS THE BIG "TREASURE HUNT"

THE IDAHO DEPARTMENT STORE — DOWNTOWN

'Wild Horse Annie' rides again

RENO, Nev., (UPI)—Wild Horse Annie and her children's army are riding to the rescue of wild horses which face trouble on the western range despite new protective legislation.

Mrs. Velma Johnston, who picked up her nickname because of her efforts during 20 years to preserve the dwindling herds, doesn't intend to retire just because she won her fight in congress.

"There must be continued vigilance in order to implement the efforts by the federal agency charged with responsibility for future welfare of these animals," she said.

To do this, she formed a foundation called Wild Horse Organized Assistance (WHOA).

Members include environmentalists and horse buffs who contribute time and money, but Mrs. Johnston especially hopes to retain the support of her "Kiddie Cavalry," the thousands of youngsters whose letters helped persuade congressmen to pass legislation forbidding hunting the animals, or rounding them up for processing as pet food or for other commercial use.

WHOA already is working with the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) to put the legislation into effect. This winter, 18 colts were in danger of starvation at the Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Range of northern Wyoming and southern Montana. The BLM and WHOA worked out an emergency rescue plan to remove the colts to another area to remain as wild horses or to be transferred to persons with a sincere interest in the animals' welfare.

BLM men separated most of the colts from their herds and conveyed them to corrals at Lovell, Wyo. WHOA paid for the corrals, feed and all other expenses of caring for the horses.

Two colts were spotted on a high ridge, separated from the horsemen by snow too deep for the colts to have been led through in their weakened condition. A helicopter was sent to the area. The colts, packed in rubber-lined baskets, were airlifted to their foster home corral at Lovell.

Applications to adopt the colts poured into WHOA's headquarters, but Mrs. Johnston said no decisions will be made until the orphans are accustomed to domestic life and handling. Each colt has been lip-tattooed with a number preceded by the letters "U S," indicating it is from the Pryor Range and is the property of the United States.

"WHOA can make no charge for these animals; and those who do receive a wild horse offspring will have quite a status symbol," Mrs. Johnston said.

Pryor Mountain is the only wild horse refuge, but under the new legislation, the animals elsewhere will have free range on the public domain. Most are in Nevada. It will be up to WHOA and the BLM to see they do not cause serious problems for ranchers by competing with domestic stock for forage and water.

Ranchers and many sportsmen, including fish and game department officials of several western states, opposed the recent legislation. They dispute the idea the horses are wildlife. They say there may be a distant relationship to the Mustangs brought to the West by the Spanish explorers but from a practical viewpoint they are simply domestic animals gone wild.

Money Box

BY FRANK R. SCHELL

From B.L. Filer: I have a coin which I found a few days ago. I would appreciate information on it.

It is about the size of our quarters and has a round hole in the middle. It says "Rupublique Francaise" and some small print which is worn too bad to read. On the other side is "Indochine Francise, 5 Cent, 1923." Thank you for any help.

Answer: Your coin is the regular issue 5-centimes piece of French Indo-China, minted from 1923 until 1938. It is made from copper nickel. French Indo-China, Laos and Tonkin. Japan occupied this area but at the close of World War II it was taken back by the French. However, the Communists, under Ho Chi Minh eventually drove the French out, and the territory was divided up into North Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam.

The coin has no value, since it is obsolete coinage, but collector value is 30 cents on a new coin.

From Mrs. E.F.B., Gooding: I have a coin the size of a dime. On one side is a girl lighting a fire and a smoking crater in back. The letters are "Ten Centavos," "Filipinos," and on the other side is a shield with an eagle on top, and United States of America 1902.

Have also been getting some $5 bills without "In God We Trust" on them.

Answer: Your coin is probably dated 1907 instead of 1902. It is a standard 10-centavos piece of the Philippine Islands, minted at San Francisco. Collector value on this piece, in new condition, is about 80 cents. It is still legal tender in the Philippine Islands.

The inscription "In God We Trust" was not added to Federal Reserve notes until 1963—hence you will find many of them without this inscription. The lack of this motto does not add to their value.

F.A., Twin Falls: Is it illegal to copy paper money on a Xerox machine? Would it be legal to do this for a talk on paper money? Do you have any information on this? Please answer soon.

Answer: Your answer is in Section 504 of Title 18, United States Code.

This section permits illustration of paper money, provided the illustrations are in black and white; are of a size less than three-fourths or more than one and one-half times the size of the genuine note, and appear in articles, books, journals, newspapers or albums for historical, educational, symposium or newsworthy purposes.

Also, such illustration must be accompanied by information about the particular item. You cannot copy paper money just for the picture you get from it.

The answer to your above question is NO—you are counterfeiting when you produce such illustrations.

From B.B., Twin Falls: I have a large shiny coin from Hong Kong. It has "Queen Elizabeth The Second" and the queen's picture. The other side says "Hong Kong" and "One Dollar" with what looks like some Chinese characters. Also, there is a lion in the center. Is this coin valuable?

Answer: It is neither valuable nor scarce. Brand new, a collector might pay a dollar for it; if he needed it in his collection.

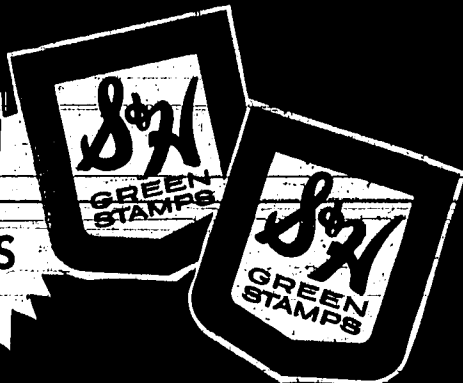

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, CO The Times News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301).

Junior Club plans 5th annual auction

TWIN FALLS — Time for creativity is at hand again as area businessmen begin to use their ingenuity and talents to create objects for the Junior Club's Art Auction.

The variety of items this year promise to be as intriguing as ever — a framed collection of foreign coins, a gourmet package of smoked trout and sausage, a pair of modernistic cube tables.

The wide divergence in objects will be an evening of lively bidding and entertainment during the club's fifth annual art auction set for March 21.

Mrs. Robert Halting is general chairman for the event which will be held at the Turf Club. An exhibit of the art objects and social hour are scheduled for 6:30 p.m., with a buffet dinner starting at 8 p.m.

Jim Messersmith will donate his talents again this year in auctioning the items. Tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. James Purves, 733-0518, or Mrs. Bill Morrison, 733-3990.

Proceeds from the auction will be donated to the Idaho Youth Ranch, Rupert, to help provide the new laundry facilities. At present, there are 36 boys living at the ranch. Three of the buildings there have been set up as homes which accommodate 12 boys each plus parents to provide guidance.

It is hoped that eventually four homes can be established, accommodating 10 boys each. The Idaho Youth Ranch operates solely on donations, and many of the boys living there at present are from the Magic Valley area.

Junior Club members working on the project include Mrs. Tim Kelley, Mrs. Ron Ballard, Mrs. Fred Ott, Mrs. Craig Neilson, Mrs. Kip Wood, Mrs. Ronald Dingwall, Mrs. Mike Greene, Mrs. Jay Sudweeks, Mrs. Dan Slavin, Mrs. Paul Beeks, Mrs. Jules Harrison, Mrs. Orval Bradley, Mrs. Rick Allen, Mrs. Robert Paine, Mrs. Ed Peterson and Mrs. David Follingstad.

Proceeds from past auctions have benefited the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, VM-YWCA, Harbor House and the Twin Falls Public Library.

Between $2,500 and $4,000 have been raised each year, and Junior Club members are confident that this year's auction will be as successful as those in the past.

11 readers prepare for CSI play

Rehearse parts

PATRICK CUNNINGHAM, left, and Keith Coates rehearse their parts in "A Man for All Seasons" to be presented in readers' theater style by the CSI Department of Drama.

TWIN FALLS — "A Man for All Seasons" by Robert Bolt will be presented in readers' theater style by the College of Southern Idaho Department of Drama.

It is scheduled March 23, 24 and 25 at 8:15 p.m. at the CSI Fine Arts Center Room 119, according to Fran Tanner, director.

A cast of 11 readers, many of whom have appeared in previous reading productions, will bring to the audience's imagination the 16th Century and the court of Henry VIII, of which Sir Thomas More, the man for all seasons, was Lord Chancellor.

The play, which received the New York Drama Critics Award in 1960, depicts the later life of More who was violently opposed to the Reformation and to Henry VIII's desire to divorce Catherine and marry Anne Boleyn.

The scenes show More as a man of great variety, intellect, and warmth who wishes to please his king but is unable to compromise his principles. Caught in a web woven by Thomas Cromwell, More becomes a hero of selfhood.

Reading Sir Thomas More will be Keith Coates, Murtaugh, whose college productions include "The Visit," "Oedipus Rex," "Barefoot in the Park" and "Modern Matters."

Thomas Cromwell is read by Patrick Cunningham, Rupert, who recently played the Chocolate Cream Soldier in the CSI production of "Arms and the Man." The Common Man is played by Marcia Lickley, Jerome, who has also been seen in "Twelfth Night," "Ladies Lib," "The Visit," "Modern Matters" and "Arms and the Man."

Reading Lady Margaret, Sir Thomas More's daughter, is Rhonda Miracle, Twin Falls, who has appeared in numerous CSI, Dilettante, and Magic Valley Little Theatre shows. She has recently played in the CSI readers' theater group that has toured "Modern Matters."

Jim Langley, Twin Falls, reads William Roper. He has appeared in "Ladies Lib," "Modern Matters" and "Arms and the Man."

Others in the cast include Bob Haynes, Hansen, who reads Master Rich; Michel Guillen, Twin Falls, who reads the Duke of Norfolk; Penne Main, Jerome, who reads Lady Alice More; John Bailey, Twin Falls, as Cardinal Wolsey; John Hunter, Twin Falls, as Signor Chapuys; Douglas Garland, Jerome, as King Henry VIII.

Since seating in the Cirque Theatre of the Fine Arts Building is limited to 60, it is strongly advisable to purchase tickets in advance. They may be reserved by calling the CSI Information Desk at 733-0554 from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., or they may be purchased from cast members.

Those not sold in advance will be available at the door the evenings of performance.

Readers theatre

Proceeds donated

TWO MEMBERS of the Southern Idaho Country Music Association, Lee Bagle, center, and Gary Bagle, right, present a check to Maj. George H. Driver of the Salvation Army to help repair the kitchen of the Salvation Army's Hospitality House in Twin Falls. The check represents a portion of the proceeds from the association's country music shows held in Filer in February.

Lenten season topic given at Filer Lutheran meet

FILER — "What the Lenten Season Means to Me" was the topic presented at the Peace Lutheran Women's Missionary League meeting in the church. Mrs. Eddie Lammers and Mrs. Virgil Anderson were in charge of the presentation, assisted by the entire group who gave recitations and sang hymns. Mrs. John Ortel read a number of selections from the Ideas Magazine for the opening devotional service.

Members reported on the paper drive and also on a number of sales the group has had. A committee was appointed to draw up a standard of charges for receptions. The group voted to buy a filing system in which to keep important correspondence and papers at the church. Reports were made on visits to members of nursing homes and the committee plans several special events for them at Easter. Mrs. Walter Mueller was hostess.

Mrs. Ernest Thaele is hostess for the April 12 meeting, which will be the first of the evening meetings. Rev. T. D. Johnston will present the lesson on Easter and Mrs. Harvey Maxson will direct the opening devotional service.

TF party slated

TWIN FALLS — Goodwill Club planned its 39th annual birthday party for members and families at 8:30 p.m. March 17 at Sunny View Recreation Hall.

Plans were made at a sack luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ivan Waring. Doris Scherupp and Marie Waring are in charge of table decorations. Nellie Orndorff, Goldie Severt, and Chloe Carr are in charge of the food. Lucille Smith is in charge of entertainment.

President, Nellie Orndorff, was in charge of the meeting. Dorothy McGinnis led the flag salute and Chloe Carr led the Lord's Prayer.

The coffee pot will be given away at the dinner, according to Chloe Carr, bazaar chairman. Eva Atkinson received a gift from her secret pal, Wanda Dimmick and Marjorie Kennon won the white elephant. Doris Scherupp gave the thought for the day.

Chloe Carr was pro-tem treasurer. Judy Kirk was a guest.

Soldier Mtn. Ski Patrol plans annual ham dinner

FAIRFIELD — Residents of Magic Valley are invited to enjoy an unusual social outing and at the same time contribute to emergency care of winter recreationists.

On March 18, at 5:30 p.m., the Soldier Mountain Ski Patrol will stage an annual benefit dinner at the Soldier Mountain Ski area. Proceeds from the ham dinner will be used to help the patrol purchase emergency equipment and this year will be used toward a new ski patrol building.

The Soldier Mountain Ski Patrol members also serve on the Camas County Search and Rescue Squad and they lend support to skiers or snowmobilers in case of injury or difficulties in winter terrain.

John Glick, ski patrol leader at Soldier Mountain, said this is the only means of raising money for the volunteer services of the group.

For several years the patrol has used a converted school building for storage of equipment and other patrol needs.

A new building, 20 by 40-feet in size is planned which would meet the needs of the patrol for many years to come and would accommodate a larger patrol in the event of additional development of the resort, Glick said.

There are now 19 members of the patrol available for services at the ski area or for snowmobile rescue work.

Plans for the March 18 dinner include serving from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. following regular Saturday ski activities. Lifts will be started again at 7:30 for persons wishing to go onto the hill.

A torchlight parade by patrolmen and other members will be held at 8 p.m. Films are planned following the dinner.

Mamie Shaw, well-known Old Time Fiddler, will provide music during the day at the ski lodge and during the evening.

Wives of the patrol members will prepare the ham, baked beans, salads, desert, coffee, fruit juice and hot rolls for the dinner and assist in serving it to an estimated 1,500 persons.

Cost for the dinner is a bargain with family rates and special prices for children.

In addition to the dinner, program and some late skiing, those attending will have an opportunity to take home valuable door prizes.

Sherwood's Sporting Goods has donated a pair of their best skis; Newton's Sports Center, a pair of top quality poles; Olson's, two insulated vests for skiers or other outdoorsmen, and Carico's Hardware, Gooding, a pair of highest quality safety bindings.

Now that nice club suit in dummy was about worthless. South drew ruff his last diamond in dummy and led the king of clubs. East plunked on the ace and South ruffed with his last trump.

Then South played ace and a small spade. East won with the 10 and if East had saved all his diamonds, South would have lost the rest of the tricks. But East had thrown a diamond on the third trump lead so East had to give dummy a club trick at the end but South was still down one.

BY HELEN WALKER
TWIN FALLS — From time to time I have had inquiries on what to look for when buying a used appliance. Since a good used appliance will give many years of service, as much care should be given to its purchase as if you were purchasing a new one. When shopping for a good used appliance first go to a dealer who handles the brands you are interested in. Many trade-ins are reconditioned and Parish Hall for a tasting bee.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Extension Homemakers Council will meet at the Idaho Power Auditorium at 1:30 p.m. Monday. The Sharp Achievement Award will be presented. The program will be on safety with Mrs. Ora Jones, safety chairman, in charge.

TWIN FALLS — The Council of Catholic Women will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at St. Edward's

Will the dealer be able to service the appliance if it is required? Will the dealer deliver and install the appliance? For how long will the dealer warrant the appliance — 30, 60, 90 days? Are parts readily available from the manufacturer? Does the manufacturer have a good reputation for dependability and long life of its products? Has the appliance been inspected, reconditioned and shop tested? Does the appliance show signs of rusting? Is the finish in good condition? The way an appliance has been cared for can often be a good guide to its value. Do the electric cords and wiring appear to be in good condition? Are timers, clocks and automatic features in good working condition? In the case of washers or dishwashers, check the condition of the hoses. Does the machine fill without being affected by water pressure? If it is meter filled, it will not be affected by water pressure but one with a time fill will be. Does the appliance have modern features? For example, will used laundry equipment be able to care for today's modern fabrics? A used appliance is usually purchased for economic reasons, and a great deal of thought and care should be given to shopping for it in order to get the best bargain for the money you spend. BURLEY — RUPERT — BUHL — TWIN FALLS

Statewide library contest outlined

BOISE — Two cash prizes will be awarded in a statewide contest aimed at encouraging Idaho citizens to learn the needs of their local libraries.

Spurred by statements on NBC-TV's nationwide "Today Show" that Idaho public libraries are badly lacking in book money, the 1972 Idaho National Library Week Committee is centering its contest around the theme of "What's Wrong With Your Library?"

According to Mrs. Candace Vroman, Idaho Falls, the state's NLW executive director, library users are asked to find out what their libraries could or should be doing, where they fall short of these goals, and, most important, what each individual can do to help his or her library improve.

Public, school, college and special libraries are eligible. Mrs. Vroman said Idaho libraries have made solid gains the past five to ten years.

She said there are obvious grounds still for the "Today" show's strong criticism.

Idaho has NO public libraries which meet minimum American Library Association standards.

About 230,000 Idahoans (nearly one-third of the state's population) still have no tax-supported library service.

Combining all the book budgets of all Idaho's 100 public libraries would not yield enough money to buy just one copy of each new book that will be published this year in the U.S. Many Idaho libraries in smaller towns, can buy fewer than 100 new books in a year.

Libraries in many communities are open only ten to fifteen hours per week.

Some junior high schools, and most Idaho elementary schools, still have no libraries.

Most high school libraries are well below standards in books, other media and personnel.

Buildings are often old and too small. School libraries are often in cramped, inadequate rooms.

Movie review

By DAVID WOODHEAD

TWIN FALLS — "Pocket Money" is guaranteed to come as a surprise. Especially anyone who has been lured into watching it by billboards boasting of a cast that includes Paul Newman and Lee Marvin.

These two have, after all, usually promised a worthwhile movie. But neither's presence in this flick has managed to save it from bombing.

Instead, since they both demand a "rather widespread" once in "Pocket Money" has merely accentuated the fact that so little of the film merits much attention.

If two actors as familiar and as popular as these are not able to hold the film together, who else would have been?

Plotless, or practically so, "Pocket Money" drifts forward at no more than a snail-like pace. The story places Newman and Marvin in the roles of a couple of cowboys who have taken it upon themselves to supply a cattle buyer with rodeo stock or cattle with the potential for becoming rodeo stock.

To meet their quota they traipse around Mexico from rancher to rancher, dicker, bicker and snicker. And all this before the eyes of an audience that is bound to become bored in record time. Such tedium as is exhibited by "Pocket Money" is sufficient to compel one misfortunate enough to be trapped with it to screaming vehemently that mercy be awarded him and that the printer's watching break and burn in the projector never to try anyone's patience again.

And even if one declines to allow himself the outlet screaming would afford his patience, the movie is just bad enough to permit one's tolerance of those who are finding outlets.

Every time someone watching the film jeers one feels not the resentment of being distracted but rather one is impressed with a sense of pride in the tastes of a fellow member of the audience.

Christian women set luncheon

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Christian Women's Club will hold a luncheon at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Turf Club.

Alice Lehman, Aberdeen, head bookkeeper for the University of Idaho Branch Experiment Station, will be the guest speaker.

Music will be by Barbara Willis, folklister.

The special feature will be spring accessories, with the Paris Co., scarves, handbags and jewelry.

All area women are invited to attend.

Reservations may be made by calling 733-0017 or 734-2109, Twin Falls; 326-5053, Filer; 536-2187, Wendell; 324-5855, Jerome; 436-3709, Rupert; 678-3457, Burley; 537-6819, Castleford, or 543-4062, Buhl.

Fairfield group activities given

FAIRFIELD — A women's auxiliary was formed in 1971 as part of the activities of the Camas County Soil Conservation District.

Mrs. Thomas Spackman is serving as president and Mrs. Dale Reedy is secretary-treasurer.

Already the group has had a set of books, "People and Their Environment," placed in the Camas County schools. Career and environmental booklets have also been placed in the high school by the auxiliary.

New farm practices have been introduced by the Soil Conservation Service. This included chisel plowing of 130 acres on one farm to improve the wheat yield.

Land leveling, straightening of water courses, improving springs and water holes and the seeding of various grasses have been some of the projects. The spraying of sagebrush and the improving of range grasses and forage has been a vital element in the county.

High Noon is chairman of the board of supervisors; Kelly Thomason, vice chairman; Thomas Spackman, secretary, and Earl Wilson, treasurer. Bob Probstenson and Dale Reedy are board members.

Reuben Bradshaw is work unit conservationist, replacing Larry Sorenson, who retired in May after many years with the service.

Honor roll announced

GLENN'S FERRY — School officials have released the honor roll for Joint School District No. 192.

Earning honors are seniors, Debbie King, Karen Thompson, Robby Messerly, Barbara Wertz, Kathy Wicher, Beverly Davis, Toni Meserole, Debbie Cox, Ann Wilcox, Paul Shrum, John Lawson and Yvonne Decker.

DOES YOUR HOME HAVE A FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE?

One of the most important things for any home or apartment must be to have a "friendly atmosphere."

But what can you do when "Wadsworth" you're decorating a room to help it have that friendly atmosphere? Here are some ideas:

The seating pieces, sofa and chairs, should be arranged in a group to invite relaxed conversation.

Make your room as not too dark. Add a little color here and there and make it cheerful.

Little things such as colorful and versatile ash trays are a help. Make sure your lamps furnish proper lighting aside from being decorative.

Shop for chairs that look inviting to sit in. Make sure you have some coffee and other tables that don't look too frail and unstable. Make sure there are table tops or other surfaces which can be used by guests without fear of causing damage.

It's an old custom to say "Make yourself at home" when your friends visit you, and if your home is decorated in a "friendly" way, you will help create that magic friendly atmosphere.

Speaking of friendly atmosphere, that's just what you'll find at our store.

Jerome miss,
Fitzwater
name date

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gellings, Jerome, announce the engagement of their daughter, Karlene, to Scott Fitzwater. Fitzwater is a son of Mrs. Beth Fitzwater, Boise, and the late Dale Fitzwater.

Miss Gellings is a 1965 graduate of Jerome High School and in 1969, received her B.S. degree from the University of Idaho. She is presently teaching at Encino High School, Sacramento, Calif.

Fitzwater was graduated from the Merchant Marine academy in New York and will complete his master's degree in industrial engineering at Oregon State University in March. The couple plans a June wedding at St. Benedict's Priory, Twin Falls.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Gloria, was recently married at a lovely church wedding. A reception at our club followed immediately after the ceremony.

The mother of a young man named Bill, with whom Gloria had been quite serious, came thru the receiving line. She greeted me with a warm smile and firm handshake, and said, "We certainly wish Gloria every happiness, but if things don't work out, maybe one day our Billy will have a chance on her second time around!"

Abby, what do you think of a person who would make such a tasteless remark at our daughter's wedding?

APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: Not much. But she obviously said exactly what she was thinking. (She may also have hit the punch bowl first.)

DEAR ABBY: Larry (not his real name) and I have been married for three years. I am 28 and this is my first marriage. Larry is 39, and he was married once before and has two children whom he adores. (They live with his ex-wife.)

I wanted a child from the start, but we were unsuccessful. Now several doctors have told me that I will never become pregnant!

I want to adopt, but Larry is just lukewarm on the idea. I'll be honest with you, Abby, one of the reasons I want a child is to hold our marriage together. Larry spends as much time as he possibly can with his own children, which makes me very jealous and resentful. I know it's wrong to feel this way, but I can't help it. I feel that if he has that much time and love to give to children, why can't they be OURS?

I don't have to work outside the home, and I know I would make a very good mother. What do you think?

WANTS A CHILD

DEAR WANTS: Of all the reasons for wanting a child, "holding a marriage together" is the worst. It would only compound your problems, if yours is a troubled marriage. And it's unfair to the child. Before considering a family, you need to resolve your feelings of resentment and jealousy. It's to Larry's credit that he's a good father.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 17 years, have two wonderful teen-agers and a darling 6-year-old. When I found out that my husband was having an affair with his secretary, I nearly had a nervous breakdown.

He admitted everything, begged for forgiveness, said he still loves me, and wants to keep our family together. He also said she didn't mean a thing to him.

The secretary no longer works for my husband. In fact, she is married now.

My husband told me he couldn't go on if I divorced him, but I don't think I can ever really forgive and forget. Also, I want to do what's best for the children. What do you advise?

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: Try a little positive thinking. Think in terms of forgiving, and you will. And one way of forgetting is to never mention it again.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the hostess who did not want to give out her recipes reminded me of this incident, which happens to be true.

A woman I'll call Mrs. Jones served her women's luncheon club a delicious casserole. A guest whom I'll call Mrs. Smith had to have the recipe, so Mrs. Jones graciously gave it to her.

The next day Mrs. Smith decided to surprise her husband with that casserole for dinner. She put the recipe in front of her and said, "It calls for leftover lamb, but I don't have any, but the leftover pork chops will do. Oh, dear, I'm out of mustard, but I'll use ketchup instead."

"It calls for chives, but I'll use that old clove of garlic I have in the fridge instead."

"And as long as I have turnips, I'll substitute them for carrots." (I think you get the general idea.)

Needless to say, the casserole was terrible and her husband was revolted.

The next day Mrs. Smith telephoned Mrs. Jones and said, "Some friend YOU are! You didn't even give me the right recipe!"

And they haven't been on speaking terms since.

REP. WILLIAM J. LANTING
"Enthusiastic support"

He said "Economic justification for the division is demonstrated by a total benefit cost ratio of 1.48 to 1, and a direct benefit-cost ratio of 1.1 to 1."

The interest rate used for this economic analysis was 4% per cent. Even under the higher current interest rates of 5% per cent and inflated costs the project would continue to have a favorable benefit-cost ratio."

Sullivan said after the hearing that with inflated interest figures and construction prices at 1972 levels, the overall benefit-cost ratio would drop to 1.1 to 1.

The direct benefit-cost ratio would then dip below the critical one-to-one level, he said. The inflated costs in 1972 would set the project cost at about $2 million, Sullivan said.

Dale Mosnier, director of the Salmon River Canal Company and chairman of the board, said "I would like to bring to your attention—the effect of our fluctuating water supply on our farming operation."

"It means it is very hard to keep in good crop rotation because there are years when you farm your complete farm and then the next year you may have to let two-thirds of it lie idle."

Lloyd J. Webb, attorney for the Salmon River Canal Co., said "This is not a case of farmers asking for the government to bail them out of their failures."

"Perhaps the most tragic loss of the Salmon River and Twin Falls County generally has been its young people. The exodus of young people from rural areas should somehow be stopped."

"Increased farm production resulting from irrigation water applied by the proposed Salmon Falls project could be assumed to provide annually a multi-million dollar stimulus to the area's economy," according to testimony by Earl R. Stansell, manager Southern Idaho Production Credit Association. He said there will be an estimated $150 average gross return per year per acre for new land brought under irrigation, and $45 additional gross income per year per acre on land to get supplemental water.

"Using the formula that each dollar of farm income generated revolves seven times in the business community, we are thinking in terms of a $1 million annual addition to the area's economy," Stansell said. Voicing the only opposition to the project was Floyd V. Stanger, and his brother LeRoy Stanger.

In a prepared statement, they said "If the Hansen Butte area located in the Milner Cottonwood Unit is to be included in the Upper Snake River Project," then we are opposed to the entire Salmon Falls Division project."

None of the lands included in the proposed reclamation project, and particularly the marginal lands surrounding Hansen Butte, can ever benefit in value on a per acre basis or compensate for the loss our farmland and our families will sustain by construction of the Hansen Butte Canals," they said.

In other key testimony: "I want to assure you that my neighbors and I enthusiastically support the project as designed and are willing to commit ourselves as stockholders in the Salmon River Canal Co. for repayment of the portion of the cost attributable to our area," State Rep. William J. Lanting testified.

The Idaho Speaker of the House said "As a private citizen, stockholder in the irrigation company and operator of a farm, I wish to indicate to you my personal support for the project."

State Rep. Jack D. Claiborn, House Agriculture Committee Chairman, said the two wells he has been using over the years have steadily lowered in respect to the static water table, even though the wells have been made deeper and more powerful pumps added.

Alan Erwin, Hagerman, testified against the first plan to pump water out of the Wendell-Deltrich-Jerome-Two. He said it would greatly deplete the water supply near Hagerman. He was in favor of the alternate plan of pumping water into the Snake.

Liberal Demos confer in T.F.

BY RUTH MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Liberal Democrats from the southern half of the state caucused Saturday in Twin Falls in what was termed by one delegate as an "overt" political movement.

The Democrats, who do not follow the Gem State's top two Democrats, feelings about Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, met to try to initiate some organized support for presidential candidates Shirley Chisholm, George McGovern, John Lindsay and Eugene McCarthy.

Sen. Frank Church and Gov. Cecil Andrus have gone on record supporting Sen. Muskie, but those at Saturday's alternative candidate caucus said all of Idaho is not "united behind one candidate."

They want to get Idaho's voting delegation to the Democratic convention in Miami to recognize this fact and to be representatives of the many segments of Idaho voting citizens.

It had been thought prior to Saturday that the Southern Idaho group might unite behind one candidate, probably Chisholm or McGovern, but it became evident that while the liberals are united in the anti-Muskie idea, they are not yet united in throwing their weight behind one of the other four Democratic presidential hopefuls.

In a practice legislative district caucus to select delegates to the state convention at Burley there were 15 delegate votes available, McGovern at first got 8, Chisholm 4, but enough

McGovern people swung over to the Chisholm side to divide the delegates at McGovern, 7; Chisholm, 5; Lindsay, 1; McCarthy, 1, and uncommitted, 1.

The Saturday meeting-goers, described as being "just a little left of Muskie," were as diversified as their presidential preferences. They included State Auditor Joe E. Williams, State Treasurer Marjorie Rhyth Moon, senatorial candidate Rose-Marie Bowman and Willis Ludlow, congressional candidate from Idaho's second district, and about 45 others who ranged from middle age to very young first-time voters.

"This is something different for Twin Falls, isn't it?" one delegate asked. "There's been no overt political activity in Twin Falls in my memory."

Jet schedules resume Monday

TWIN FALLS — Normal jet schedule in and out of Twin Falls will be resumed Monday. Paul Shouff, Hughes Airwest station manager at the Twin Falls City County Airport, made the announcement Saturday.

A one-flight-a-day arrangement has been in effect for the past two weeks and this followed a period from Dec. 15 of last year during which there were no flights because of a strike of mechanics.

But effective Monday service to Twin Falls will be the same as before the strike started," Shouff said. He added that, because of the intensity of the season, special flights from Los Angeles and San Francisco, scheduled on a Saturday only basis for Sun Valley passengers, have been cancelled.

Departure of the five flights daily from Twin Falls are:

Flight 725, leaving at 8:25 a.m. for Salt Lake City and Los Angeles; Flight 772, leaving at 9:40 a.m. for Boise and Portland; Flight 702, leaving at 2 p.m. for Boise and Seattle; Flight 775, leaving at 8:25 p.m. for Salt Lake City and Los Angeles; Flight 706, leaving at 8:55 p.m. for Boise and Seattle.

The station manager said that a total of 45 cities will regain Airwest flights Monday for the first time since the strike began. For many of them it will be the first air transportation of any type since last year.

Oppose Muskie

PRACTICE delegate selection to the state Democratic convention at Burley was held Saturday in Twin Falls during a meeting of Democrats opposed to Sen. Edmund Muskie. Those included in the pro-Shirley Chisholm group included Beverly Bistline, Pocahontas, and left, Rose-Marie Bowman and Willis Ludlow, both Boise, in background. Mrs. Bowman is a senatorial candidate and Ludlow a congressional candidate.

Soil cement plant to open at Burley

BURLEY — Klopfer Concrete Co., Paul, announced it will open a soil-cement plant, three miles west of Burley within a month.

The company sponsored a road and street seminar Thursday at the Ponderosa Inn to familiarize area representatives with soil-cement, which company spokesmen said is new to Magic Valley.

Attending were representatives from the Idaho-Portland Cement Co., said since soil-cement can be built from the roadway soil, which constitutes about 85 percent of the material needed, hauling and handling costs are cut to a bare minimum.

Larry Miller, an engineer from Olympia, Wash., told the meeting that cement treatment of base materials has been widely used for many years to provide better roadway bases and solve specific local problems.

Portland Cement Co., told those attending that "Soil-cement is an intimate mixture of soil, cement and water that is widely used as a low-cost pavement base for roads, residential areas and parking areas. Its advantages of greater strength and durability combine with low first-cost to make it the outstanding value in its field. A bituminous surface is placed on the soil-cement base."

C. Everett Curzon, plant engineer for the Idaho-Portland Cement Co., said since soil-cement can be built from the roadway soil, which constitutes about 85 percent of the material needed, hauling and handling costs are cut to a bare minimum.

Larry Miller, an engineer from Olympia, Wash., told the meeting that cement treatment of base materials has been widely used for many years to provide better roadway bases and solve specific local problems.

BURL — About 60 dead calves, cows, sheep and lambs were discovered this week in an unauthorized dump site west of Buhl, County Commissioner Merl E. Leonard said.

The South Central Idaho Health Department received the initial report of the condition early this week and photographed the animals. Friday Commissioner Leonard and Alan Parrott who supervises county dumpgrounds, inspected the site.

Leonard said there is a fine of up to $300 for persons found dumping dead animals and he said the Twin Falls County sheriff's office is investigating.

The site, Leonard said, is five miles west of the Black Bear corner in Buhl on property owned by the Buhl Highway District.

He said the area has been posted for no dumping. Nevertheless, the area has been used by residents of the Buhl area for some time against regulations, he said.

Buhl Highway District officials are cooperating with the county in the matter, the commissioner said. Equipment from the highway district was scheduled to cover the animals, Leonard said.

Dumping in the area including other types of debris has been going on for some time and in addition to the 40-acre site owned by the Highway District, an adjacent acreage, believed to be owned by the Idaho National Guard, is also being used as a dump ground. Leonard said he and Parrott met with highway officials to discuss a cooperative plan for cleaning up the area.

Either the area will be cleaned up and closed or will be cleaned up and taken over by the county as a regular dump site, Leonard said. There is a need for a county dumping site in that locality, he said.

The commissioner said it is the responsibility of each individual to dispose of debris and dead animals in a proper manner and through proper facilities.

Lumping animals constitutes a health hazard and violates state law and county ordinance, Leonard said.

Sheriff's officers in the Buhl area have been asked by Sheriff Paul Corder to patrol the site at intervals and issue citations in the event of dumping.

The road into the area serves as an access to the Buhl Highway District's gravel source, Leonard said, and in acquiring it the district purchased the 40 acres of desert land.

Although other cases of animal dumping have been reported, most involve only one or two animals, the commissioner said. Most of the county's regular dumps are now manned by an attendant and no such problems are coming to light.

In the Buhl area, the animals have been dumped within a quarter of a mile of several farm and ranch homes and while cool weather has preserved the bodies in the past, current warm weather would increase the pollution factor, Leonard said.

Shoshone editor

recovers

SHOSHONE — Ray Walker, editor of the Lincoln county Journal, is recovering from a heart attack at St. Benedict Hospital, Jerome.

While Walker is unable to work, former publisher Herb Lovo, Shoshone, is helping with the editorial work. Other former associates of the paper are also helping out.

Those include John Platz, who worked as a linotype operator and printer from 1922 until 1943 and again from 1945 until 1964 (longer than any other person since the Journal was founded in 1884).

Floyd Sprakes, printer from 1955 until 1968, is helping and Jimmy Egeradoff, the High School apprentice printer, is continuing in his post. Mrs. Ray Walker, associate editor, said Saturday Walker purchased the Journal last fall.

Mail mess

POSTAL OFFICIALS SORT through mail after a mail truck overturned Friday morning south of Bellevue. Driver Denis Ferron, 44, Twin Falls, was traveling north on U.S. Highway 93 and said he fell asleep and awoke after the truck rolled over. When he attempted to get the truck back on the roadway, it overturned and the truck box separated from the bed.

Electronic exams set March 15

TWIN FALLS — Certified electronic technician exams will be offered Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Vocational Building, Kimberly Road.

Electronic technicians wishing to take the exam should contact Mel Quile, C.E.T., at 733-4910 for details and application forms.

Passage of the C.E.T. exam in addition to four years of experience in the electronics servicing industry gives the equivalent of journeyman status to electronic technicians. The passing grade on the 12-section exam is 75 per cent or better.

The cost of the exam is $10. If failed, the test may be retaken after three months at no extra cost.

The new associate level rating for C.E.T.'s is now in effect. If the applicant passes the first section of the C.E.T. exam but not the second, or does not take the second part, or has less than the four years experience required for the journeyman rating, he may receive an associate level rating.

Festival set Monday

BOISE — Boise State College will host the annual Spanish Language Festival Monday.

More than 500 students and teachers of Spanish from schools in southwestern Idaho are expected to participate.

Wintertime fun for boys

Youth Ranch gets snowmobile

RUPERT — Many boys at the Idaho Youth Ranch have been enjoying winter more this year thanks to a Boise snowmobile distributor.

According to Lee Childs, executive director of the Idaho Youth Ranch in Rupert, the boys participating are those who have earned a special reward for their actions.

The boys have been able to do their snowmobiling right at the ranch most of this winter, except when there has not been sufficient snow. Then they move into the nearby mountains. The snowmobile was contributed by Ray Brandt, Boise, president of Western Power Sports, Inc., distributor for Polaris snowmobiles.

ARCO — All roads at Craters of the Moon National Monument are now open.

Over 10 foot drifts of snow still exist along the loop drive.

Winter sports such as snowshoeing, cross country skiing and tobogganing are popular as evidenced by 2,588 people visiting the National Park Service area so far in 1972 compared to 2,008 last year by the first of March.

The monument visitor center continues to be open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a 6 p.m. closing hour beginning April 15 for the spring months.

The hiking trails are still snow bound to an average depth of three to four feet.

Rupert chamber requested to urge restoration of development budget

RUPERT — Rupert chamber members have been asked to urge the Commerce and Development Department budget be restored.

Tim Brennan, executive director of the Idaho Retail Association, said the budget has been cut from $209,000 last year to $133,000 for this year in legislative issues as minimum revenue, gasoline tax and state wages for students, sales tax safety and health inspections.

Brennan asked the Rupert chamber to urge their area legislators to restore it to at least last year's level so important promotional programs for Idaho can be continued.

In their Thursday afternoon meeting, Rupert chamber officials discussed the budget and decided to confer with area legislators on the matter before taking a stand.

Chamber members meet weekly to conduct a telephone meeting with legislators from Boise. This week the lawmakers were unable to call during the noon meeting.

How much does electric heat cost?

1 Installation cost

There is a wide variety of electric heating methods, some as simple as wall-mounted heaters, some more complex with year-around indoor climate control. Every electric heat installation should include proper insulation for comfort and economy, and double doors and windows. Installation costs can be quite moderate, depending upon the method you choose.

2 Operation cost

Many customers who have changed to electric heat have told us their heating costs are about the same as they were with other methods. Costs vary with insulation quality and with family living habits. Electric heat requires no chimney; all of the heat goes into the home. It has no match for efficiency.

3 Costs for your home

An Idaho Power electric heat specialist can tell you both the cost to install and the cost to operate an electric heat system for your home. He can help you select the best type for your needs and budget.

Frigidaire!

Jet Action 1-18 Washer has a new kind of fill system for better rinsing.

Washes 1 piece to 18 pounds or any size load in between. No attachments to add or store. Infinite water level control lets you dial only the water you need.

Exclusive Jet Circle Spray! A better way to fill... the most thorough rinse you can get. A circle of 12 pressurized water jets around the top of the tub give extra rinse action during fill, deep rinse and spin. Only Frigidaire has it.

Frigidaire! re-invents the washer

The washer that faces up to the demands of change. With more flexible capacity, more control, and so many more improvements, we say it's "re-invented."

Washer Sanitize Setting. Helps you keep your washer fresh and sanitized. Just add liquid chlorine bleach according to directions and dial Sanitize setting (+). Especially helpful during family illness.

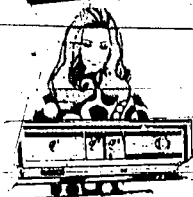

Jet Flow Lint Filter. Traps even the finest lint particles. Easy to get to, easy to clean. Out-of-way for loading and unloading clothes.

Automatic Soak Cycle. Enzyme or Regular. Automatically rinses, agitates, soaks, then spin-dries clothes, for effective pre-wash stain removal.

Permanent Press Care. A combination of gentle agitation, proper water temperature and controlled spin. Helps keep wrinkles from setting. Saves ironing.

Dependable! No Gears, No Oil. Jet-simple Roller-matic Mechanism. Less to go wrong. No gears to wear. No oil to leak.

Take a closer look. See why we say this Frigidaire Washer is worth the difference!

NOTE: There is a good possibility that you won't ever need a service man in your home. If, at any time in the future, there is a failure originating in the console-control panel simply, remove it, bring it to our shop for immediate analysis and repair.

If there is ever a failure in the mechanism below simply remove 2 screws — remove front panel and see what the trouble is — Every moving part is exposed. You analyze and in most cases your husband can repair it — It is so simple.

US dairy stocks said shrinking

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite an upswing in dairy surpluses last year, Agriculture Department officials say the government's once-huge stockpile of milk products has been whittled down to "barely a trace."

In early 1970, government records show, the government-owned stock of nonfat dry milk powder reached peaks of 700 million to 800 million pounds.

By the end of 1970, however, federally owned uncommitted stocks were down to 43 million pounds and by the beginning of this year had dropped to under 13 million pounds.

A report by department economist Friday detailed three reasons for the conversion of once-mountainous surplus stockpiles into comparative molehills:

—Milk production has been rising, but at a slower pace than in the 1960's.

—An increasing proportion of the milk is going into cheese, which usually moves to commercial market rather than into government stocks like part of the butter and nonfat dry milk production.

—And milk production leveled off in several other major dairy nations, thus opening an

Dairymen seek support boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Immediate action on a bill which would hike supports to 85 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity price, or $5.28 a hundredweight.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., went a step further by pledging to push for action on a bill which would set supports initially at $5.61, or 90 per cent of parity, and would include built-in quarterly "cost of production" increases.

Under Humphrey's bill, supports would be adjusted to the 90 per cent of parity level quarterly. This means that if rising costs push farm parity up, dairy price floors would rise every three months.

The milk federation said farmers' support efforts to

"Dairy farmers cannot be expected to carry the whole burden for holding the line on prices paid by consumers for food," said Patrick B. Healy, a federation official.

Farm news

Hansen attacks imports

WASHINGTON — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho criticized the Agriculture Department's decision to raise 1972 meat import quotas six per cent above 1971 voluntary restraint levels.

In remarks on the House floor, Hansen called the department's action "shocking" and said it will "clap up the domestic market for the benefit of importers and foreign producers at the expense of American consumers and cattlemen."

"The decision is obviously in response to consumer complaints about recent increases in meat prices," Hansen said. Earlier, he defended recent farm price increases, noting they have "served only to help farmers catch up for the great lag suffered during the last 20 years."

Hansen said he had received a letter last week from Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz saying that farmers are producing an adequate supply of wholesome food with a modest increase in the returns to farmers.

"But Thursday's action will result in a loss of meat imports and depressed prices paid to producers," Hansen said.

The Butz letter also pointed out that "while farm prices have finally climbed back to the levels of 20 years ago, those are much cheaper dollars."

In the meantime, Butz continues, farmers are paying 2.3 times higher wages for help; farm machinery prices are nearly twice as high; production expenditures doubled; and farmers' debts have increased five times over levels of 20 years ago.

6 Gem potato growers nominated

BURLEY — Six potato growers from south-central Idaho were nominated for two positions on the Idaho Potato Commission here Thursday night.

Grower District No. 2, which consists of five south-central Idaho counties, nominated candidates to succeed incumbent representatives Jack Allred, Murtaugh, and Joe Taylor, Rupert.

Under an agreement, one of the representatives must be from the south side of the Snake River and the other from the north side. The two representatives will be appointed by Gov. Cecil Andrus from the six men nominated.

The nominees from the south side are Clarence Parr, Burley; Philip Wheeler, Declo; and Howard Konrad, Paul. Nominated from the north side are L.A. Gillette, Paul; John Hansen, Rupert, and Melvin West, Paul.

Voters for the nominees had to be certified potato growers and not dealers in any way. That is, they could not ship anyone else's potatoes but their own. The voters were certified by CPA Ross Nielson, Burley.

The two representatives may serve not more than two year terms. The meeting was conducted by Bob Mercer, Shelley, processor representative of the Idaho Potato Commission and manager of the French Co. Potato processing plant at Shelley.

Clarence Parr praised the work done by the incumbents in their last two terms.

More vets employed, aide says

BOISE — The February drop in unemployment for Vietnam veterans to 7.4 per cent, nationally is the lowest figure in more than a year.

Donald E. Johnson, administrator of veterans' affairs, said the drop was due to a focus on the job needs of returning Vietnam veterans.

The latest Department of Labor statistics show a drop in unemployment for veterans 20 to 29 years old from 8.5 per cent in January to 7.4 per cent in February.

Cirrus clouds will be over the area by tonight and rain-fall will gradually approach the west.

The Green Thumb by George Abraham

Gardeners come up with some mighty exotic plant names. Take the "lipstick plant," for example.

No one wants to call it Aeschynanthus (good reason why) but its common name of lipstick plant is appropriate. This is a trailing plant with plain green leaves with clusters of maroon-brown flowers.

Inside each blossom is a bud, and with a little imagination you can see how it gets the common name "lipstick plant." This plant likes a semi-sunny or partly shaded window, temperature of 72 degrees and a humidity soil. Keep soil moist at all times and you'll have a plant with plenty of "lipstick tubes," the main attraction. Start new plants by tip cuttings rooted in sand-peat mixture.

We go from the lipstick plant to the "painted fingernail" (Neoregelia), a member of the bromeliad or pineapple family. Painted fingernail has green leaves tipped with a bright rose-red. This too likes a semi-sunny window, a soil mixture of peat moss or fir bark and loam.

With "lipstick plant" and "painted fingernail" we must add "lady's eardrops," or fuchsia. This fascinating house plant has bell-shaped pendulous flowers that can be pink, white, or violet, single or double. It does not like hot temperatures.

Above 65 degrees in the home, plants will not flower at all. Grow in bright window and give uniform supply of water. Too much water or poor drainage will cause plants to wilt and never recover. Flower drop is due to high temperatures or poor light. Aphids and white flies can be checked by using aerosol sprays.

GOOD PESTICIDE NEWS: Those of you growing a perennial called Pyrethrum or painted daisy (or painted lady) will be interested in knowing that this plant may furnish us with one of the safest, yet most potent insecticide yet.

Pyrethrins, found in Pyrethrum or Chrysanthemum coccineum have been a "natural" insecticide of plant origin for 2,000 years. A more potent cousin of pyrethrum is being used by entomologists at the U.S.D.A. station in Beltsville, Md. It works great against DDT resistant house flies and Japanese beetles, German cockroaches and even yellow-fever mosquitoes.

What's good about this insecticide made from plants? It's the least toxic to man and animals of all the pesticides, is harmless to plants, and insects do not build up resistance to it.

The flower heads of this chrysanthemum (Painted daisy) are dried, powdered and used in sprays and dusts. It kills pests by paralyzing them, has little residual effect. The main drawback is that it will kill fish.

STARTING SEEDS: Most seeds like a warm temperature (75 degrees or better) for germination. You can get this extra heat by placing seed boxes on radiators, in sunny windows or by using heating cables.

The day temperature may be high enough but usually at night things start to cool off and seeds are not warm enough, so they start to rot inside the seed coat. One reader starts her seeds in pans placed on top of the gas stove. The pilot light keeps them warm enough during the day, and at night she puts the pan in the oven.

After seed has germinated she moves them to an east picture window, where it's cooler. Seeds need warmth for germination, but after they are up, they like it cool for stocky, sturdy growth.

LIKE A LITTLE LOVAGE? Many readers of this department remember growing a perennial herb called "celery bush," a relative of the celery family. Lovage, as it's commonly called (Levisticum officinale) is hardy, grows as high as 8 feet, and can be started from seed now.

Leaves, seeds and roots are all used fresh or dried for their celery flavor in soups, stews and sauces. The hollow stems are eaten like celery.

Also called Love Parsley, our New England ancestors chewed bits of the dried roots to keep their teeth clean and to chase away the boredom of long and tedious lectures.

Perhaps this is why there's increased interest in growing some lovage. Seed is used whole and ground as aromatic seasoning in such foods as cakes, candies, stews, roasts and salads.

TWO-TONE CORN: Home gardeners are showing a great interest in the bi-colored or two-tone corns now on the market. These corns have ears with white and gold kernels. Some varieties to try include Sprite, Polkadot and Butter and Sugar.

Along with the bi-colored corn you might want to try a white eared corn such as Silver Queen. Maturing late, Silver Queen is packed with 14-16 rows of pearly white kernels. Some regard it as the climax of the sweet corn season. We don't want you to give up the yellow corn because there are some excellent varieties on the market, including Wonderful, Seneca Chief, Spring Gold, to name a few.

Plant corn in blocks. That is, sow at least 4 rows side by side for proper pollination. Rows can be 3 feet apart, and space the seeds 4 to 6 inches apart. Thin early varieties to 10 inches apart, and later kinds to 16 inches apart. If you crowd corn too much you get poor ears. However, if space is a problem you can crowd corn closer, even if you get smaller ears.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D.E. of Oakley: "Our amaryllis produced 4 beautiful blossoms, but I've never had any luck carrying the bulbs over. Can it be made to bloom again?"

Yes, the African amaryllis (Hippeastrum), one of the showiest of all houseplants can be saved, for another show next year. After flowering, keep plant growing indoors by watering regularly. Do not let soil dry out. Add a little liquid plant food from time to time. The secret is to keep the plant growing after it has finished blooming.

When chance of frost outside is past, plunge plant (pot and all) in the garden, in a semi-shaded spot. Top of soil should be about 1 inch below soil level. Rotted manure or compost can be placed around the plant. In fall, before frost, bring plant indoors and keep in a room at 60 to 65 degrees and stop watering completely. When foliage has turned yellow, cut it off just above the bulb. Leave pot dry and undisturbed for about three months.

NOTE: If you can't get your amaryllis to flower here's why: It must produce at least four to six healthy new leaves during the spring and summer before it can gain enough strength to flower in winter. Don't make the mistake of drying it off as soon as it finishes blooming. KEEP IT GROWING THROUGH THE SPRING AND SUMMER MONTHS.

C.F. of Castleford: "Every year I hesitate to prune our roses because of cutting off good buds. People say that the different kinds of roses all take different types of pruning and it's confusing. Can it be simplified?"

Don't be bogged down with a lot of rules on pruning. In a nutshell, it depends on how well roses come through the winter. In cold regions, heavy pruning back to living wood is in order, but in mild winters heavy pruning isn't needed.

The idea is to save all the good wood you can. Cut out any dead, winterkilled canes on any rose. Also cut out blindly-canes and any that are crisscross. Leave the strongest canes especially those from the bud union. Cutting out a certain amount of last year's wood is needed to stimulate flower producing growth.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my guide (illustrated) on HOW TO PRUNE ROSES. In simple language it tells how to handle miniatures, Polyanthus, Grandiflora, Pillars, climbers and Tree Roses.

Hagerman grabs A-4 state championship

Glauner, Butler provide win in final 2 minutes

LEWISTON (UPI) — The Hagerman Pirates took first place Saturday night in the class A-4 state basketball tournament by defeating the Highland of Craigmont Huskies 51-49.

Clark Fork won the third place berth by downing North Gem 50-54, and Cascade beat Midvale 58-54 to win the consolation round.

Hagerman led until halftime in the championship game when Highland's Roy Lowery tied it up 29-29 with a basket underneath. But the Pirates went into the lead early in the second half and stayed in the lead until three minutes remained and Highland took over 49-47 on a bucket by Tim Miller.

However, Hagerman came back with baskets by Doug Glauner and Doug Butler leaving the score 51-49 with two minutes left, the score which was the final one.

The top scorer for Highland was Steve Coley with 14 and Glauner led Hagerman with 11. It marked the third straight year the Magic Valley Conference and fifth district champion has won the A-4 championship.

In the third place battle, scoring was fairly equal during the first quarter as Clark Fork went out ahead 14-13. But the remainder of the game was a runaway as the Wampus Cat outscored the North Gem Cowboys 20-10 in the second stanzas and 30-12 in the third. They were ahead at the half 34-23.

Top scorer for the Cats was Bob Lowther with 25, while North Gem's star was Roy Hatch with 18.

The Cascade-Midvale tilt was a constant struggle in the consolation round with the lead changing hands several times. With four minutes to go in the game and Midvale out in front 54-53, Mark Bredendach made two points soon followed by a free throw by Mike Probst to help seal Midvale's fate.

Leading Cascade with 20 points was Mike Sackrell and Midvale was paced by Dennis Holmes with 18.

Hagerman advanced to the final round with a precarious 68-67 victory over the Clark Fork Wampus Cats.

Hagerman jumped to an early game lead and never relinquished it even though most of the fourth period Clark Fork trailed by only one point.

Clark Fork's Bob Lowther had a chance to win in the waning seconds when, with the score at 68-67, he was fouled and missed his shot from the Charity Stripe in a one and one situation.

Lowther wound up the day with game high honors at 23 points.

Texas upsets Houston 85-74 in NCAA first round playoff

LAS CRUCES, N. M. (UPI) — Sophomore Larry Robinson, playing with a broken bone in his right foot and obviously in pain, scored 23 points Saturday night to bring the Texas Longhorns to an upset 85-74 decision over the University of Houston in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Texas will thus join Southwestern Louisiana—a 112-101 winner over Marshall earlier in the evening—Louisville and Kansas State next weekend in the Midwest Regional at Ames, Iowa.

Robinson broke the bone last Tuesday in a playoff game with Southwest Conference co-champion SMU, but he played almost the entire contest Saturday night and led the Longhorns to as much as a 17-point lead in the first half over the cold-shooting Cougars.

Houston fought back on the shooting of forward Dwight Davis, who wound up with 25 points, scoring 14 points in a row at the end of the first half and the beginning of the second half.

That spurge got Houston to as close as three points, but the inside shooting of Robinson and the outside shots of Harry Larrabee, who finished with 15 points, never let Houston get the lead.

Houston got to within three points with four minutes remaining, but Robinson, who had left the game two minutes earlier grimacing with pain, came back into the game, rebounded and then scored a layup to boost the Longhorns out of trouble.

The Cougars suffered through an ice cold first half, trailing after the first 20 minutes by a 45-33 count. And Houston could only hit 13 of 24 shots from the free throw line.

Steve Neuse carried the scoring lead for Houston early in the game and wound up with 25 points for the Cougars.

Southwestern Louisiana, making its first appearance in the NCAA "tournament," played "race" basketball with Marshall in the first half of their game, but had only a 55-52 lead to show for it.

Skyline wrestlers win in freestyle

Skyline wrestlers won four matches in the Idaho State freestyle wrestling tournament Saturday.

Results were: 105 and one half pounds, Sam Orme, Idaho Falls, 114 and one half, Jim Anderson, Bonneville; 123, Tim Rogness, Skyline; 132, Buzz Baker, Capital; 143, Mark Rogness, Skyline; 154, Dan Warren, Cambridge; 165, Craig Chadband, Pocatello; 178, Tim Mason, Skyline; 191, Alan Hansen, Skyline, and unlimited division, Norm Cochran, Jerome.

In the junior high division at 80 and one pounds, Jed Jones, Idaho Falls; 89 and one half, Rich Berry, Teton; 98, Kim Morris, Blackfoot; 107, Kelly Galow, East Minico; 118, John Shay, Wob River; 129, Lyle Thompson, Snake River; 140, Steve Jensen, East Minico; 153, Tim Rogers, East Minico; 168, Ron Nelson, Parma; Heavyweight, Carl Andrews, Minico.

The winners of the consolation division will be entered in the United States junior freestyle tournament starting March 27 in Stillwater, Oklahoma.

South Carolina nips Temple 53-51

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — South Carolina junior guard Kevin Joyce hit a 25-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining Saturday night to propel South Carolina past Temple 53-51 in a first round NCAA Eastern regional game.

The Gamecocks held the ball for the final minute in setting up Joyce's winning basket after a field goal by Temple's Ollie Johnson tied the game for the final time at 51-51.

By winning, South Carolina earned the right to advance to the Eastern Regional semifinals Thursday in Morgantown, W. Va. The Gamecocks will face North Carolina, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion.

Joyce's basket climaxed an uphill struggle for the Gamecocks, who found themselves trailing by 10 points on two occasions. Temple spurred to a 10 point lead in the final half with 10:12 remaining, but South Carolina chopped away at that advantage, finally tying the score at 41-41 on a layup by Danny Traylor.

From that point on, the game was close. Temple took a four point lead with five and one half minutes left, but South Carolina earned another tie at 47.

Then it was South Carolina's turn as the Gamecocks fashioned a four point advantage. But a pair of baskets by Temple's Johnson evened the count for the last time.

Big Tom Riker led South Carolina offensively with 23 points, while Joyce added 12 and Traylor contributed 11. Johnson was the only Owl in double figures, with 16 points.

Ford leads Villanova to playoffs

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Villanova Chris Ford and Tom Engleby combined for 43 points Saturday night to lead the Wildcats to an 85-70 victory over East Carolina in the first round of the NCAA regional championships.

After shooting 48 per cent in the first half, Villanova outscored the Pirates 18-6 in the first seven minutes of the second half to take a 56-44 lead. Ford, a senior, poured in 24 points to lead all scorers. Engleby, a junior, put in 19 and sophomore center Larry Moody also scored 19.

The Wildcats dominated the first half with a strong zone press which forced 11 East Carolina turnovers. Led by captain Ford's 13 first period points, Villanova took a 38-36 halftime lead. The southern conference champions were paced by Dave Franklin's 19 points and Jim Fairley's 16.

The victory advanced Villanova to the regional semifinals where the Tar Heels played with Penn at West Virginia, March 18.

Timberline cops A-4 cage title

BOISE (UPI) — Kelly Lutes scored 18 points in the second half Saturday night as Timberline of Weippe downed the Prairie Pirates 70-62 to win the state class A-3 title at the Boise State College Gym.

The Middleton Vikings took third place honors by downing the Homedale Trojans 69-62, and the Teton Redskins topped New Plymouth's Pilgrims 61-58 to take the consolation round. The Timberline Spartans from North Idaho broke from a 42-42 tie late in the third period to pull away from their upstate rival Lutes, who finished with 18 points, scored four quick buckets as the Spartans took a seven-point edge into the final stanza.

Prairie, paced by Allen Holthaus with 16 points and the rebounding of Greg Baerbocher stayed with Timberline until Lutes' outburst. The Pirates fell victim to poor foul shooting in the final analysis foiled their bid for the state crown.

They could only connect on 14 of 31 from the charity line while Timberline was hitting on 18-24. For the Spartans, Don Jared with 16 and Bob Hartig with 12, plus John Raykovich with 10 also were in double figures. Jim Riemer was the only other pirate in double figures, finishing with 14.

Middleton was paced by outstanding guard and team leader 6-foot Dennis Meiler with 25 points in their win over Homedale for third place. Meiler's teammate center Don Hopkins at 6-5 played the supporting role, garnering 17 points.

The Trojans were led by Brian Vance with 22 counters.

Carolina defeats Maryland

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — Second-ranked North Carolina dazed Maryland with a sizzling press and held off the Terps Saturday night for a 73-64 victory in the championship game of the Atlantic Coast Conference. The win gave North Carolina a berth in the NCAA Eastern regional semifinals where the Tar Heels will meet old rival South Carolina in the opening game.

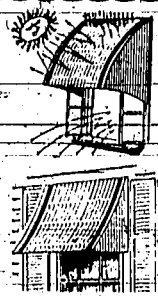

Marquette captain is investigated

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The senior captain of the seventh-ranked Marquette Warriors, 6-foot-8 Bob Lackey, was one of three players under investigation by the NCAA for possible professionalism, it was reported Saturday.

The probe, to determine Lackey's college basketball eligibility, was begun prior to the Warriors' 73-49 win over Ohio University in an NCAA regional game here Saturday afternoon, the Milwaukee Journal reported. Lackey, who is averaging about 14 points per game for the 25-2 Warriors, was reportedly drafted by the New York Nets in the American Basketball Association recent secret draft. He scored 20 points against Ohio University.

It was the Nets who signed 6-foot-11 junior center Jim Chones of Marquette to a pro contract last month when the Warriors were still unbeaten and ranked second in the nation.

CSI leaves for nationals on Monday

College of Southern Idaho's Golden Eagles, the smallest but quickest regional champion the school has produced yet, leaves at 8:30 a.m. Monday for their third straight visit to the national junior college tournament in Hutchinson, Kan.

Despite a lack of height, compared to other years and with some of the teams they will be facing, the Eagles could stand a great chance on its mobility. "I think we can win it. It all depends on that first game. In any tournament the first game is a key one. If we can get over our tournament jitters before the other team and win it, then you stand a real good chance, because some of the big and powerful teams are going to be upset," Coach Jerry Hale said before leaving Saturday.

CSI's first game could bring together the quickest two clubs in the meet. CSI will actually hold a height advantage over Ulster Community College of Stone Ridge, N. Y. But the quickness might be something else.

The usual Ulster starters are Marchell, a 5-11 guard who is described as very quick and the team leader; Knowles, 6-1 guard, described as super quick and a great jump shooter;

Koola, a 6-4 center, regarded as a good inside scorer but slow; Nixon, 6-0 forward, quick, fine leaper and generally described as a Rick Sobers type; and Link, the "horse" of the team at 6-5, 210 pounds. Link is very physical and strong, outstanding rebounder and jump shooter.

"They stay after you all the time," Coach Hale said. "Usually they're in a zone-trap defense but occasionally go man-to-man — but in all cases, they press you everywhere." Looking at his own team and buoyed by the Eagles' defensive showing against North Idaho, Coach Hale said "I think probably this team is in better physical and mental condition for the tournament than any we've taken there so far. I think we may have peaked right on schedule. We have some boys taping ankles now, but basically they're all in good physical shape. And we should be rested."

Regardless of the outcome of the first game, CSI will not play again until Thursday. "I'd rather have it like we did last year, play two games, then get the day off. We're going to be considerably smaller so we'll have to be hustling all the time. If we can stay through the whole tournament, we'll have to play three days straight," the coach said.

In Thursday's game, CSI will meet either home-standing Hutchinson, Kan., or Ferris, Va., both ranked in the top 20. CSI finished seventh in the polls. Those two are tough enough but after that would come — Seminole, Okla., described by Moe Iba as the best JC team he's ever seen, headed by 6-8 Greg McDeugal who is rated a pro prospect; Southeastern Iowa, of Burlington, which has 6-8 Moody, a close friend of Vic Kelly; Tyler, Texas, which boasts the second leading scorer in the nation, 6-4 guard Sam Hurvey who averaged 38.9, or Robert Morris of Carthage, Ill., an unknown quantity but also ranked.

Coach Hale said "the key to our success will be the quickness, to run on offense and defense. Our plan will be to have Kelly and (Gene) Stroebel make their guards pull-up a little sooner than usual and pressure the big men out so any inside passes will carry them away from the basket. We will need super effort on the boards."

Hale also had several bits of praise for his 1972 team. "I think it's the best I've ever been associated with for conditioning and endurance. It also adjusts better than any team we've had here. By that I mean it can take care of situations through knowledge and leadership on the floor without having to waste a timeout every time the other team tries something different. And along that line, both offensively and defensively, this team seldom is ever hurt more than a time or two by the same thing. What works the first couple of times down the court, isn't going to again at least not without a lot of resistance."

The regional tournaments also gave the NJCAA ratings a "well done." Seven of the final top 10 will be in Hutchinson, and two were eliminated in the last step there. Thirteen of the top 20 will participate.

Long Beach, Weber State post wins in NCAA meet

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI)—Weber State produced a crushing 91-64 upset win over 15th ranked Hawaii Saturday after Long Beach State overcame a 13-point first half deficit to whip Brigham Young 95-90 in overtime at the Far West regional playoffs.

Weber led the foul-plagued Rainbows 37-30 at halftime. Behind the 32-point scoring performance of Bob Davis, the Wildcats easily outpaced the Rainbows who lost four starters to fouls.

With 11:04 remaining, all five Rainbow starters had four fouls. Four minutes later Dwight Holiday was the first Rainbow to exit with five fouls. John Penabaker, Al Davis and Bob Nash of Hawaii followed Holiday to the showers.

Bob Davis of the Wildcats who had 24 points in the second period was aided by a 21-point output from guard Brady Small.

Holiday and Al Davis were high for the Rainbows with 14 points apiece.

Weber State fell behind 18-15 in the early going but caught the Rainbows 18-all midway in the opening period on a layup by Davis. The Wildcats never fell behind again.

Weber State meets defending NCAA champion UCLA in the Western regional semifinals at Provo, Utah, March 16 while Long Beach State and the University of San Francisco tangle in the other game.

Fifth-ranked Long Beach

game at 79-70. Then the 49ers raced to a 16-11 edge in the overtime period.

Long Beach trailed 39-26 with 3:21 remaining in the first half as BYU center Kreamir Cosic fired up the Cougar offense with 21 first-half points. The 49ers closed to one point four times midway in the second half after trailing 49-30 at intermission. Guard Glenn McDonald finally tied the score for the 49ers with 1:39 remaining on a short jumper.

Long Beach had an opportunity to win the game without the overtime when McDonald recovered a loose ball under BYU's basket with 32 seconds remaining. The 49ers raced down court and called timeout with 14 seconds on the clock.

The 49ers worked the ball into All-America guard Ed

Ratliff for the last shot which he missed, leaving the score tied 79-79.

In the overtime the Cougars raced to an 88-83 margin as guard Doug Richards hit five straight points and Brian Ambrosich added a lay-in. But then Ratliff took control hitting a lay-up and two foul shots and Lamont King dropped in a short jumper to put Long Beach ahead 89-88.

Three fouls called on the Cougars in the last minute gave Long Beach six more points and the ultimate victory.

Cosic and Richards paced the Cougars losing effort with 27 and 24 points respectively, but were unable to overcome the 49ers balanced attack.

Florida State, Marquette advance to NCAA semi-finals

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Florida State came from behind twice Saturday to squeeze by Eastern Kentucky 83-81 in a surprisingly tough NCAA play-off contest.

FSU now moves on to semifinal action at Dayton, Ohio against Minnesota. Earlier, Marquette had an easy time defeating Ohio University 73-40 and meets Kentucky at Dayton March 16.

The Seminoles fell behind 13 points the first half of the opening period but refused to change their game style as they chipped away at the Eastern Kentucky lead. By halftime, FSU held a 50-42 advantage.

Six Seminoles were in double figures led by Otto Petty with 15 points. Ron Harris had 13, Reggie Royals, 12, Lawrence McCray, 11, Ron King and Otis Cole 10 each.

Charles Mitchell led the Colonels attack with 23 points followed by Dan Argabright and Daryl Dunagan with 14 each.

Mitchell nearly pulled the game out in the final four minutes, tying the score at 77-77. However, he missed two free throws that would have given Eastern a four point lead with about three minutes left.

Eastern Kentucky chopped away during the second half at the Seminoles lead, finally overtaking Florida State on two steals that Mitchell managed to cash in to tie it up. Then, Bill Burton put the Colonels ahead 79-77.

King tied it up for FSU with 2:22 left, then popped in three straight points at 1:35 left to put the Seminoles ahead.

By the Marquette-Ohio U game, Larry McNeill led the winning Warriors with 22 points.

Bob Lackey had 20 points and George Frazier added 15 for the Warriors.

The best Ohio University efforts by Todd Lalich and Bill Brown.

Marquette used a full court press to jump to a quick 6-2 lead in the opening round action. Halfway through the first period they were out front 19-10.

Heard ties Blocker in Citrus golf tournament

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Young Jerry Heard took advantage of Chris Blocker's troubles Saturday to surge into a tie with the rugged Texan at the end of the third round of the $150,000 Citrus Open, but the always threatening Lee Trevino was only one stroke behind.

Heard, a 24-year-old Californian whose best finish was his tie for second—behind Trevino—in last year's Memphis Open, sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole Saturday to cap an otherwise unspectacular 2-under-par 70 round and, at 9-under-par 207, catch the 32-year-old Blocker who let a four-stroke lead get away when he skied to a 74.

Trevino, six strokes back at the start of Saturday's play, shot 69 and commented afterwards, "It's going to be mighty interesting around here in Sunday's final round."

The day's best round—was turned in by Jim Jamieson who shot a 9-under-par 63, tying the 3, the course record set the previous day by Australian David Graham. That gave Jamieson, who barely made the 36-hole cut, a 209 and left him only two strokes off the lead.

Blocker, who started the day at 11 under and stayed there through the front nine, ran into trouble on the way home and in addition to a couple of bogeys he also missed a couple of birdie putts on his closing holes.

"It's funny," said Trevino, who had been warning all along that his lagging game would begin heating up under the Florida sun, "but a man who just made the cut (Jamieson) has a good chance to win this tournament."

As for himself, Trevino said, "The old Mex is going to hit 'em pretty quick. I'm getting hot for the Masters."

Heard, a tall, quiet fourth-year touring pro, didn't pick up a stroke on Blocker during the first nine holes but closed to just one stroke with his birdie at No. 15 and then caught up when his long birdie putt at No. 18 curled in to the accompaniment of applause from the record crowd.

Blocker, who seemed to be securely in the lead and en route to his first major victory in his more than six years on the tour until his Saturday troubles, was obviously distressed. But, as he said, he's still tied for the lead and Sunday will tell.

Leonard Thompson and Sam Adams both shot 5-under-par 67s Saturday and shared a tie for fifth place at 210. There were a half dozen golfers at 211, including former Masters champion George Archer and Floridian Bob Murphy, who always plays well in his native state, and a huge logjam at 212—just five strokes off the lead.

Included in that 212 group was Jack Nicklaus, who shot a 70 Saturday, and Sam Snead, who will be 60 years old in May. Snead bogeyed his last two holes and had to settle for 73 after being in the thick of things for most of the day.

"My concentration was broken because they brought lawn mowers too close," Blocker said disgustedly. "I'd like to see them bring out an ice clearing machine in the middle of a hockey game."

Blocker said he thought his game was fairly strong but he got unnerved when he spotted some of the marshalls checking their watches. "We were a couple of holes behind but were trying to make it up."

South Africa's Gary Player, who had been expected to be a contender here this week, was pretty far back at 71-215 but that was a lot better than defending champion Arnold Palmer who missed Friday's cut by a stroke when he called a one-stroke penalty on himself.

The portly Jamieson, complaining of a restless night because of "stomach flu," sank nine birdie putts to match Graham's Friday round. Graham went the other way Saturday, shooting a 5-over-par 41 on the front nine and winding up with a 75 that left him at 213.

CARPET TERMS

are second nature to us, so it's natural for us to talk about Olefin fibers, about cut pile and backing and broadloom, shags and plushes, without giving a second's thought to the meaning of what we're saying, since these terms are as familiar to us as a carpenter's tools are to him.

But they may be a mystery to many of you, so let's look at a few of them. You've all heard the term broadloom, for instance, but how many know that this doesn't mean a type of yarn or fabric, but any carpet woven or tufted on a broad or wide loom, at least six feet wide, and often twelve or fifteen feet wide?

Fibers are the basic "thread" of the carpet yarn, many fibers being combined to make a single yarn. These fibers may be natural, like wool, or manmade, such as the popular nylons, polyesters and acrylics. Pile simply refers to the exposed or top surface of the fibers. When these are cut, the result is a cut pile, or plush. When looped, they create a loop pile. These can be combined in sculptured effects. Shags are loosely tufted long pile carpets, the pile being an inch or, inch-and-a-half long, or longer.

But words tell only part of the carpet story. Seeing for yourself is convincing when you look over our great collection. If words fail you, the carpets won't. And you can buy on convenient "terms." Come in to your carpet headquarters!

Moscow downs Coeur d'Alene for A-1 basketball crown

POCATELLO (UPI)—It was north Idaho's night Friday as the Moscow Bears won the Class A-1 high school basketball tournament against rival Coeur d'Alene 73-67 in a fast-paced game.

Coeur d'Alene took second place in the tournament while Pocatello squeaked past Highland by one point 58-57 to take third place. Munroe of Rupert won the consolation division dumping Idaho Falls 57-54.

Some 4,500 fans watched the championship game at the Mini-dome, with Moscow playing the entire final stanza with two of its starters having fouled out in the third period. 6-5 Steve Duncanson and 6-3 Mark Miller.

The only man for the Vikings to retire to the bench was 5-11 Vic Valente.

The 46 fouls called during the game slowed the action up. Moscow was whistled for 24 while Coeur d'Alene was stopped for 22.

The real story was the Bears rebounding prowess, as they came up with 40 rebounds to Coeur d'Alene's 25.

Vikings Peterson led all scorers with 22 points, tipping in 15 rebounds for the Bears were Steve Berglund and Kevin Goe-

Teams, however, failed to show the dazzle they displayed earlier in the tournament.

Less levels proved to be the hero for the Indians as he dumped in the deciding field goal with 20 seconds left on the clock.

In the consolation bracket, Toby Harding led Mimico to victory by chalking up 20 big points against the Tigers from Idaho Falls. Jim Harrington shared high game point honors for the Tigers with 30 also.

Missouri topples Oklahoma

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—Missouri broke out of its first-half lethargy and the clinging Oklahoma defense for a 76-62 victory and second place in the Big Eight Conference Saturday afternoon.

After trailing 39-38 with 15:30 remaining in the Regionally televised contest, Missouri produced an 11-point spree powered by three Mike Griffin layups to take command, 49-39.

The victory gave the NIT-bound Tigers a 21-5 season mark, best in the school's history.

Missouri put the game away with 7:15 remaining when layups by Al Eberhard, Mike Jeffries and Greg Flaker in a 20-second span gave Missouri an insurmountable 59-44 lead.

Wisconsin throttles Illinois

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Wisconsin forced Illinois into 27 turnovers while committing only 14 themselves, to end their basketball season with a 97-64 big ten victory over the Illini.

Wisconsin led by as much as eight points early in the game but only 37-35 at intermission. The Badgers built another eight point lead early in the second half but the Fighting Illini came back once again to narrow it to 53-52 with 13 minutes left in the game.

Wisconsin surged again and five minutes later held a commanding 10-point margin to control the game from that point on. Illinois out rebounded Wisconsin 50-41 but the Badgers shot more accurately, hitting an 49.3 per cent of their shots compared with 45.5 per cent for the Illini who had beaten Wisconsin 91-86 earlier in the season.

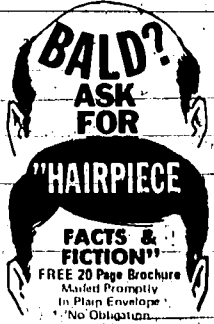

Nick Weatherpoon led all scorers with 28 points for Illinois and teammate Bill Morris, who grabbed 20 rebounds to lead that department, added 19 points. Wisconsin had five players in double figures, headed by Lee Oler's 21 points. He was one of five badgers playing his last game in a Wisconsin uniform.

Wisconsin finished the season with a 6-8 mark in the Big Ten and 13-11 overall while Illinois wrapped it up with 5-9 and 14-10 marks.

Spots remain in tournament

FILER — The spots are still available in the annual Magic Valley Outlaw basketball tournament, slated to run Wednesday through Saturday, reports tournament chairman Lee Bartlett.

Bartlett said the berths will go on a first-come, first-served basis. Those interested in entering a team should contact him at his home in Twin Falls.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is splendid for attending the service, lectures, meetings of your choice and for combining some very unusual and New Age ideas with those tenets that have long been found to be satisfactory, but which need a more up-to-date interpretation. Joining with friends in p.m. brings good results if you avoid arguments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some unexpected happenings occur in a.m., but these are only opportunities for you to get ahead faster. Do not argue with others. A higher-up is very cooperative and this helps you greatly. Get to bed early tonight.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can enhance your position with outsiders by doing something of a humanitarian nature early, but take no chances with the public later in the day. A higher-up has a fine idea you should listen to. Take it easy in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can get the data you need today that can help you put that new aim across that is dear to your heart. Avoid those who are antagonistic in p.m. Once your problem is solved, delve into something new, also.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have an opportunity to get responsibilities behind you quickly, so do not bungle them by procrastinating. Listen to the ideas which come to you. They are excellent. Enjoy own friends in p.m.

LIO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Finding out what associates expect of you in the future is easy on this day away from regular duties. Try to cooperate more instead of wanting your own way exclusively. Pick up that civic work you left undone and get it completed, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have made fine plans where the practical side of your life is concerned, and can do the same with the personal side as well now. Keep up those treatments to improve your health. Get those tasks out of the way early, too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can accept that invitation for the p.m. that can increase your happiness and help you meet charming and important people. Have a cheery attitude and attract others. Handle that business matter early that was hard during busy week.

SAGITTARIUS (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Something interesting happens at home today that will please you very much. Put these plans to work in a quiet fashion. Go out socially tonight and have a delightful time, but be home before midnight.

SCORPIO (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to get out to meetings where there is a high-minded and inspiring atmosphere. Study ideas you get in p.m. Start working on that new hobby, also, that is most interesting. Iron out the wrinkles in it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can handle that situation today that will get the right response from the right person, but return to your study in the early evening. Put that plan across that brings you more income quickly. Read some before you get to bed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Someone brings you a fine benefit now so be sure to show your appreciation. Social events can then be very enjoyable and happy. Put to good use those gregarious qualities you possess. Learn to be more self-watching.

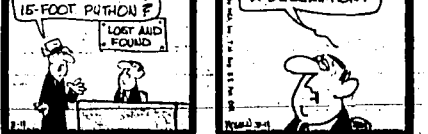

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can investigate that new philosophy that you feel will be helpful to you in the future and get the right results quickly. Stop thinking you can make it alone. Seek divine help and all is fine.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who dwells on doing the unusual and bizarre according to your standards as parents, but is actually a New Era product and needs to have freedom of expression in order to attain the greatest amount of success during the lifetime. A little discipline at the right moments is wise, however. Give as fine an education as you can afford. Sports are excellent.

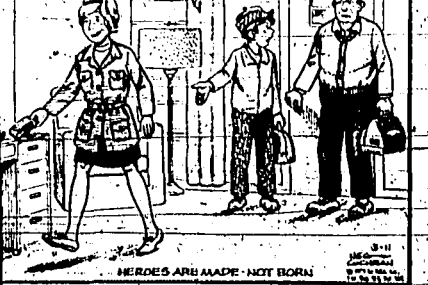

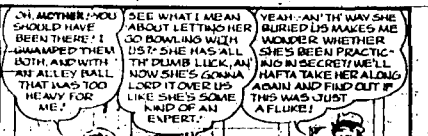

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Wife's Faults? She Has None

"Love to faults is always blind."

Ask each of 100 husbands to name his wife's faults, and only 11 of those men will say, "She has none." Or words to that effect. Poll after poll proves it. Query each of 100 wives in this manner, and only nine of such ladies customarily will claim to find no faults in their gentlemen friends. Among that batch of husbands, exactly 20 can be expected to say they'd rather not talk about it. Only 15 of the wives likewise most probably will refuse to comment.

A HUMMINGBIRD has about 1,500 feathers. This comes up because a client asks, "how many feathers on a duck?" Don't know, no figures at hand. Forget the duck. A robin has maybe 3,000 feathers. A whistling swan, more than 25,000 feathers. Why does it have to be a duck?

IN GHANA, most all the children for years bore one of only seven first names. Which translate out of the local lingo as Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, so on. Said youngsters were assigned the names of the weekdays on which they were born. Almost every seventh child, for instance, was called Kwame meaning Saturday.

QUERY

Q. "Understand there's a real simple treatment just developed whereby a tattoo can be removed with common table salt?"

A. Go it's said. A Navy dermatologist, one Dr. P. W. Crittenden, Jr., reports he has come up with such a technique. Three treatments of about five minutes each.

THAT WHALES do indeed dream when they sleep is known, although what they dream about remains a mystery.

MIGHT MENTION, also, the law in Helena, Mont., prohibits unrestrained giggling in the streets.

BOW MANY whiskers does a man shave off his face and neck every day? Just about $4,000, if average.

Happens more often than occasionally that a blind man, who regains his vision, commits suicide. After the sight comes the thought, and it's so sad. Soldiers who win wars do this, too. Their targets are dead. And innocent convicts pardoned, collapsed by justice. And dried-out cronies, their glasses empty of the enemy.

AM ASKED the real name of Harlem Globetrotter Meadowlark Lemon. That's M. Although he was christened merely Meadow Lemon, he made the legal change two years ago to Meadowlark.

U.S. projects double budget

WENDELL — Two major improvement projects, both federally funded, have doubled Wendell's proposed budget to $310,000.

Aside from the projects, city spending will rise 16.4 per cent over last year.

The two new projects are a $70,000 development of McGinnis Park and an increase of $64,262 for water and sewer improvements. Aside from these, the budget is $177,669 compared to $152,615 last year.

The total includes a new accounting system budget of $18,460 for sanitation. Last year this was a much smaller item and included in the general fund budget.

The McGinnis Park fund will come from federal and state matching money with local shares provided by the land site and donated labor. Most of the sewer and water improvement also will come from federal matching money.

The general fund is down this year to a total of $44,985 compared to $47,125 last year.

The library fund is $1,004.50 this year compared to $2,003 last year. Streets and street lighting funds are up from $22,796 last year to $28,010.

Water and sewer funds are up from $44,262 to $120,503. Fire department special funds are up from $2,000 to $4,000. Parks and recreation up from $4,240 to $5,811. Irrigation is up from $9,650 to $10,235 and sanitation is $18,460 for 1972, a new account.

Jerome safe found at river

JEROME — A 350-pound safe taken from the Rialto Bar in Jerome was recovered Friday.

Police Chief Howard DuBois said the safe and most of the contents except a sizable amount of cash were found on the south side of the Snake River.

He said the safe was found in the Snake River Canyon. Papers were scattered along the south rim of the canyon about a half mile west of the Twin Falls Gun Club.

Ralph Peterson, an employee of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, told officers Thursday he found what appeared to be the contents of a strong box along the canyon.

DuBois said it appeared the safe had been dumped over the canyon wall at this point and rolled to the bottom.

The police chief, who was sworn into office Thursday after he began the investigation of the burglary, said it appeared the safe crackers were not professional because an acetylene torch had been used to cut away the entire front of the safe.

DuBois did not say how much money was missing but said it was a large amount.

Thieves entered the rear of the bar Wednesday night by forcing a door and wheeled the safe to a waiting vehicle, he said. Investigation was continued.

Editor, 27, named as Smylie aide

BOISE — John Barclay, 27, editor of the Idaho Register, has been appointed press aide to Robert E. Smylie in his campaign for the U.S. Senate.

According to Red Hoffman, chairman of the Smylie for Senator Committee, Barclay is a graduate of Carroll College and a working newsman. He is a native of Twin Falls and was reared in Boise.

He has been editor of the Register, a statewide weekly Catholic newspaper, for the past two years. He was associate editor prior to 1970 and has worked as a reporter-photographer on various daily and weekly newspapers.

Two hurt in third TF crash

TWIN FALLS — In a third traffic accident at nearly the same point on Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Filer Avenue Thursday, two Twin Falls persons received minor injuries.

A vehicle driven by Pat Jensen, 36, was southbound on Blue Lakes at 7:45 p.m. She attempted to turn left and turned into the path of Larry E. Hess, 20, Twin Falls.

Both Hess and Mrs. Jensen were taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and released.

Damages to the Hess vehicle were estimated at $1,000 and $150 to the Jensen vehicle.

Hospital closure posed

BOISE (UPI) — State Mental Health Director Jack Steneck told a House committee today he will have to close Hospital North at Orofino if the legislature adopts as final a tentative budget for his division.

Steneck said he would have only enough funds to employ about five persons to maintain the facility for one year until the department could turn it over to the state land board.

Acting Health Administrator Robert Des Aulniers told the health and welfare committee the proposed budget is some $500,000 below the present fiscal year budget for mental health.

"We feel we're getting squeezed too tight," Des Aulniers told the committee, adding it amounts to "strangulation" of the mental health program.

Author charged

TF dental office opens

TWIN FALLS — Dr. Edwin M. Collins has begun dental practice in Twin Falls in an office at 1537 Addison Ave. E. He served in the United States Dental Army Corps from 1949 until 1953 with service in the United States, Japan and Korea.

From 1967 until recently he served as assistant dean for research and finance at the school of dentistry, Loma Linda University, Calif.

From 1969 until 1971 Dr. Collins was principal investigator for the evaluation of a programmed learning system in dentistry funded by the National Center for Health Services, research and development. He received his education at Andrews University, the University of Nebraska, University of Colorado and the University of Southern California.

Lincoln tax statements sent soon

SHOSHONE — Assessor Sanford Connell said Thursday some property owners in Lincoln County have not yet received tax levy statements.

The notices will be sent, however, as fast as data is compiled at the assessor's office, he said.

He said some taxpayers had inquired why they had not received their notices when others in the county had.

"It is simply a matter of making a few slips and doing final bookwork," Connell said.

MAGIC MOUNTAIN
 Magic Mountain has 80 inches of snow at the lodge and 102 at the top of the ski slopes. No new snow has fallen and weather is clear and sunny. The road is good with some wet spots and some new snow in the upper canyon. The area operates Friday through Sunday with bus service continuing Saturday and Sunday.
 Soldier Mountain reports 47 inches at the top, 36 inches at the lodge and no new snow. Temperatures are 35 to 45 and the road is good with some muddy spots in the lower area. The area operates Thursday through Sunday.

POMERELLE
 Pomerelle reports 1.1 feet of snow at the top of the ski runs and 2.6 feet at the lodge. The road is dry in most areas but rutted and muddy at the bottom. Weather is sunny and clear and no new snow is reported. The resort now operates Wednesday and Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

SUN VALLEY
ROTO-RUN
 Sun Valley has 71 inches at the top of Baldy Mountain, 57 at the roundhouse and 17 on the floor. Roads are dry and the resort has had two inches of new snow since Sunday. All bowls and runs are open and temperatures are between 40 and 50 during the daytime.

Rotorun lists 12 inches of snow with no new snow. Roads are dry and weather is clear and sunny. Night skiing has been discontinued for the season but lifts continue running Saturdays and Sundays.
 Snowmobiling is listed as good in Halley areas, very good in Ketchum and the South Hills and excellent in Fairfield.

Autos For Sale

Move on with the young one.

The new Mazda 808 coupe. It's in a class by itself. You'll find other cars with bigger engines and smaller engines. Some cost less and some cost more. But if you find a car for the same price, chances are it won't have the styling or standard features of the 808 coupe. Like a tachometer, rear window wiper, electric clock, and a 1600cc overhead cam engine. All that and more—including a little price tag!

Test drive the Mazda 808.

Vets section proposed in cemeteries

TWIN FALLS — A program has been implemented calling for five Idaho cemeteries which will have sections set aside for veterans.

John Price, Twin Falls, national public relations officer for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said cemeteries involved will be at Lewiston, Boise, Burley, Pocatello and Coeur d'Alene. Three sections have been set up so far at Lewiston, Boise and Burley.

Price released the information on behalf of Arnold Howard, state commander of the VFW, Elton Ashton, state commander of the American Legion, and Gordon Geiger, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

All three organizations have investigated the program and have recommended its enactment.

Each cemetery section is being set up with markers which will commemorate the veterans and their service to their country. Each branch of the service will be recognized on monuments being placed in each section.

Anyone with questions can direct them to Geiger at 1101 E. 18th, Burley.

The Merry Pet

Question: What becomes of those animals that are dumped off and never find homes?

Answer: This letter is a "plant." It may have been planted by the humane society, a homeowner plagued with strays, or a veterinarian who just saw a puppy killed on the streets. It deserves an answer.

The answer is they die. People who dump animals drive home telling themselves about the lovely warm home it will find and promptly forget it. They should have to watch what happens to that animal.

The animal is alone, frightened, and soon hungry and cold. Many run before cars and are killed or injured. Those wounded and uncared for will eventually die from infection or shock. Some die from a combination of malnutrition and overexposure. The majority probably die from distemper.

A few become garbage can raiders, living (hungrily) by their wits and ability to tip over cans. Those dogs that form packs may eventually die a painful and traumatic death from poisoning or being shot at a distance by the sheep rancher who must protect his flock. A fortunate few will be picked up and destroyed quickly at the pound.

Very, very few will ever have another home or another day free from hunger and anxiety.

Question: We would like to clip our own dog's nails but wonder if we can learn. Do you feel that a veterinarian needs to do this?

Answer: Definitely not — if your dog is tractable and you will spend a little time learning how to trim nails. You need a good sharp pair of Resco Nail Trimmers, the type with the oval guard on one side. Always place the guard side toward the foot and cut from under the nail a little at a time. The quick is easily seen as a pink area in the center of white nails. Dogs having black nails cause owners more grief since the quick must be recognized as a small dark spot at the bottom of the nail.

If your dog has dark nails you'd better let a veterinarian show you how much nail is enough. Owners are sometimes surprised to hear a yelp when no blood vessel has been nicked. The nerve may grow out past the vessel in some nails, giving the dog a tender spot.

Don't forget that most dogs have dew claws on the inside of at least the front legs. It is interesting that these claws are so named because while the others press the grass, these just brush the dewy surface. Obviously they aren't going to be worn down far on the dew and therefore need a little special remembrance.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, care of the Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—Many of us who no longer smoke have a lot of glass ash trays on hand. I have found they make neat and practical spoon rests on the stove. They are easier to wash than a smegged-up stove top.—MRS. C. A.

DEAR POLLY—An empty dish detergent container (particularly a round one) makes a great holder for storing half-used scouring pads. Cut about two inches from the top and three inches from the bottom; discard the middle section and then the top should fit over the extra-inch of the bottom to make your container.—MIM.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—Use a saucer as a pattern for cutting a circle out of the upper portion of a worn-out rubber glove, and have a wonderful "assist" for opening those overly sealed jar lids.—MRS. M. B.

DEAR POLLY—When taking a sick person, especially a child, to the doctor it is well to carry along a few plastic food bags just in case the person should feel queasy and an "accident" seems imminent, but without time to reach a restroom. This bag can be held to the mouth and then fastened and disposed of later. This is not a very pleasant subject, but it is practical and others may find it as useful as I have.—MRS. A. M.

DEAR POLLY—After bathing my poddle I take her outside to groom her in front of the central air-conditioning unit. It blows her dry as I brush. The warm air prevents a cold because she dries in such a short time this way.—MRS. C. M.

DEAR POLLY—Containers that straw berries or oatmeal come in can often be put to good use. The woven straw berry baskets make excellent trays for flower arrangements. They are also handy containers for candy, popcorn or prizes to be given to children. Thread yarn or ribbon through the holes and attach a ribbon handle. Small oatmeal boxes make great candy containers for children, as they can be easily covered with leftover strips of gift-wrapping paper and yarn or ribbon handles attached.—TRUTH

DEAR POLLY—An old broom or mop stick cut to the required length works very well as a sliding-door safety bar. When the door is closed, place stick in the inside track. The door can't be forced open from either the inside or the outside.—MRS. J. E. C.

DEAR POLLY—When my nylon and elasticized fabric girdles and panty girdles become limp and lose their firmness after many washings, I add a small amount of cold starch to the final rinse water. Afterward, they fit as well as when new.—ROXIE

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SEN. GEORGE MCGOVERN of South Dakota
You are asking for immediate withdrawal of all forces from Indochina. Where were you when the thousands of men were being sent there during the past 10 years?—W. F. T., New Smyrna Beach, Fla.

● I first warned against our military involvement in Vietnam in a speech in the U.S. Senate in 1963. I have opposed the war with every means at my command. I will continue to do so until our POWs have been released and our air and naval support of the corrupt government in Saigon has been terminated. The length and character of this war and the murky procedures of our commitment have made it easy for many to forget the early voices that were raised in opposition to this conflict.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

Many people must have mentioned to you that the character of Archie Bunker in "All in the Family" is reminiscent of Ralph Kramden in "The Honeymooners." Would you have considered the role of Archie Bunker, had it been offered?—Linda Wiseman, Lancaster, Pa.

● No. Carroll O'Connor is great, largely responsible for the success of the show. I suppose there are similarities, but I just wouldn't do the material they do. I think there are easier ways to get a laugh.

EOREDITH HEAD, fashion designer.

You create such exquisite fashions for the stars. Why are you only pictured wearing basic suits? Do you ever wear any of the lovely fashions you design?—Mrs. Helen Marlin, Riverside, Calif.

● The pictures you see of me—in my basic suits—are when I am at work. Then I feel I am a businesswoman, and I prefer to dress simply. However, I assure you that after working hours, I wear gowns just as beautiful and as elaborate as those I create for the stars.

FOR TWIGGY

Would you ever consider posing in the nude?—Mrs. J. M., Lancaster, Pa.

● I'm not a prude, but I'd never bare my body. I mean, what would my Mum think?

FOR JAMES FRANCISCUS, actor

What are some of the difficulties of portraying a blind man, as you now do on your program "Longstreet"?—Miss V. Simmons, Folly Beach, S.C.

● The biggest problems were learning to "unfocus" my eyes so they would appear unseeing and remembering to cock my head in the direction of sounds and voices, as a blind man would.

FOR CLARENCE WILLIAMS III, actor on TV's "The Mod Squad"

I once read that you never learned to drive. Is this true?—Bob Jennings, Tracy, Calif.

● I do know how to drive a car, and I do drive on the show, when the script calls for me to do so. However, I do not enjoy driving, and I do not drive outside my role. In my hometown of New York I always used public transportation, so I don't own a car.

FOR WOODY ALLEN

I hear you are making a movie out of Dr. Reuben's book, "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex." How can you possibly make a film out of that?—L. Smith, Short Hills, N.J.

● As director, scriptwriter and actor, I'm using the book strictly as a jumping-off point for the script. The movie will really be sexually far out. I expect it to get an X rating, despite the fact that there will be little or no nudity or strong language. That's all I can tell you about it.

FOR BOB HOPE

What year did you first entertain the boys overseas, and who were your entertainers?—Mrs. Bert D. Hodge, Johnson City, Tenn.

● It was in September, 1942, when I flew 16,000 miles to 35 camps in the Aleutians and Alaska to give 52 shows. In the troupe were Jerry Colonna, Frances Langford and Tony Romano. In June, 1943, I entertained in England. That was my first European appearance for servicemen.

FOR D. W. RABENHORST, physicist, Johns Hopkins University

What is the "Superflywheel" that is envisioned for the electric car of the future?—H. Heath, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● The Superflywheel can store many times more energy than previous flywheels, so an electric car having a Superflywheel instead of a battery would have faster charging, better range, acceleration and economy. It would also have longer life, and a better tolerance of extreme temperatures. With adequate backing, a Superflywheel-powered vehicle can be developed in only a few years.

FOR JOHNNY BENCH, catcher, Cincinnati Reds

Do you feel any different when you are playing in a game that is being televised than in one that is not?—Debbie Donald, Durham, N.C.

● I sure do. People across the nation, friends, relatives and admirers, are all watching to see you maybe for the first time. They form a lot of opinions and will discuss a play or hit for a long time. So the last thing you want to do is be the goat. You're onstage, so it's time to perform, not that you don't do this every day, but it's a little more exciting when the nation is watching.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking
Is Dangerous to Your Health.

WILL YOU SMOKE MY NEW KIND OF PIPE

30 Days at my Risk?

All I want is your name so I can write and tell you why I'm willing to send you my pipe for 30 days smoking without a cent of risk on your part.

By E. A. Carey

Here's what's different about this pipe. It's the first pipe in the world to use an entirely new principle for giving unadulterated pleasure to smokers. It's so different in smoking quality that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT under patent number 3267941.

It's different than any pipe ever invented. It smokes COOLER—MEL-LOWER—SWEETER—and DRIER. Even dyed-in-the-wool cigarette smokers find it easier to smoke and enjoy than any pipe, or any cigar they've ever tried. Some say it's as easy as switching from one brand of cigarettes to another.

GIVE IT 30 DAYS—You'll never go back to cigarettes again. No cigarette, cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

Here is the way of it: The hazards of cigarette smoking are not new. Long before the Surgeon General issued his nerve shattering report on SMOKING AND HEALTH, evidence that cigarette smoking was associated with Cancer, coronary artery disease, chronic bronchitis, and emphysema, was mounting rapidly. It was then that I decided to switch to a pipe. That was over 30 years ago.

Like most other cigarette smokers I just couldn't tolerate the goo, the bitterness, the tough bite, and that stale, foul, after-taste that results from smoking an ordinary pipe. As a result I dedicated hundreds of hours searching for the ideal pipe—buying all the disappointing gadgets, and never finding a single, solitary pipe that would smoke hour after hour on day after day without bitterness, bit or sludge. In disgust I gave up and went back to cigarettes—and of course back to COUGHING, WHEEZING, CHOKING.

It was then I decided to try to work something out on my own, something that would not leave my mouth tasting like the proverbial blacksmith's glove. Thousands of experiments and five long disappointing years later, almost by accident, I hit upon a solution. A solution so simple but so effective.

Please send me another Carey Pipe for my brother. I have about every kind of pipe you can think of. When in the Service, I purchased pipes in France, Germany and Switzerland, but this is the best pipe I have today. There just couldn't be a better feeling, sweeter taste than you get from the Carey Pipe.
E. A. Carey, Bloomington, Illinois

tive that it made smoking a pipe an entirely new and exciting smoking experience. By harnessing four great natural laws this invention gives you everything you want in a satisfying smoke. It doesn't require any breaking in, from the first puff it smokes cool—it smokes mild—it smokes right down to the last bit of tobacco without bite. It never has to be rested, and it it never has to be cleaned; yet it is utterly impossible for gorror or sludge to reach your tongue, because this invention does not allow the goo to form.

In appearance and in quality, the Carey Pipe is like any of the two or three leading World-brands. The bowl is made of the finest, selected premium briar, imported especially for this use. The bit is conventional in appearance—made of molded nylon—the newest and best material for pipe bits. The color and finish are what you would expect in any of the best pipes on the market. It is, in every respect, a pipe you will be proud to smoke. It is entirely free of the outlandish contraptions that have been seen on so many so-called "improved" pipes in the past.

Discover the thrill of this new kind of smoking. Accept our offer to LEND YOU a Carey Pipe for 30 days—trial use. At the end of the trial period, if you say the Carey Pipe has given you the greatest smoking pleasure of your life, you may keep it. But if you are willing to go back to your old smoking habit, break the Carey into bits, return the pieces and the trial will have cost you nothing.

Before we send you your pipe we would like to know the style you prefer so send us your name TODAY and we'll send you absolutely free our complete trial offer including descriptive literature and pipe styles so you can decide for yourself whether or not thousands of Carey smokers are right when they say the Carey Pipe is the greatest smoking invention ever patented.

Remember you have nothing to lose. One hundred thousand doctors have kicked the cigarette habit. YOU CAN TOO, THE EASY WAY.

Write today! E. A. Carey, 285C, 1920 Sunnyside Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60640

E. A. Carey, Dept. 285C, 1920 Sunnyside Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60640

Okay Mr. Carey. Send me your complete trial offer so I can decide for myself whether or not your pipe smoking friends are right when they say the Carey pipe is the greatest smoking invention ever patented.

STAR PROFILE/By Peer J. Oppenheimer

The Duke Is King! How Can That Be, At 64?

What? John Wayne—the No. 1 Box Office Star of 1971 in the 40th poll conducted by the "Motion Picture Herald"?

It's no joke; by winning the poll, Wayne sets a new all-time record. It marks his 22nd year among the top ten actors, an achievement matched by no other star. The closest runners-up are Gary Cooper, who was in the top ten 18 times, and Clark Gable, who made it 16 times.

His achievement is doubly amazing considering that he will be 65 next May 26, that his stomach has a tendency to protrude over his belt, that he has a double chin, wears a hairpiece (which he laughingly refers to as "my rug"), and beat much younger competitors like Clint Eastwood, Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman, Sean Connery and Lee Marvin.

So what's the explanation?

Wayne reminds me of a remark Shirley Maerline made many years ago when she talked about Liz Taylor, who at the time was Wayne's female counterpart. "The sign of a real star is being able to carry a lousy picture," Shirley had said. How well Liz and many of her contemporaries have learned.

Wayne's popularity is even more surprising because he is a man of strong opinions. Particularly when it comes to politics. The mere thought of Communism, for instance, will get the Duke's blood to the boiling point, as it did the day we were playing chess on location in New Mexico.

While he was concentrating on his next move, Wayne overheard a technician remark that we were living in a paradise in the United States. "You're damn right!" Wayne burst out. "If people were only aware of that! The workman is. That's why those Commies only get to us through the students and the professionals."

Wayne, was prominently mentioned a few years ago as a possible Vice Presidential nominee. He pooh-poohed the idea. "I don't like politics," he told me. "I hate them! I only speak out when I think something is important, I like to consider myself a liberal, but with semantics as it is today, I seem to be running backwards—fast."

What is remarkable about this man is that he's so straightforward in everything he says, does and thinks, even in the usually liberal-minded film industry, that nobody holds his conservatism

"I don't like politics," he told me. "I hate them! I only speak out when I think something is important. I like to consider myself a liberal, but with semantics as it is today, I seem to be running backwards—fast."

against him. I remember the time I flew to Mexico with Kirk Douglas, who, at the time, costarred with Wayne in "The War Wagon." Douglas is almost on the other end of the political spectrum from Wayne, and the two regularly got into heated arguments on the set. Yet Douglas lost none of his respect for Wayne. "With him, you always know where you stand," Douglas told me.

Wayne really admits he's old-fashioned. He has never made a film he didn't feel the whole family could see, and doesn't intend to change his ways now. And while he can be rough and tough and outspoken, he can also be gentle and tender and loving. Like he was when I saw him shortly after he got his Academy Award. There was a feeling of sadness as he clutched the Award in his hands. "I lost my Molly Brown [Wayne's mother, whose maiden name was Brown] just three weeks ago, on St. Patrick's Day," he told me. "I wish she could have seen this."

When I had dinner with Duke about five years ago, he told me that if he sold everything he had, he would just break even with everything he owed. This, he said, was due to the "help" of a business manager who shall remain nameless. Today he owns a beautiful home in Newport Bay, Calif., and a 17,000-acre ranch in Arizona, where he raises cattle and cotton. Most of all, he has his health. Seven years ago, he lost half a lung as a result of cancer. ("The doctor said I wouldn't know for sure for five years whether or not the operation was a success. Well, the option period is over, and I'm okay.") This close call changed his life. "It made me appreciate more what I have. Most of all, my family."

The Incredible Mother-Son Closeness of Jennie and Winston Churchill

By Ralph G. Martin, Author of "Jennie" Especially for Family Weekly

The strange and strangely moving story of a son who grew up to become "The Man of the Century," and of a mother who "left no stone unturned, no wire unpulled" to see that he fulfilled his destiny

My mother was everything to me," said England's man of the century, Winston Churchill.

And so she was. It was, perhaps, the most unusual mother-son relationship of modern history. Jennie was much more than Winston Churchill's mother: she was his sister, his sweetheart, his father, and, for a long time, his only confidante.

Winston later admitted that he had only four full conversations with his father in his lifetime. "If ever I began to show the slightest idea of comradeship, he was immediately offended," wrote Winston.

It was Jennie who got Winston transferred from one war to another war, at a time when this was never done in the British Army. Jennie sold his first short story, got him newspaper assignments, suggested, and arranged his first book contract, stirred in him his first serious interest in politics, campaigned for him, acted as a preview critic for his speeches. Winston Titer wrote of his mother: "She left no stone unturned, no wire unpulled, no outlet uncooked."

Psychiatrists generally agree that the influence of a powerful mother can have drastic effects on a son who has had no real father relationship. They claim that such a son can move to two extremes: either become a homosexual or a Sir Galahad. Among the mothers who raised Galahads supposedly were the mothers of Alexander the Great and Napoleon. On the other hand, Sara Delano Roosevelt, the patrician mother of President Franklin Roosevelt, tried to keep her son nestled close to her, out of politics and power—and she failed.

Jennie was determined not to fail. She was an American, full of American energy and ambition. She had married Lord Randolph Churchill, a man without any goals at all. Lord Randolph wrote his father, the Duke of Marlborough, that he hoped Jennie would make something of him. And indeed she did. She made him the second most important man in England, and he would have become Prime Minister if he had not died raving mad of syphilis.

Then it was that Jennie wrote Winston, "All my political ambitions are now centered in you." Later she added, "I believe in your lucky star as I do in mine."

And so it was Jennie who became the most influential factor in the development of her son. Besides the courage and spirit and drive she instilled in him, besides shaping his mind through their constant discussions and correspondence, besides introducing him to the people who helped determine his future, besides her own maneuvering for him in every area in which she could protect his interests and further his ambition, Jennie had no qualms about using the many men in her life—including King Edward VII—to push Winston's career.

Winston, in turn, had no hesitation in using all of Jennie's influence. "Are you still friendly with the King?" he wrote her, when he wanted something important. And he kept prodding her constantly, "You must get people to do things for me."

Jennie had not been able to give Winston too much of herself in his early years. The English had a tradition of "nannies," older women who acted as substitute mothers for children of the busy aristocracy. And Jennie was busy working full-time on her sick husband's career. In an age when women of her class never even went into the streets without an escort, Jennie single-handedly organized her husband's political campaigns, and drove her own carriage to knock on doors and solicit votes. She also had to divide her time as mother with her younger son, Jack. But both sons loved her deeply.

Jennie's sister Leonie complained, "I have done everything, and given my boys everything, but they don't seem to care for me at all." On the other hand,

When Winston was 21, he wrote his mother: "Your letter is the central point of my week. If I thought mine could give you half as much pleasure, I should write all day..."

she added, "Jack and Winston have helped their mother in every way, even by not going to the University in order to work, and both absolutely adore her."

"The house is full of you," 21-year-old Winston wrote his mother from his army post in India. "My writing table is covered with photographs... my cigarette box that you brought me from Japan... my books... Your letter is the central point of my week. If I thought mine could give you half as much pleasure, I should write all day... How I wish I could secrete myself in the corner of the envelope and embrace you as soon as you tear it open... When the mail comes in with no letter from you, I get in such a state of despondency and linger that I am not approachable by anyone."

"Well my dearest Mummy... I don't know what I should do without you..."

As a young man, Winston had few close friends. His brother Jack was five years younger, and there was still a great gulf between them. With women, Winston found himself shy and awkward, and this was true of him until his mid-thirties, when he married.

For a long time, therefore, Jennie was the only one to whom Winston could pour out his loneliness, the only one he loved, the only one who really believed in him.

Many mothers with such an adoring son might tend to keep him close, but not Jennie. Of course she was flattered by his deep love, but Jennie was determined to be neither a smothering mother nor a permissive one. It was difficult for her to write Winston letters that a father should have written, but she did, and whenever necessary. One time when Winston had overdrawn his checking account, Jennie wrote:

"I must say I think it is too bad of you—indeed it is hardly honorable knowing as you do that you are dependent on me and that I give you the biggest allowance I possibly can, more than I can afford... You seem to have no real purpose in life and won't realize at the age of 22 that for a man life means work, and hard work if you mean to succeed... if you have any grit in you and are worth your salt you will try to live within your income and cut down your expenses in order to do it. You cannot but feel ashamed of yourself under the present circumstances—I haven't the heart to write more..."

Jennie wrote a number of similarly strong letters, and they always brought quick remorse and fresh promise of reform from Winston.

But Jennie knew that Winston had a real need for a strong father image. For this job, she drafted Bourke Cockran, a New York-Tammany politician, a highly successful lawyer, a big, broad-shouldered man with an impressive lion of a head. President Theodore Roosevelt called him, "the greatest orator in America."

Jennie and Cockran had met in Paris shortly after her husband had died, about the same time that Cockran's wife had died. The two fell in love and would

"This was Jennie's formula for motherhood: love your children, help them in every possible way, but also live your own life to the fullest."

have married, but Jennie would not uproot herself and her son from England. Jennie was always proud of being an American, never lost her American accent and was called "Real U.S. Ambassador." But she knew that Winston's political future was in England and she would not desert her son or his future.

It takes an extraordinary woman to ask her rejected lover to take care of her son, but Jennie never hesitated. Cockran himself was more than willing. He would never have a son of his own, and so he met Winston at the New York dock, took him to his home and to his heart. Many years later, Winston said that Bourke Cockran had been the greatest single influence on his oratory—and then proceeded to quote long excerpts from Cockran's speeches. More than the oratory, however, Cockran gave Winston the strong father influence that he badly needed. It was a relationship that lasted through a lifetime of continuous correspondence and many meetings in England and the United States.

Another part of Jennie's great success with Winston was that she increasingly regarded him as an equal. "My mother was always on hand to help and advise," wrote Winston. "She soon became my ardent ally, furthering my plans and guarding my interests with all her influence and boundless energy. . . . We worked together on even terms, more like brother and sister than mother and son. At least so it seemed to me. And so it continued to the end."

Jennie could do this because she insisted on having her own life, too. Winston was a core of her life, certainly the central core, but she had other cores, too. Even before Winston became famous, Jennie was regarded as "the most important Anglo-Saxon woman of the world." She was an author of books, essays, newspaper articles, a pianist of concert quality who played duets with Paderewski; an artist, playwright, horsewoman, politician, and surely one of the most beautiful women of her time. In a world where women novelists usually took male noms-de-plume, Jennie became editor and publisher of a spectacular international literary magazine. At a time when there still weren't too many women nurses in the Boer War, Jennie converted a cattle boat into a modern hospital ship and took it down to the wounded, making her own inspection of frontline hospitals. Aside from all this, Jennie married two other husbands. One was as young as Winston, and the other—whom she married at 63—was even younger than Winston.

This was Jennie's formula for motherhood: love your children, help them in every possible way, but also live your own life to the fullest. Let them enrich your life as much as you enrich theirs. In doing so, do not be so permissive as to let them do whatever they want. And do not be so smothering as to insist they do everything you want. When they are children, give them the fullest responsibility of which they are capable. When they are grown, give them the full wisdom of your experience—but only as much as they want to take.

But again, only by expanding your own life to the utmost of your reach and talent will you be able to let your children go and grow as they should—and earn their increased respect as well as keep their love.

What happened to Winston Churchill is history. He became the Sir Galahad of England and the free world during its greatest time of crisis. He was able to do it because the woman behind him, the woman who shaped him more than anybody else, was his American mother, Jennie, certainly one of the great and unique women of her time.

No wonder Winston Churchill always kept on his desk a copper cast of a hand. It was his mother's hand, and his own hand was almost a replica of it. □

Facts You May Not Suspect About Yourself

True or False: If you have a friendly, outgoing personality, you'll be able to have a few drinks and show the effects less than if you're the quiet, reserved type. (See number 4.)

We can't see ourselves as well as others can. And human beings are so complex that often others have difficulty seeing us as we really are. This true-false quiz gives you some clues that may help you discover things about yourself you may not have suspected before.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you're conservative about taking risks—in business, the stock market, or whatever—it's a sign you're lacking in self-confidence.

2. If you have a wide variety of friends and acquaintances—of different types, ages and walks of life—this indicates that you have an inner sense of security and self-confidence.

3. If noisy conditions don't bother you when you're working, this indicates that you're a calm, placid, easygoing individual with a minimum of emotional conflicts.

4. If you have a friendly, outgoing personality, you'll be able to have a few drinks and show the effects less than if you're the quiet, reserved type.

5. If you have a particular fondness for jokes, gags, witticisms and comic situations, you may get a lot of enjoyment out of life, but you're likely to be lacking when it comes to sober, serious thinking.

6. You're a better judge of your own character and personality if you're an extrovert.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies at the University of Massachusetts have shown that persons with a conservative attitude toward risk-taking—who like to make a careful estimate of the odds before taking a gamble in any department—tend to be highly individualistic and have ample confidence in themselves and in their own judgment. Personality tests showed that people who lack self-confidence are found at two extreme poles: the compulsive risk-takers, who like to take long chances on all sorts of things; and those who are so cautious that they seldom take a risk of any kind if they can help it.

2. True. Studies at the University of Kansas have shown this to be very definitely the case. It was found that people who were lacking in a sense of security felt threatened by persons dissimilar to themselves and tended to avoid them, preferring to associate only with people who closely resembled themselves in character, temperament and general outlook.

3. False. Psychological studies have shown that people who are extremely high-strung and temperamental work significantly better in loud noise than more emotionally well-balanced personalities. And investigations have also demonstrated that persons with neurotic tendencies are often capable of doing their best work under incredibly noisy conditions.

4. False. Studies have shown that the outgoing personality is much more likely to have his ability impaired when he imbibes than the quiet, reflective type. The former makes friends easier, but the latter holds his liquor better.

5. False. Studies have shown that the ability to laugh at life's foibles tends to go hand in hand with intelligence and the capacity to tackle and solve tough problems.

6. False. Studies show that the introvert knows himself better. However, the extrovert has the advantage of being less prone to soul-searching and self-criticism. As a consequence, he tends to have appreciably more self-esteem. □

MICKEY LOLICH

The Fat Man Comes Into His Own

The Detroit Tigers' pitching ace Mickey Lolich is living proof that a fat man can succeed in big-time athletics. Lolich insists he needs an extra layer of flesh. "Big bolles run in the Lolich family," he says. "We're healthier when we're chubby." He added seven pounds to his 208-pound frame last spring and had a sensational season, winning 26 games. He also carried extra weight in 1988, when he won three games for the Tigers in the World Series, to clinch the championship. Lolich says he's the redemption of the fat man who watches him on TV and shouts to his wife, "Hey, Maude, get me another beer. I wanna be like him." Lolich pitches left-handed, but he's not a natural southpaw. When he was a child, a motorcycle fell on him and broke his left clavicle. He was told to exercise his left arm vigorously. After several months, the exercise had given him more strength as a pitcher. Still a lover of motorcycles, he now owns five, including one for his wife, Joyce. A native of Portland, Ore., Lolich prides himself on a "rubber arm" that never gets sore. For several years, he was "second banana" to Detroit's glamorous pitching star, Denny McLain. But Lolich came into his own when McLain fell into losing habits and was traded. Lolich never complained about his "second-class" status; is known for his good-natured temperament and generosity. Manager Billy Martin says of Lolich, "He's a class guy—as well as the best pitcher in the American League." —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

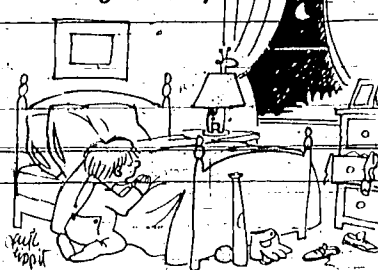

Worms in People: No Laughing Matter

Only animals get worms, right? Wrong. Public-health experts warn that well over 10 percent of the American population has pinworms. Nor is only among the poor or the diseased, prevalent. In fact, whites are far more susceptible than blacks, and the disease is not confined to any economic class or region. Children are more commonly affected than adults, and women more than men. The worms live in the intestines. The universal symptom of the disease is anal itching, an intermittent, severe itching that can go without medical attention for months. Children who demonstrate unusual scratching, nervousness or "crankiness," sleeplessness, weight loss, small skin ulcers or scabs around the anus or genitals should be checked by a doctor. And remember:

In any household where one person has pinworms, all are presumed to. —By John J. Secondi, M.D.

The Diet Watch

Are "Water Foods" Really Low-Calorie?

Our bodies are about two-thirds water, so a dieter can lose weight by drinking less water and eating more salt, thereby lowering his body concentration of water. But the dieter who does this is merely losing weight. His fat content remains the same. Water has no calories, so it is not fattening; yet that doesn't mean a dieter can go ahead and freely eat all the "watery" fruits he wants, like watermelon. Some fruits and vegetables that appear to be "all water" have other elements that make them fattening. Among the high-calorie "water" fruits are watermelon (90 calories for a medium serving) and grapes (80 calories for a small bunch). The best low-calorie "water" foods are cucumbers (10 to 15 calories), celery (19 calories for 4 stalks) and lettuce—only one calorie per leaf! —By Harriet La Barre

Jobmanship

What Kind of People Make Successful Salemen?

Even if you've spent years working with salesmen, you may find this surprising: There are some definite personality differences between the salesman who is moderately successful and the one who is very successful. But the differences probably are not what you expect. At the Industrial Relations Center, University of Chicago, it's been found that high-achievement salesmen seem to have three important personality traits in common: (1) They're strong on personal financial responsibility (this means they manage their own personal income well); (2) They marry early and begin their families early (this means they become providers at a young age, have a strong interest in family activities); and (3) They tend to have extremely stable personalities (you might even say, they're conservative, since they're more concerned with keeping what they have rather than planning for improvement or development).

What Kind of Movies Does the Man Who Rates Movies Like?

"I have special tastes in movies, although I claim no special expertise," says Jack Valenti, who, as president of the Motion Picture Association of America, oversees the movie rating system. "I remember the first time I met Darryl Zanuck, the fabbed producer. I told him I thought one of his finest films was 'Wilson' back in 1945. Zanuck smiled, as they say, wryly. It was a financial bomb," he said. Thus, my taste does not guarantee box-office success. The kinds of films I like best are history, suspense in the Hitchcockian manner, classic and modern novels brought to the screen, and political films like 'The Best Man' and 'Seven Days in May.' My favorite movies? 'Booket,' 'Young Mr. Lincoln,' 'A Man for All Seasons,' 'Cromwell,' 'The King and I,' and these splendid movies produced by Sam Spiegel—'Lawrence of Arabia,' 'The Bridge on the River Kwai' and 'African Queen.' I am not cheered by unrelieved dreariness and depression, the kind of films that beat at me with bleak admonitions." —By William Wolf

Can You Teach Charity To Children?

If you hope your children will become generous adults, interested in the welfare of others, you may be puzzled as to how to guide them. Which works better: explaining what charity accomplishes, or setting a personal example? You can try both; but they won't work equally well. Child-development experts who have experimented found that you can get some results simply by explaining the value of charity. But, for an even better response, it's a good idea to let your children see you putting your words into action. Children who saw the adults acting charitably responded more generously than those who were only "preached" at. Grandma used to call it, "Actions speak louder than words." —By Shirley Sloan Fader

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

By Marilyn Hansen

This Easter, Let the Family Serve Itself

Golden Glazed Ham with Rosé Pears, Butter-Lemon Asparagus, Noodles Romanoff, Savory Butter Biscuits and Crisp Vegetable Relishes make a tempting, colorful Easter or spring buffet.

GLAZED HAM WITH ROSE PEARS

1 5-lb. boneless fully cooked smoked ham
¼ cup Rosé Pear marinade (recipe below)
¼ cup brown sugar, packed Rosé Pears (recipe below)
Watercress

1. Preheat oven to 325° F. Place ham on a rack in a shallow foil-lined roasting pan. Heat ham according to directions on label.
2. Meanwhile in small saucepan heat Rosé Pear marinade and brown sugar, bring to boiling;

boil uncovered 5 minutes, until syrupy.

3. One half hour before ham is done, turn up oven heat to 425° F. Pour off drippings from pan, score ham fat diamond fashion.

4. Spoon Rosé Pear glaze over ham. Bake 30 minutes longer, basting with glaze 2 or 3 times.

5. To serve, place on large serving platter and surround ham with several Rosé Pears. Garnish with watercress. Serve any remaining Rosé Pears in separate bowl. Makes 10-12 servings

ROSE PEARS

2 cans (20-oz. size) Bartlett pear halves
¼ cup rosé wine or cranberry juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon mixed pickling spices
8 whole cloves
Few drops red food coloring

1. Drain 1 can of pears, reserve syrup. Drain second can of pears, discarding syrup.
2. In 1-qt. saucepan combine reserved pear syrup, rosé wine or cranberry juice, lemon juice, pickling spices, cloves and red food coloring.

3. Heat to boiling, boil uncovered, 3 minutes.

4. Arrange drained pear halves in a shallow glass baking dish. Strain spiced Rosé Pear marinade over pears, cover with plastic film. Refrigerate overnight.

5. Stir occasionally so pears color evenly.

6. Pour off ¼ cup marinade from pears to use in glaze for ham. Serve remaining Rosé Pears as an accompaniment for Glazed Ham or other meats. Makes about 16 Rosé Pear halves

LEMON-BUTTER ASPARAGUS

4 pkgs. (10-oz. size) frozen asparagus spears
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons lemon juice

1. Cook asparagus according to package directions, drain. Arrange asparagus in serving dish, cover with foil, keep warm.

2. In small skillet heat 3 tablespoons butter until melted, stir in lemon juice, heat to boiling.

3. Pour lemon butter over asparagus. Top with remaining butter. Makes 8-10 servings

NOODLES ROMANOFF

- 1½ tablespoons salt
- 5 qts. boiling water
- 12 ozs. ¼-inch-wide noodles or fettucine noodles (about 8 cups)
- 3 cups creamed cottage cheese
- 2 cups sour cream
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1½ cups chopped green onions
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup fine bread crumbs

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly grease 2½ qt. casserole.
2. In 8-12 qt. kettle add salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil.
3. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, 7 minutes, until just tender. Drain in a colander, set aside.
4. In large bowl combine cottage cheese, sour cream, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, green onions, garlic and pepper.
5. Add noodles and toss lightly with fork to combine. Turn into casserole.
6. Stir crumbs into remaining 2 tablespoons melted butter, toss lightly with fork. Sprinkle crumbs on top of casserole.
7. Bake for 25-30 minutes, until piping hot. Makes 8-10 servings

SAVORY BUTTER BISCUITS

- 2 pkgs. (8-oz. size) refrigerated buttermilk extra-light biscuits
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt

1. Preheat oven to 425° F. Separate and arrange biscuits in two 9-inch-round cake pans.
2. Brush surface of rolls with butter, sprinkle with the salt.
3. Bake 10-12 minutes until golden brown. Serve hot. Makes 20

CRISP VEGETABLE RELISHES

- 1 lb. carrots, washed
 - 2 bunches radishes, washed
 - ½ bunch celery, washed
 - 1 can (15 ozs.) large stuffed green olives, chilled
 - 1 can (15 ozs.) large black olives, chilled
1. Pare carrots. Cut into sticks; place in ice water, cover and refrigerate. Or make carrot curls: Cut carrots into very thin lengthwise slices with vegetable parer, fasten with wooden picks; place in ice water, refrigerate.
 2. Make radish roses: Remove stem and root ends from radishes. Cut thin petals around radishes. Place in ice water, cover, refrigerate.
 3. Cut celery into sticks; place in ice water, cover, refrigerate.
 4. To serve: Drain vegetables, arrange on attractive serving platter. Place drained green and black olives here and there on vegetables. Cover; refrigerate until just ready-to-serve. Makes 8-10 servings

1 1/4 cups sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
4 egg whites, room temperature
Dash salt
2 1/4 cups heavy cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
1 cup Fresh Fruit Compote, well-drained (recipe below)
Mini sprigs

1. In 2-qt. saucepan combine apricots and 2 1/4 cups water; bring to boiling. Cover, boil gently 30 minutes. Liquid will be almost gone.

2. Place 1/2 of the cooked apricots in blender with 1/4 cup water, cover, blend for 30 seconds, until very smooth.

3. Add remaining apricots 1/2 at a time, blending between each addition until very smooth. Use rubber scraper between additions to clean sides of blender.

4. Stir in 1/4 cup sugar, set aside.

5. Sprinkle 1 envelope gelatin over 1/2 cup cold water. Heat over boiling water, stirring until completely dissolved.

6. With blender at medium speed gradually pour in dissolved gelatin, blend until well combined.

7. Place egg whites in large bowl, add salt. Beat with electric mixer until soft-peaks form.

8. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar, beating after each addition. Continue beating until stiff peaks form when beater is slowly raised.

9. With same beater beat 2 cups heavy cream in chilled bowl until stiff. Stir in vanilla and almond extracts.

10. With large wire whisk, gently fold apricot purée into whipped cream. Add beaten whites in thirds, folding gently until combined.

11. Pour Apricot Mousse mixture into 2 1/2-qt. serving dish. Cover with plastic film, refrigerate. Chill several hours or overnight.

12. Just before serving, beat remaining 1/4 cup heavy cream with confectioners' sugar until it holds a soft shape. Spoon a ring of whipped cream on surface of mousse.

13. Garnish whipped cream with well-drained fruit and sprigs of mint. Makes 10-12 servings

FRESH FRUIT COMPOTE

8 cans (20-oz. size) whole pitted apricots, drained, or 3 cups cantaloupe melon balls
2 cups seedless green grapes
2 cups blueberries or strawberries
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

1. In large serving bowl combine fruits, sugar and vanilla, toss well. Cover, refrigerate. Chill 2 hours or overnight.

2. Just before serving, mix fruit lightly. Makes about 7 cups. 8-10 servings

GOLDEN-BLOSSOM EASTER CAKE

1 pkg. (18 1/2 ozs.) butter-flavor cake mix
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
Few drops yellow food coloring
Few drops red food coloring
1/4 cup apricot, peach or pineapple jam

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Grease and lightly flour 2 (9-inch-size) layer-cake pans.

2. Prepare cake mix according to package directions. Stir in lemon rind.

3. Scoop out 1 cup cake batter into small bowl; tint with few drops yellow food coloring to a pleasing yellow.

4. Scoop out 1 cup cake batter into a small bowl; using a few drops yellow and a few drops red food coloring, tint to a pleasing orange.

5. Divide untinted batter between the two cake pans. Divide tinted batters evenly between the two cake pans. With a spatula cut through batter lightly to create marble effect.

6. Bake and cool according to package directions.

7. When layers are completely cool spread top of bottom layer with jam. Frost with Golden-Blossom Frosting.

Makes 8-10 slices

GOLDEN-BLOSSOM FROSTING

1 pkg. (6.5 ozs.) fluffy white frosting mix
1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1/2 cup flaked coconut
5 large yellow or orange gumdrops
Few drops yellow food coloring
Few drops red food coloring
10 green spearmint gumdrop leaves

1. Make up fluffy white frosting mix according to package-label directions. Stir in lemon rind and coconut.

2. Using about 1/4 cup frosting, spread lightly on top of jam-topped layer. Top with remaining layer. Finish frosting sides and top of cake.

3. Sprinkle three drops yellow food coloring here and there on top of cake, repeat with red food coloring. Using spatula, swirl frosting to make a golden-orange color.

4. Snip yellow gumdrops criss-cross fashion and open slightly to make "blossoms." Place around edge of cake. Set green gumdrop leaves next to "blossoms."

5. Place cake on serving plate. This frosting is best served the same day. If stored overnight, do not use an airtight container.

Water: A Unique and Mysterious Substance

Because it's abundant and cheap,

we take it for granted.

Because it's scarce and priceless,

we shouldn't.

"What am I, Life? A thing of watery salt..."—John Masfield.

Water covers three-quarters of the earth's entire surface. There are 326 million cubic miles of it. Yet less than one percent of it is available for man's immediate use! All the rest is too salty, or locked in remote icecaps and glaciers.

Because water is so cheap (20 gallons for a penny), it is often carelessly wasted. But there are times when men would give all they own for a cup of it.

In 600 B.C., Thales, of Miletus, the earliest of the Greek philosophers, said, "Water is the original substance of the universe. Out of it everything has been made. To it, everything must ultimately return." He was not too far from the truth. Today we know that 93 percent of all atoms in the universe are hydrogen, and hydrogen makes up two-thirds of water atoms.

Our Life Depends on It

We are totally dependent on water. About 65 percent of the human body is water, and every physiological process, down to the function of each cell, demands it. Not only does water sustain all forms of plant and animal life, but it is a primary source of all food, since it carries nutrients to both plants and animals. It is easy to understand why ancient civilizations warred over water and collapsed for lack of it.

Land without water is land without life. The moon is sterile, barren, dead—and waterless. If its seas were filled with water, how different its relationship to the earth would be.

Water is nature's greatest gift to all growing things. There is vitality contained in fresh water that is as mysterious as life itself; some mysterious force that may not yet be fully understood.

From the beginning, man settled at fresh water sources. Today, the beautiful hamlet situated at the side of a stream is regarded merely as being picturesque. In early days, however, the stream was essential to the life of the community.

Too elusive to hold in the hand, water controls the geography of the world and the economic life of nations. Too much of it brings floods; too little of it brings famine.

Water Use

Water is never really consumed by man. It is merely used and reused. Most of the water that falls on land eventually is carried to the sea. There it evaporates and is drawn upward by the sun, where it forms clouds. It falls to earth as rain, snow, or sleet—and the cycle begins all over again. This is nature's way of purifying water. It is called the hydrologic cycle.

The total runoff of all streams in the continental United States averages 1,200 billion gallons per day. At the present time, we are using only 27 percent of this amount. Thus, we have plenty in reserve. But we don't always have it at the right time and in the right place. Water storage and distribution—not supply—are the real problems.

However, if supply does become a problem, we won't have to turn to the oceans or resort to rainmaking. We have another good source right under our feet, that we have not yet fully exploited. It is underground water. What few people realize is that in the U.S. there is almost 20 times as much water in the ground as there is water on the surface. Making underground water available for use costs only two-and-a-half cents per thousand gallons compared to 13 cents per thousand gallons for treating surface water. As an example of quantity, Florida alone has more underground water than all

All of the fresh water in the world originally comes from rain, snow, or sleet. The illustration shows how surface water is drawn upward by the sun, forming clouds. Nearly pure and soft as it starts to fall, it begins to collect impurities such as dust and smog from the atmosphere. As it seeps through soil and rock, depending upon the geographic locality, it dissolves and retains elements of hardness, rust, acid, unpleasant tastes, and odors. Wells that tap into underground water-bearing formations are a major source of the world's water supplies.

the water in the Great Lakes combined.

The technological advances of our civilization, and an ever-increasing population, are creating great new demands for more water and better water quality. About 345 billion gallons of water are used every day in the United States. About 60 gallons per day are supplied by municipalities for each person. But these figures quickly become outdated. Every year, our daily water needs increase by about seven billion gallons!

Today, man has the capability of producing water that is 99.999999 percent pure—a level which nature never attains. But nature far outstrips man in the abundance of its product.

Water is Unique

Even today, water is not fully understood. It's mysterious and unique—the only substance that exists as a solid, a liquid, and a gas, in the earth's normal temperature range—often at the same time and in the same place. While most substances contract when they solidify, water expands by 10 percent, becomes lighter than an equal volume of water, and floats. We call this, ice. Except for this amazing characteristic, lakes would freeze from the bottom up and life within them would die.

"Water has the power to crumble rock. In freezing, it exerts the enormous pressure of 2000 pounds per square inch. In his book, WATER, Emmett J. Culligan points out that "...the weight of one inch of rain on only one acre of ground is 226,610 pounds." Uniquely, the very flammable gas, hydrogen, burns in oxygen to form water, which puts out fires.

Water has a great capacity for absorbing and holding heat. This makes it easy to heat and cool with, and man uses it for both purposes. Water, because of its ability to retain heat, tempers the earth's climate. The oceans, for example, act to modify extremes of heat and cold. And as vapor, water shields the earth from the intense heat and cold of outer space.

Most remarkable of all water's unique properties is its ability to hold, or dissolve, so many substances. It is often called the universal solvent. This is fortunate in cleaning and in carrying away wastes, but it can also cause water problems.

Problems Ahead

In its long journey from the clouds to the faucet, water picks up, or dissolves, a little bit of almost everything it touches. Air seems cleaner and fresher after a rain because rain water literally washes the air, gathering dust, fumes, and tiny living organisms. Coursing over the earth's surface, water often becomes turbid, or cloudy, as it gathers solid impurities such as silt, sand, mud, and clay. Water can become colored as it flows through swampy areas and may also acquire objectionable tastes and odors from decaying plant and animal life. As water flows over the surface of the earth, and seeps into the ground, it dissolves additional impurities such as hardness, iron, and other minerals. All these are natural water pollutants and can cause water problems in the home and in industry.

What Are We Doing to Our Water?

There's no question that man is polluting his water, but nature itself is probably the biggest "offender."

Water pollution means many things to many people. We can't all agree on what it is. Congressional Report No. 2021 defines pollution as an impairment of water quality that interferes with intended uses of the water. What is pollution under one set of circumstances may not be in others. To man, green scum in the water is pollution. To fish, it's food. To environmental scientists, dissolved oxygen in water is a sign of health and life. In steam boilers, oxygen in water means corrosion trouble.

We can't even say that all toxic or "poisonous" substances are pollutants.

Chlorine is a poisonous gas. But under conditions of proper use and control, its addition to water has reduced our death rate from typhoid fever from 32 per 100,000 people in 1908, to almost zero in 1971. The addition to water of controlled amounts of another toxic substance, fluoride, has resulted in a 60 percent decrease in dental decay in the last 25 years.

To live is to pollute. Man cannot avoid generating waste products. He cannot avoid altering water or changing its quality. But even before man came on the scene, water was being polluted. Nature was dirtying it, and on a grand scale. Water in nature has never been pure.

The Menace Few Recognize

By far, nature is the worst polluter of water. Man alters the environment, but he is only a minor force as compared with volcanoes, earthquakes, hurricanes, floods, drought, erosion, and other natural forces. Nature has changed and is still constantly changing the face of the earth and of everything on it, including water. It has brought lakes, rivers, and oceans into being and then made them age, die, and disappear. It has changed the variety and number of creatures both on land and in the sea, and the process still continues. The dinosaur and the dodo bird disappeared without interference by man. Dr. William T. Pecora, former Director of the U.S. Geological Survey, summed it up when he said, "Natural earth processes are by far the principal agents in modifying our environment."

Indeed, the pollution of lakes and rivers isn't news. Lake Michigan's "Green Bay" was that color, because of algae, back in Indian days. The Indians named the Missouri "Big Muddy" long before Columbus arrived. The Mississippi is also polluted by nature, carrying a load of more than two million tons (40,000 freight cars) of earth a day to the Gulf of Mexico!

We think of water from natural springs as being pure and beneficial to health, but the converse is often true. For example, the springs feeding the Arkansas and Red Rivers carry 17 tons of salt per minute. New Mexico's Lemonade Springs have a high content of sulfuric acid. And Colorado's Asure Yampah Spring has eight times more radium than the Public Health Service sets as a safe limit.

Agriculture is also a major water polluter. Farm operations produce a tremendous amount of sediment from erosion. Also important are solid wastes from animals, which are no longer returned to the land. For example, one steer has the solid waste equivalent of 16.4 people. Thus, a feed-lot of 10,000 cattle has the solid waste equivalent of a city of 164,000 population! Today, animal wastes in the U.S. amount to about 2 billion tons a year—eight times as much as human wastes. Another major area of agricultural pollution is the concentration of mineral salts in irrigation, due to evaporation and transpiration through plants. Mineral concentrations of irrigation drainage water may be from 3 to 10 times that of the water used. Many civilizations have fallen because their soil became too salty to grow crops. In addition, the water running off of

Here is one of the tragic dangers of our society. This river, which once abounded with fish and wildlife, is now dead. It was not spoiled by nature, but by man himself.

Remember this once-familiar sight? Virtually every community had its "fishin' hole." Now comparatively few areas have such a facility—and those that remain are being fouled at an alarming rate.

Other major water polluters are municipalities and industry. Principal pollution from cities is incompletely treated human wastes, and a wide variety of waste materials from people and from commercial and industrial establishments within the cities. More than 90 percent of the water used by self-supplied industry is for cooling, which does not normally cause pollution. Industry also may discharge a wide variety of potential pollutants, which can include poisonous wastes.

Growing urbanization, the population explosion, the growth of agricultural and industrial technology—all point to increased pollution of our water supplies.

But this increase in pollution need not affect our health, nor our commercial-industrial economy. For between raw water sources and water's ultimate use stand both public and private water treatment systems. Today, we can remove all of the toxic and undesirable pollutants contributed by nature or added by man. We not only can purify water to high quality for drinking, but we can prepare water which meets extremely high water quality standards demanded in food processing, beverage preparation, pharmaceutical manufacturing, medicine, and industry.

An Enormous Industry

A $50 billion industry is engaged in the huge job of converting raw water into the water that flows from the faucet. Actually, municipally treated water is a "manufactured" product. The process of manufacturing may include mixing, settling, filtration, and disinfection.

The dedication and skill of the American water utilities have made our community water supplies the safest in the world. The incidence of waterborne disease is at an all-time low. Although our water is invariably safe, it is not always of the quality that's best for its intended use.

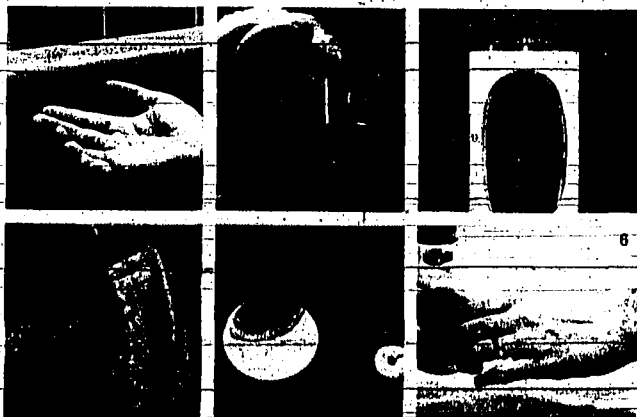

Of necessity, community-supplied water is an all-purpose product. It makes little sense to refine all water to the highest drinking water standard, or to soften it to the degree that is best for bathing, laundering, and dishwashing, when 98 percent of it will be used for such other purposes as watering lawns, flushing away wastes, fighting fires, and for a variety of commercial and industrial uses. For specific uses in the home and industry, American technology has provided compact, point-of-use water softening and conditioning products which can further improve community water to exactly the kind that's best for drinking, bathing, laundering, dishwashing, cooling, industrial processing, or artificial kidney machines.

You Can Join in the Fight Against Pollution

There are numerous anti-pollution organizations in the nation that are making progress in the campaign against pollution. These conservation groups recognize the urgency of combatting water, air, and land pollution and providing a more livable environment. In your own community and region, these groups deserve your all-out cooperation and support.

Six Everyday Problems Caused by Hard Water

- 1—BATHTUB RING is a curd-like scum caused by combining bath soap with hard water. This unpleasant substance, which sticks to almost everything it touches, makes extra work and wastes soap. Because it cannot be completely rinsed from the skin in hard water, it can cause a feeling of dryness and itching.
- 2—A FILM OF HARD WATER soap curd on dishes, silverware and utensils can interfere with cleanliness and sanitation. It causes unsightly spots on glassware.
- 3—WATER HEATERS become encrusted with rock-like hard water scale.
- 4—WASHABLE FABRICS retain hard water soap curd deposits. The fibres become dull and gray. They get brittle and break, causing clothes to wear out faster than they should.
- 5—INSIDES OF PIPING can build up with hardness minerals and scale, causing hot water pipes to become clogged.
- 6—HARDNESS MINERALS can cause soreness when hands are kept in water for frequent periods such as in dishwashing.

Soft, Conditioned Household Water

It's a personal way you can participate in the fight against water pollution—and it can mean better health, beauty, family living.

Modern appliances make it easy to condition water to improve its quality. The most popularly used conditioning processes are softening; filtering; removing iron, sulfur, silt, or sediment; purifying and neutralizing corrosive acidity.

Since 85 percent of all water supplies are hard, softening is the most widespread conditioning process. Millions of American homes have water softeners installed. Soft water is more pleasant to use and it cleans better. Less well-known are soft water's beneficial effects on health. Almost everyone is familiar with the "ring around the tub" caused by hard water. This grimy ring is soap curd. In dishwashing and laundering, softened water promotes cleanliness and sanitation since soap curds do not form.

By hand or machine, dishes, glassware, and silver wash spot-free, sanitary-clean—and they dry to a gleaming sparkle without towelings. All washables come cleaner, brighter, feel softer. No wonder that leading home laundry equipment makers recommend the use of soft water.

Many common illnesses can be transmitted by hand contact. That's why washing is so important before handling foods and at mealtimes. As for every other cleaning purpose, softened water lathers better with soap and does a better job of cleaning the hands. It actually has a germicidal effect.

Why Soft Water Is Better for Personal Grooming

Soft water can be important to beauty. The skin is smoother and cleaner because none of the soap is converted to soap curd by water hardness. Hair, washed with soap and soft water, is cleaner, softer, more lustrous and more manageable.

Hard water is unkind to skin because soap cannot be completely rinsed away, and can cause a feeling of dryness or itching. Also, hard water minerals can actually cause dryness and soreness. The insoluble soap curd formed in hard water can be irritating to the skin. Soft water causes none of these problems.

And you can save while you enjoy! With soft water, soaps are more efficient and you can use up to 66 percent less. Washables may wear up to 50 percent longer, and water heating costs are reduced by as much as 25 percent.

It's interesting to note that softening does not remove desirable fluoride from water. Softened water is acceptable according to the "Drinking Water Standards" of the United States Public Health Service, and the "International Standards for Drinking Water" of the World Health Organization.

Detergent Pollution

One of the issues that has come into sharp focus is the use of phosphate detergents and the part they play in the overall water pollution problem. It is estimated that five billion pounds of laundry detergents are used annually in the home, and many of these products have been under attack as one of the causes of polluted lakes and streams.

Why are phosphates bad for lakes and streams? Phosphates are nutrients which promote and accelerate the growth of algae and other water plants. If this excess plant life dies and decays, it can consume available oxygen in the water, disturb the ecological balance, and destroy fish and other aquatic life.

Perhaps you wonder why phosphates are put into detergents in the first place. Their main purpose is to soften hard water.

But when water is softened before it is used, phosphate-free soaps or detergents can do their cleaning work completely, uninterrupted by hardness elements. That's why most commercial laundries use softened water.

Today, you and your family can personally help combat water pollution by using phosphate-free laundering soaps and detergents, and by installing a water softener, a combination which gives better results, plus providing many other family benefits.

Technological advances of our civilization are making increasing demands for high quality water. Water conditioning can provide that water. It can also be a major factor in removing water pollutants that new technologies are producing.

Many years ago, water scientists learned how to make water safe. We now have the technological capability to provide water of the highest quality. Today, water is what we make it.

"Hey Culligan Man"®

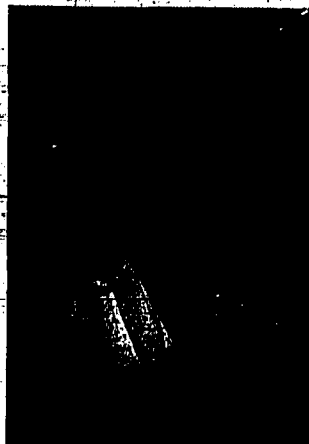

Thanks to the famed Culligan system, available in thousands of U.S. communities and in 85 countries through-

Portable exchange soft water service system requires no equipment purchase, no electrical connections. The softener unit is placed in a convenient location and is periodically exchanged for a fresh one. More than a million have been installed.

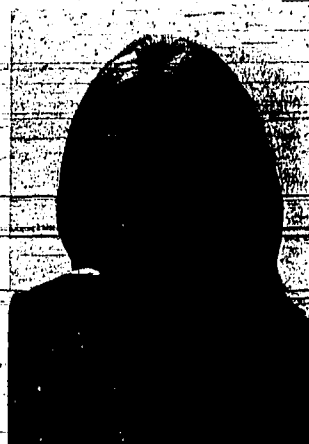

Tub or shower, bathing in filtered water with mild soap gives a smooth feeling of refreshing cleanliness.

All washables come cleaner, feel softer. Leading home-laundry equipment makers suggest the use of soft water.

By hand or machine, dishes and glassware wash spot-free, and they dry to a gleaming sparkle without loweling.

Soft water helps prevent red, itchy, or dry skin because there is no irritating hard water soap curd.

Getting soft water, for example, can be as simple as arranging for Culligan's Portable Exchange Service. As with telephone service, there is no equipment to buy. The dealer owns the softening unit, and he takes care of it. Connection to your water line is easy, because there are no electrical hookups or drain pipes. Periodically, the dealer changes the unit for a fresh one that has been recharged at his factory-authorized local plant. More than a million of these efficient, economical Culligan units have been installed.

For larger families, or for those who prefer to have a more permanent appliance installed, the Culligan dealer provides a complete range of fully-automatic models which can either be rented or purchased.

These models can deliver a virtually unlimited supply of clear, filtered, soft water, regardless of family size or degree of water hardness.

Though hardness is the number one water problem in most homes, iron or rusty water can be an equally troublesome problem. Iron causes stains on porcelain fixtures and laundry. It makes water taste bad and spoils the flavor and appearance of coffee, tea, and other beverages. Still another impurity, hydrogen sulfide gas, commonly known simply as "sulfur," gives water a rotten-egg odor, corrodes plumbing, and tarnishes silverware. Similarly, acid water, prevalent in many areas, deteriorates plumbing and appliances, and can literally eat the porcelain from fixtures.

There is equipment to correct all of these problems. For example, the Culligan Ultra Cleer is a fully-automatic single unit that, in addition to filtering and softening water, also removes iron.

As our population grows, and our water demands increase, we may need to turn more and more to less desirable sources of raw water. Thanks to the outstanding work being done by municipal water engineers, and by the private water conditioning industry, we can make them as good as any other water supplies. Our country has vast resources of brackish and highly mineralized water. Today, water treatment systems employing sensitive membranes can turn these supplies into water of high quality. Called "reverse osmosis," these systems have important applications in business and industry, in hospitals and other institutions.

Today, Culligan conditioned water offers many benefits. Tomorrow, through continuing programs of research and development, Culligan is prepared to face any challenges that may arise and provide better water than the world has known before!

Fully automatic water conditioning appliances, such as this, can either be rented or owned. Models are available to correct almost any water problem: hardness, rust, bad taste or odor, acidity, or cloudiness. Filtration is accomplished, as well.

For many years, businesses and institutions have treated their water to get better operational results. That's why motels, restaurants, hospitals, laundries, and others condition their water. This giant Culligan softener is installed in a midwestern factory.

Karen Valentine: My Great Recipe That "Rediscovered" Chicken

"I never invite anybody who will put ketchup on my meat loaf."

By Karen Valentine,
In Conversation with Helen Dorsey

I'm fussy about who comes to dinner. I never invite anybody who will put ketchup on my meat loaf. I hate that! It's an insult when you've gone to all the trouble. I think people should at least taste before they start doctoring.

We really like to entertain, though usually never more than eight. It's fun. I like to cook, and when we have people over, Mac [her husband, actor Carl "Mac" McLaughlin, Jr.] will take over the meat section and I'll cook the vegetables and make a salad.

I've just started eating chicken again. I've changed a lot. I've broadened my scope. I eat fish and everything now. I used to have a chicken hangup. My father was a chicken farmer, and I lived on a chicken ranch all my life. I've had eggs and chicken every way imaginable, and for a while, I just couldn't stand them around.

Karen's Marinated Chicken. An admitted seasoning-lover, she says, "I usually take everything out of the spice cabinet and let it all."

KAREN VALENTINE'S MARINATED CHICKEN

2 chickens (2½-3 lbs. each), cut into serving pieces

- 1 cup dry sherry
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 2 tablespoons parsley flakes
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 1½ teaspoons thyme leaves
- 1½ teaspoons basil leaves
- 1 teaspoon tarragon leaves
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

Place chicken in a tight-fitting container or plastic bag; set aside. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over chicken. Cover and refrigerate 12 hours or longer. Remove chicken from marinade. Place on grill over hot charcoal. Broil for 45 to 60 minutes, turning and basting frequently. Or place skin-side up on rack in roasting pan and bake in a preheated oven at 350°F. for 1 hour, or until chicken is tender, basting frequently with marinade. Serve with corn on the cob or cooked rice, tossed salad. Serves 6

Afterthoughts: Use same marinade on chops, steaks or butterfly leg of lamb. Herbs may be varied to suit meat used.

GLAZED CINNAMON BARS

- 1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine
- 1 cup C and H Golden Brown Sugar, firmly packed
- 1 egg, separated
- Dash salt
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons cinnamon
- ½ cup unsifted C and H Powdered Sugar
- ¼ to 1 cup chopped walnuts

Combine butter, sugar, egg yolk and salt. Beat until creamy. Stir in flour and cinnamon. Mix well. Spread thick batter into lightly greased 15 x 10-inch pan. Beat egg white until foamy. Stir in powdered sugar. Brush sugar mixture over batter. Sprinkle with walnuts. Bake in 350 degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. While hot, cut into 48 bars. Remove from pan and cool on rack.

Reynolds Brown-In-Bag. Cooks juicier chicken in 12 delicious flavors.

The see-through cooking bag that keeps your oven spotless. For freezing and marinating, too.

1. BAKED CHICKEN. (For extra crispness, cut open top of bag final 10 minutes.)
2. COQ AU VIN. (With red wine, tiny onions, and mushrooms. Tres bien!)
3. BAKED BARBECUE CHICKEN. (Add a dash of liquid smoke for cookout flavor.)
4. CHICKEN CHOW MEIN. (Brown-In-Bag won't let the soy soyt your oven.)
5. CHICKEN A LA KING. (Warm it the no-stick way—inside Brown-In-Bag placed in a saucepan of boiling water.)
6. CHICKEN CACCIATORE. (Tomatoes and Chianti make it very Italianissimo.)
7. GLAZED STUFFED CHICKEN. (Brush on a currant-jelly and melted butter mixture to give it a rosy glow.)
8. CHICKEN POT PIE. (Crust bakes golden-brown in the bag. And not a drip or splatter.)
9. CHICKEN BREASTS TAHITIAN. (Pineapple-orange concentrate and avocado work Polynesian magic.)
10. CHICKEN COUNTRY CAPTAIN. (Georgia specialty with many variations. Try curry powder and raisins in your gravy.)
11. CHICKEN PAPRIKA. (Mix sour cream and spaetzle noodles.)
12. BAKED CHICKEN HASH. (A leftover dish worth crowing about.)

Use Brown-In-Bag for whole birds or parts. Put a bag of chicken or leftovers in the freezer, then right into your oven without thawing.

Brown-In-Bag serves up light and dark meat with all the juiciness and flavor sealed in. Because the bag makes chicken baste itself brown and moistly tender. Pour in a marinade or sauce. Juice can't get loose to splatter your oven or roaster pan.

Try your family favorites—turkey and other poultry, too—or use the idea starters above.

PINEAPPLE HAM LOAF

The Pineapple Ham Loaf is an excellent "Second Act" for the leftover Easter ham. A good flavor companion is the Cauliflower-and-Broccoli Casserole. Round out the meal with baked Louisiana yams.

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup finely chopped parsley or 2 tablespoons dried parsley flakes

1 1/4 teaspoons rubbed sage leaves
1/4 cup boiling water
5 cups ground cooked smoked ham

1/4 pkg. (8-oz. size) corn bread stuffing mix
2 teaspoons dry mustard or 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon paprika
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 can (16 1/2 oz.) sliced pineapple
3 tablespoons pineapple liquid
2 tablespoons brown sugar

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Grease a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan.
2. In large skillet slowly heat 2 tablespoons butter until melted; stir in celery, onion, parsley and sage. Sauté for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir in remaining butter and boiling water, heat until butter is melted.
3. In large bowl combine sautéed vegetable mixture, ham, corn bread stuffing mix, 1 teaspoon mustard, pepper and eggs. Toss lightly but thoroughly to combine.

4. Lightly pack ham-loaf mixture into pan. Arrange pineapple slices overlapping down center of ham. Bake 50 minutes.

8. In small bowl combine canned pineapple liquid, remaining mustard and brown sugar. Spread over pineapple slices. Bake 15 minutes longer, until pineapple is glazed. Makes 6-8 servings

CAULIFLOWER-AND-BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

2 pkg. (10-oz. size) frozen cauliflower
2 pkg. (10-oz. size) frozen chopped broccoli
2 cans (10 1/2-oz. size) Cheddar cheese soup, undiluted
1/4 cup silvered process American cheese

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Cook cauliflower and broccoli together according to package directions for 5 minutes only, drain.
2. In large bowl combine the cooked vegetables and cheese soup, mix well.
3. Turn into 2-qt. casserole, sprinkle surface with cheese. Bake for 30-40 minutes, until bubbly. Makes 8 servings

EASY GRILLED KRAUTWICHES

In medium bowl toss 1 can (14 oz.) well-drained sauerkraut with 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 teaspoons dried chives or instant minced onion and 1/4 teaspoon pepper (preferably coarse). Using 1 jar (8 oz.) process cheese spread, spread about 1 tablespoon cheese on 12 rye bread slices. Next, spread with mustard. Cut 1 can (12 oz.) drained luncheon meat into 12 slices (or use 6 slices leftover cooked ham). Place 2 slices luncheon meat on each of 6 bread slices. Top with sauerkraut, then with remaining bread. Using about 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, butter both sides of sandwich. Heat griddle or large skillet and brown both sides of sandwich. Keep sandwiches in warm oven until all are grilled. Serve with crisp cucumber slices or assorted vegetable sticks if desired. Makes 6

This woman took years off her face instantly!

And so can you with... The $5.95 'Face Lift'!

The amazing "invisible" face lift that smoothes away wrinkles, eliminates crows feet, firms sagging skin around chin and neck—actually makes you look 5... 10... as much as 20 years younger the instant you put it on.

NO CREAMS OR FACIAL TREATMENTS INVOLVED TRY THIS REVOLUTIONARY INSTANT FACE LIFT WITHOUT RISK—IT MUST WORK OR YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IMMEDIATELY!

Ever wonder how the stars keep their faces so young... so smooth... so attractive? Wonder no more! It's not expensive surgery, but a safe, simple undetectable device created by a renowned Hollywood make-up artist that literally "lifts" away years the moment it's put in place. The amazing Instant Face Lift has long been one of Hollywood's most guarded beauty secrets... and now it can be yours for only $5.95.

SHARE THE "FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH" SECRET OF THE WORLD'S MOST GLAMOROUS STARS

Yes, now you can use the very same Instant Face Lift that temporarily smoothes away wrinkles... wipes out crows feet and unightly lines around your mouth... gently firms sagging skin around your neck and chin. And you'll do it in a few minutes time with the famous Traynor Face Lift... Now available to the public for the first time.

Mark Traynor, the beauty expert and make-up genius who created Instant Face Lift to keep stars and personalities looking their very best—forever young and attractive—wants you to share their secret. He wants you to discover and enjoy his travertine step to beauty and achieve the same fabulous results as the stars who have learned to "lift" away the years and look years younger without surgery... without creams... and without treatments of any kind!

How Age Lines and Sags Vanish—Instantly

The Traynor Lift is an amazing... yet so simple to use. Set includes attachments that are concealed by your hair-do—elastic lift-band, tension mounts, everything you need. For an instant face lift you simply position the Traynor Lift at temples or under ear lobes to smooth out wrinkles and sagging. Use for neck, chin, eyes or mouth to tighten skin firmly, but gently at your problem areas.

TRAYNOR'S FACE LIFT WORKS IN MINUTES TO BANISH TELL-TALE LINES FROM YOUR MOUTH, FROM YOUR EYES, FROM YOUR CHIN AND NECK.

The real beauty of this "miracle" technique is the amazing speed in which it works! In minutes you actually see wrinkles, lines and sags disappear from your face. What a thrill to see smile lines smoothed away... sags on your neck and under your chin disappear... wrinkles around your eyes vanish—as if by magic! The Traynor Lift does it all in just minutes. And suddenly you look in the mirror and there's a "new you"... a more beautiful you... A YOUNGER YOU!

THE RESULTS OF EXPENSIVE FACE LIFT SURGERY IN YOUR OWN BEDROOM!

That's right! You do it all yourself—following the easy, step-by-step instructions personally written by Mark Traynor himself. His famous "Lift" is composed of hidden attachments that go on easily, effortlessly—creating tension on the areas of your face and neck, you want smoothed. The hypo-allergenic, breathable tapes are secure and safe—never a worry! Special adjustments allow one size to fit everyone. This temporary face lift works in the same way as plastic surgery—except there is no surgery or treatment of any kind involved. You simply attach the lift to hidden locations beneath your hair, then place the elastic "invisible" bands over your head...

Unsolicited Testimonials from Women Who Have Used Instant Face Lift

"I wear the face lift each day... I've given the secret of my young face to all of my friends." Mrs. C.D. St. Petersburg, Fla.
"I contemplate having plastic surgery during the coming fall... it is very useful in the interim." R.G. Friedman, N.Y.
"Simply fantastic." A.F., Miami Beach, Fla.
"I wear them to work everyday... and also on the weekend... they are so comfortable... I gave one to my sister and one to my mother as gifts and they love it too!" Mrs. R., Rockford, Ill.

LOOK MORE FASCINATING THAN YOUR FONDEST DREAMS... WHENEVER YOU WANT

With a little help from your hair-do no one will ever guess you're wearing your Instant Lift! What could be simpler? And it's so comfortable that in a matter of minutes you'll forget it's on. You wear it when you want, where you want—for a sale evening on the town... at wedding parties and other social affairs... for that special occasion, for that special person, for that special intimate moment when you want to look your very best.

MARK TRAYNOR'S INSTANT FACE LIFT— THE SAME MAKE-UP PROCEDURE THAT COSTS UP TO $25 IN EXCLUSIVE BEAUTY SALONS!

"An old movie studio make-up trick, which instantly lifts weary skin, is finding its way into beauty salons... shave as much as 25 years off a woman's face... procedure costs $25."

"One Los Angeles musical comedy star said: I wear lifts for all singing engagements and any big party out here."

AS REPORTED IN THE NEW YORK TIMES

Advice to Mothers: How to Get the Gift You Want

By Lorraine Collins

If you are a mother, you know the chances are pretty good that some year you will receive a knitted garbage-can cover for Mother's Day, or a black-lace bikini apron for Christmas. Your family loves you, and they want to choose unique and beautiful gifts for you; but considering the problems they face, you're lucky you don't have a drawerful of diamond-studded can openers.

In the first place, you are the only experienced shopper in the family. Just by being the mother and chief shopper, you know an odd assortment of facts about the others. You know Jenny hates strings, loves purple and won't wear ankle socks with a skirt. You know Billy always loses mittens but can wear the same pair of gloves all winter. You know the favorite brands of toothpaste, hair cream and candy of everyone in the family, and whether they like fruit, murder mysteries or jigsaw puzzles. You know color sizes, waist measurements and which recording star is the current favorite.

But who knows anything about you? When your loved ones set out to buy you something you'd really like, the chances are that they haven't the foggiest idea what it might be. And if they try to get a clue from past performances, they will be even more mystified. For instance, I once astonished my husband by reacting with mischievous joy when I got a Donald Duck night-light for my birthday. I also once told him that what I really wanted for Mother's Day was a truckload of fertilizer for our new lawn.

One neighbor of ours was dumfounded when he caused his wife to weep inconsolably because he gave her an electric mixer; what she really wanted was a bag of horehound candy. I heard of another case where a mother returned a bottle of French perfume and got an alarm clock.

The fact is that mothers are both sentimental and practical, in equal portions. Our families recognize this, and are torn between two opposing desires when they give us gifts. Instinctively, they may think of something practical, to help us with all that housework. (They feel guilty about housework.) But then they think of buying something feminine and frivolous so we'll know we are still glamorous to them after all those years in the utility room.

It is in trying to meet both requirements at once that our families discover such hybrids as the mink dust mop and the steam iron with a mother-of-pearl handle.

Obviously, in this as in other matters, our families need our help. We cannot simply abandon them in a quagmire of indecision, but must lead them gently toward a solution. To help your family and to take the uncertainty out of the next holiday, I offer these few suggestions:

1. Always warn your husband and children in advance that an important anniversary or holiday is looming on the horizon. Never take it for granted that they know Christmas is December 25th or that Mother's Day is in May. They do want to get you something, and they will feel guilty and inadequate if the important day finds them unprepared. For their sakes, you must learn to say things like, "Gee! In only two weeks it'll be 32!"

2. Next, decide whether you want a practical or a frivolous gift this time, and then let them know. You can be direct or indirect: "This year, let's get each other bathroom fixtures for Christmas." Or, "You know, I saw the cutest froly nightie in the store today, but I always hate to buy that sort of thing for myself. They had it in a size 12, too."

3. Finally, realize that if you actually do want to be surprised, you'd better be willing to be surprised. Don't cheat by harboring a secret wish for something special, because it has been amply demonstrated that mothers are different from other members of the family, and they think different thoughts. It is highly unlikely that your husband and children are going to spontaneously discover that you secretly covet a painting by Van Gogh.

If you really insist on saying, "I don't care what it is, as long as you pick it out"—I hope you'll like your Army-surplus sleeping bag! □

The most natural way to relieve constipation.

We created Serutan like a fine old recipe with natural ingredients to help you overcome constipation the most natural way.

We blend a rare, moisture-holding plant with ingredients from corn, oats, and defatted wheat germ. Not a harsh chemical or drug in it, so it won't cause irritation or griping.

Serutan forms a soft gel that moistens food wastes and produces bulk to stimulate your sluggish colon. Very different from magnesia or harsh chemicals.

Taken daily, Serutan will get you regular, and keep you regular—even if you've had a problem for years. Fruit flavored, regular, or toasted granules.

A Reader's Remembrance:

The Day I Met LBJ

In November of 1962, I was working for the Democratic party in San Jose, organizing the campaign for a congressional representative. It was just before election day. Tension was mounting and so was my work. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was to make a campaign swing through our area, and it was my job to coordinate time, place and appearances with Johnson's team for an outdoor rally.

Mr. Johnson's advance man and I had chosen the front of City Hall at 5 p.m. for the gathering, hoping for a large after-work crowd. It wasn't the best site in the world, but it was the best in San Jose, and we settled for it.

With the arrangements made, I headed for the airport to meet Mr. Johnson. The plane was late, and at 5 o'clock in front of City Hall—no LBJ. By the time we did arrive, the crowd that had numbered 1,000 at 5 p.m. had dwindled to about 50. The speaker's platform was squeezed full of candidates, a band was there, but the plaza was practically empty.

Clearly disappointed, Mr. Johnson stared out at the meager audience. After the speeches were over, he turned to me.

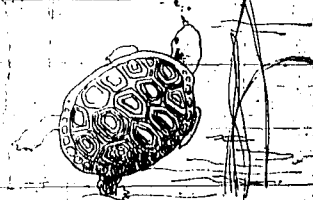

"Son," he said with a quizzical smile, "the next time you're expecting a crowd this size, why don't you just hold the meeting in a phone booth?"

Pet Corner

An Introduction to Turtles

Turtles make relatively care-free pets—and they're more entertaining than you might imagine. If your child comes home with a turtle, consider providing a terrarium in which it can live. A terrarium can be easily constructed within a glass aquarium. Build up a land area of sand or soil several inches deep into which you can sink a pan of water. The water should be: 1) kept at room temperature, 2) deep enough to allow the turtle to swim freely and to eat his food underwater, 3) changed daily. Connect the land area and the pan of water by a few rocks. Keep the terrarium above 68 degrees. (Another approach: Turtles, when small, can share aquariums with certain fish. They will need a piece of Styrofoam to float on, and they should be put in a separate pan of water once a day for feeding.) Precaution: To avoid salmonella infection, be sure Junior washes his hands thoroughly after handling his turtle. Turtles should not be kissed. Even the "cutest" ones.

Charming Currier & Ives Decorator Dishes in Full Color

Original Currier and Ives Lithographs Reproduced on Delicate Porcelain with Fine Golden Trim Edge

Here is just the setting that a fine Currier and Ives deserves. Yes, it's almost as if the qualities of fine translucent porcelain and the delicate colors and tints of these works were made for each other. Together we've created the very essence of Early Americana certain to make an incredibly beautiful decorating effect however they are hung. Each work captures a special sense of time and beauty rich with that particularly innocent and simple atmosphere that typifies a genuine Currier & Ives. Unfortunately it is impossible to reproduce all the detail and artistry from the small black and white illustrations here, only when you actually see these collector's pieces can you fully appreciate their drama and appeal.

THIS OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

So lovely you'll want to order several sets while this special offer lasts, we urge you to order right away. Each plate in lovely full color is genuine porcelain, edged with a golden finish and measures a full 2 3/4" in diameter. DAME AGATHA CHRISTIE
A woman of mystery
—in more ways than one

"I probably could write the same book again and again, and nobody would notice," says the celebrated but little-known Agatha Christie, British writer of mysteries. At 81, she has just published her 81st book. Back in 1915, her sister bet her she couldn't write a detective story. Until then, young Agatha had been writing stories of "unrelieved gloom, in which most of the characters died." But with that challenge, she created her famous detective, Hercule Poirot. She has one daughter, Rosalind, who became her "severest critic—guessing the outcome of all my plots." In 1926, under the pressure of constant work, her own mother's death and the impending breakup of her marriage, Agatha suffered an attack of amnesia. The British press accused her of staging the attack as a publicity stunt. Stung, she vowed that henceforth her private life would remain private—and so it has.

The rent-a-yacht business not only is here, it's flourishing. One New York firm (World Yacht Enterprises Ltd.) can provide you with anything from a 50-footer to a 300-foot floating palace—in 20 places around the world. All the boats (650 of them) have experienced captains and crews, and the firm also will provision them if the customer wishes. The cost, naturally, depends on just how much luxury is wanted. Estimates per person run from under $200 a week, including meals, to over $1,000 on a super-deluxe job. To get to his yacht, the renter simply flies to a nearby airport in Mexico, the Caribbean, the Mediterranean or the South Pacific.

This Week's Book Quote: Even the most troublesome issues of our day have their other side. Overcrowding: "There are overcrowded cities, but not an overcrowded earth. You could take all the construction that looms and graces and defaces the globe—all the villages and cities and huts and houses and buildings and factories and roads, and put the whole thing down in Greenland, and it would be lost among the glaciers." Crime: The homicide rate is 70 percent less than in 1935; and the robbery rate is 30 percent less. Violent crime in the big cities was highest immediately after the Civil War. It rose also after World War II to a height much higher than now." (From "The Case for Optimism," by James Dillet Freeman, Harper, $4.05.)

BURTONS AND BARONESS
A look from the lady

Will Liz Taylor stand for Richard Burton's looking at another woman? Sometimes, perhaps, but Liz doesn't appear to be especially pleased about her husband's proximity to the Baroness Guy de Rothschild at this Paris show, a benefit for the United Jewish Appeal. The entertainer was Liza Minnelli, opening a series of one-woman shows in the French capital. Baron Rothschild organized the evening and presided over the benefit.

BOTTLED-UP FEELINGS

BY RICHARD ARMOUR

It once was great when I no more
My bottles need return.
I tossed them in a vacant lot
And didn't give a darn.
An end to all the former toll,
And paying a deposit.
No longer stored I bottles up,
Then lugged them from the closet.
But now again I pay, I store,
I haul . . . I think ecology
Is very nice for earth and things,
But owes me an apology.

I face your manly sneers
And argue very rationally Till I'm reduced to tears.

So you give in, which I indite,

But just because I'm crying.

Ramona, a cat, was outdoors during the biggest snowstorm of the winter. Her mistress tried in vain to find her. She called the police station to ask if anyone had found a lost cat. She wanted to impress upon the officer the great importance Ramona was to the family. "She's no intelligent officer, sometimes she almost talks to me."

"In that case, ma'am," said the impatient voice on the telephone, "you'd better hang up. She may be trying to phone you."
